WOODRUFF AND TAFT TALK LOCAL POLITICS

Whitman in List for Governor—Compromise on Direct Primaries Suggested.

WHERE ROOSEVELT STANDS

In Accord with Taft and Not Disposed to Force His Views—Democratic Conditions Not Inspiring.

BEVERLY, Mass., Aug. 8.—Timothy L. Woodruff, Republican State Chairman of New York, talked politics with President Taft for more than two hours and a half this afternoon. Mr. Woodruff is optimistic over the outlook in New York State, declares that a compromise will be reached on the primary question, and significantly remarked, as a parting shot before he left for home, that circumstances might arise which would cause him to be a candidate to succeed himself as State Chairman. Mr. Woodruff, who has had the job for four years, says it is thankless, but he may take another chance at it.

Incidentally, Mr. Woodruff produced a new Gubernatorial possibility by including Charles S. Whitman, the District Attorney of New York County, elected on the Fusion ticket last Fall, in the list of candidates he discussed with the President. The others prominently mentioned were Henry L. Stimson, former United States District Attorney, and Clark Williams, Superintendent of Banking.

The compromise which Mr. Woodruff said would be reached on the primary question would mean a defeat of Gov. Hughes's plan for direct nominations. Mr. Woodruff declared that the party leaders in the State would not stand for the elimination of the convention principle. He said that President Taft and Col. Theodore Roosevelt were in accord as to New York politics, and that neither was "disposed to force his own views as to any man or thing."

"The Republican Party," said Mr. Woodruff, "will indorse all of Gov. Hughes's primary views except the doing away with conventions. We will continue to have conventions to name our candidates for office."

Talks of Primary Compromise.

According to Mr. Woodruff, the Republican State platform will declare for primaries along the lines of the Mead-Phillips bill, which was vetoed by Gov. Hughes. This bill embodies the primary idea, in so much as it provides for a State-wide enrollment of voters, a set day for primaries to choose delegates to convention, and payment by the State of all the costs of the primaries. This bill was passed at the regular session of the Legislature as a substitute for Gov. Hughes's bills. The Governor promptly vetoed it and called an extra session. The Legislature at the extra session again defeated the Governor's bill, the Cobb bill being its final form, although ex-President Roosevelt, entering the fight at the last minute, expressed the hope that the Cobb bill, with amendments, would pass.

Just how far Col. Roosevelt will go in the coming campaign in fighting for the "direct" primary system has not been stated. President Taft stated his position anew to-day. He also believed in the convention idea as to State tickets, although he probably would approve of a direct primary vote as to Assemblymen, Congressmen, and United States Senators.

Mr. Woodruff's statement that neither President Taft nor Col. Roosevelt was disposed to force his views as to "any man or thing" may be significant as to the attitude of these two leaders regarding the primary declarations to be made at the State Convention on Sept. 27. The voters were so decisive and the sentiment of the leaders appeared so strong against the direct primary idea that Col. Roosevelt may have decided that the time is not ripe to urge the matter further. There is no question but that there will be a compromise. How far the compromise will go may be judged by Mr. Woodruff's attitude.

President Taft and Mr. Woodruff are old friends. They were at Yale together, the President being one year ahead of the former Lieutenant Governor. Mr. Woodruff said to-day that he had talked to the President of many things. It was too early, he said, to speak with any degree of accuracy about candidates or general conditions.

"But I am willing to be quoted as saying that the condition of the Democratic Party in the State, to say the least, is not inspiring."

"To the Republicans?" was suggested.

"It is not inspiring to the Democrats, and therefore is inspiring to us Republicans," laughed the State Chairman.

Sees Knox on Peru and Ecuador.

President Taft also had a conference to-day with Secretary of State Knox. A number of minor diplomatic appointments were discussed, but it has been determined that all such appointments would be put over until next December or later.

The President and Secretary Knox are using their good offices to bring about an early settlement of the dispute between Ecuador and Peru. They want Chile to use her influence, and it became known to-day that during his talk with President Montt of Chile on Saturday President Taft broached the subject, and it was discussed at some length. The Chilean influence would be very strong with Ecuador, and it is the plan to have it exercised in that direction.

Brazil, Argentina, and the United States intervened in the threatened trouble between Ecuador and Peru over the boundary dispute. Now the intervening parties are anxious to have Chile, as an outsider, exercise her influence on the situation. A decision by the King of Spain is involved in the dispute, which is rather a delicate one to handle.

President Montt, it is believed, has already communicated with the Government officials at Santiago regarding the situation.

As to the proposed Liberian loan, it was stated to-day that, so far as the United States is concerned, there never was and never has been any disposition to shut out of participating in the loan any power that legitimately has an interest in Liberia. This would include both France and England. Germany wants to participate because of her extensive trade with Liberia, and undoubtedly will be allowed to do so.

Charles F. Brooker, Republican State Committeeman from Connecticut, saw the President this afternoon and talked over the general political situation.

The President, according to his present plans, may remain in Beverly this year until Oct. 15. He goes to St. Paul to speak at the National Conservation Congress on Sept. 5, and from there will go to Washington for a week. The Cabinet will be called to meet in Washington at the same time. From there the President will return to Beverly, to remain here until well into October.

STOPS RUNAWAY AT LIFE RISK

Policeman Shine Halts Team Whirling Funeral Coach and Occupants.

Following a crash between an automobile and a funeral coach, Policeman John W. Shine of the Liberty Avenue Station, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon flung himself in front of the team of horses attached to the coach and brought them to a stop after they had bolted through Pennsylvania Avenue for two blocks, to the peril of men and women in the vehicle and persons in the street.

A front wheel of the coach was badly damaged when struck by the automobile, and as the horses dashed along the vehicle swayed and almost overturned.

The crash, which occurred at Pennsylvania and Jamaica Avenues, hurled the driver of the carriage, Nathan Bernstein, 22 years old, of 665 Rockaway Avenue, Brooklyn, to the roadway with such force that he received internal injuries and the fracture of three ribs. The reins twisted around one of his wrists as he fell and for a hundred feet he was dragged along the roadway before the reins slipped from his wrist. He was picked up unconscious.

Two women and two men in the carriage, which was returning from Cypress Hills Cemetery, were bruised by the jolting of the partly wrecked vehicle as it was whirled along. The women screamed, and one of the men threw open a door of the carriage and half swung himself out toward the driver's seat with the purpose of making an attempt to gather up the flying reins and gain control of the horses, but the peril was too great.

Narrowly escaping collision with a trolley car of the Fulton Street line and with other vehicles, the horses ran on. Policeman Shine heard cries of persons fleeing from the path of the runaways, and, rushing into the road, he leaped at the heads of the horses just as they came abreast of him. He clung to the harness and was lifted off his feet, but he swerved the horses to one side and stopped them, after being dragged half a block. He was bruised and his uniform was torn.

Bernstein, the driver, was taken to the Bradford Street Hospital. His condition is serious.

The automobile is owned by John Morrell & Co. of 624 West Thirty-sixth Street, Manhattan, and was driven by Henry J. Walters of 424 East Eleventh Street. In the car were several persons. There was no arrest.

X-SCIENTISTS SLANDER SUIT.

Dr. Hannon Charges Dr. Mann and Two Women with Conspiracy to Injure Him

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Aug. 8.—Dr. Joseph G. Mann, leader of the Christian Science Church in this city, was made joint defendant to-day with his sister, Miss Pauline Mann, and Mrs. Alice T. Neumann, a prominent member of the church, in a suit for $15,000, alleging conspiracy and slander, brought by Dr. Ralph C. Hannon of Windsor, one of the oldest practitioners of the cult in Connecticut. Property of the defendants was attached by Sheriff John Focte of Hartford, and garnishees were placed on all the local banks.

In his complaint the plaintiff declares that for the past twenty years he has been a Christian and divine science healer, and is regularly engaged in the practice of his profession. He states that it is necessary for his success that his patients have confidence in his ability to heal and in his right to practice his profession. He charges that since 1907 the defendants have engaged in the practice and teaching of Christian Science in New Britain, and that they, with other persons unknown to the plaintiff, have conspired together for the purpose of injuring his reputation.

In the fifth count the plaintiff asserts that Dr. Mann on March 6, 1907, in the presence and hearing of a reporter of a New York newspaper, and for the purpose of publication, "maliciously spoke concerning the plaintiff in the following false and defamatory words:

"'He became boastful and has lost his power to heal. Had he remained humble his power for usefulness might have remained. If you want the real Christian Science treatment you had better not go to Hannon.'"

In the sixth count the plaintiff charges Dr. Mann with having thus referred to him in the presence of persons whom he was teaching Christian Science:

"He cannot heal any one. If he tried to heal any one he would die."

The plaintiff alleges that he has sustained great damage by the acts of the alleged conspirators, which have caused him to lose patients and deterred him from extending his practice. He also alleges that the conspirators intended that they should gain the practice he had lost. He estimates his loss as at least $10,000.

GIRL KILLS YOUNG MAN.

Mysterious Shooting Affair at Memphis—Girl Is in Custody.

Special to The New York Times.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 8.—Edwin Boyeson, Treasurer of the Weinar Rice Mills, at Weinar, Ark., was shot and killed with his own pistol this morning. The shot was fired by Edna Goldberg.

The Goldberg family came here recently from Wheatly, Ark., and Boyeson had apartments on the same floor of a flathouse. A chambermaid heard a shot this morning in Boyeson's room and heard the Goldberg girl crying, "Forgive me! Oh, forgive me!" She entered the room and found Boyeson dead and Edna Goldberg kneeling and moaning by his body.

The young woman's mother declares that the shooting was accidental, but the girl is being held by the police. Mrs. Goldberg first stated that Boyeson picked up his pistol to place it in his bureau drawer at her daughter's request and shot himself. Half an hour later the mother declared that Boyeson and the girl were playfully struggling for possession of the weapon when it was accidentally discharged. The girl refuses to talk.

Adolph Boyeson, father of the dead man, is a wealthy rice planter, and the Goldbergs are also well to do.

OFFERS $50,000 BAIL FOR SON

Brewer Goldberger Goes to Aid of Youth Accused of Theft.

Special to The New York Times.

PORT CHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 8.—Nathan Goldberger, the young man who was arrested early last Friday morning with Milton Bowmann with $4,000 of jewelry and silverware in their possesion, which had been taken from the home of A. Taylor Paines, who is touring in Switzerland, is the son of the President of a brewery company of New York. The father has engaged Abe Levy, the New York lawyer, to defend his son, and before Police Judge Edwards this morning stated he was willing to put up $50,000 bail to get him out of jail. Mr. Goldberger was accompanied by Alderman Adolph Moskovitz of New York.

Judge Edwards held the two prisoners for the Grand Jury and remanded both to the White Plains Jail without bail. It is expected that Mr. Goldberger will make application to District Attorney Winslow to-morrow at White Plains for bail.

SOCIETY GAMBLERS' NAMES WITHHELD

Constable Who Raided Narragansett Pier Club Begged by Women to Keep Silent.

COMEDY, SAYS MRS. HANAN

Raid More Fun Than a Musical Show—W. M. Ivins Says Gamblers Were Auto Parties from New York.

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., Aug. 8.—There is consternation to-night in the higher society circles of this fashionable Summer resort because of the fear that Constable John G. Cross, who conducted the gambling raid at the Narragansett Pier Club Sunday, may make public the names of the men and women prominent in society who were on the premises at the time. Prominent matrons, personally or through emissaries, have beseeched the officer all day not to give out their names. Constable Cross so far has complied, but he says it is not because the ladies have asked it.

"To publish these names would give unnecessary pain and cause unnecessary embarrassment," he said to-night, "but if these people appear in court in answer to the summonses which have been served on them it will then be impossible to keep their names from the public, and there will be a good deal of surprise when it is learned what prominent men and women are concerned. And they will have a lot of embarrassing questions to answer, too."

Mr. Cross said that he did not wish to pose as a reformer; but that he was a Constable and he was trying to perform his duty as he saw it. He also declared that he was being constantly followed by detectives whom he believed to be in the employ of some of the society people against whom his move was made, and said that he was almost in fear of his life.

The case against the constable, who was arrested by a local officer on Saturday night when Dr. W. E. Arnold of the Narragansett Club and George L. Cutting of Worcester, Mass., one of the raiders, were also arrested, was heard in the Second District Court to-day at Wakefield, Judge Nathan B. Lewis presiding. The charge of assault against Mr. Cross was quashed because the complaint was unsigned, and the case of Mr. Arnold was continued until Aug. 2. The case against Cutting also was continued.

Although Cross succeeded in securing his release on the assault charge it was on a technicality only, and he is awaiting the next move against him.

It became known to-night that William M. Ivins of New York, Prof. Brander Matthews of Columbia University, and Mrs. R. G. Dun of New York were among the persons who were behind the raids on the club. Mr. Ivins in a statement to-night said:

"This town is in the throes of a gambling epidemic which has enveloped rich and poor alike. The majority of the people who visited the swell club were not Summe rresidents of Narragansett and Narragansett Pier, but were members of automobile parties from New York and elsewhere. And while they gambled at the high-toned places their chauffeurs went to five other places which are known to exist and lost their money.

"This epidemic of gambling has entirely ruined the character of the town. Property has depreciated in value from 25 to 50 per cent., and the voting population has fallen off 20 per cent, all because of the gambling."

Mr. Ivins said that George L. Cutting of Worcester, one of the raiding party, examined a roulette wheel and had found evidences that the wheel had been "fixed," leaving a player at the mercy of the operator.

It is known at the Pier that a number of well-known Summer visitors have been habitués of the club, and the names of some of those who were there on Saturday night have been rumored, but they cannot be positively verified.

Mrs. John H. Hanan, of New York, who has been mentioned among many others who were at the club on Sunday night, said to-day to a TIMES correspondent at her villa, Shore Acres:

"The story printed in a New York morning newspaper about me to-day was fictitious, and you can deny it emphatically. I do not deny being at the club with a large party of friends. I went over from the Casino after dinner to watch the game. What happened was the best entertainment I have seen at the Pier this season. It was as good as comic opera. We have not had any comic opera at Narragansett this Summer, but the events of Sunday night quite eclipsed opera comique. The opposing band carried pistols, and one of the leaders wielded an axe and said we were all under arrest. The party has been pictured in tears. Instead the band of raiders caused a gale of laughter.

"Now, I do not want to disparage young Mr. Constable Cross. The whole performance has been farcical. Mr. Cross should go elsewhere, where he is needed. He is not needed at the Pier."

There were upward of thirty society women in the crowd gathered about the roulette wheels and other games of chance that it is asserted were in the clubhouse at the time of the raid, according to Mr. Cross. Many of them have tried to explain, the constable says, that they had just dropped into the club for a lunch after leaving the hop at the Casino, but Mr. Cross declares he saw no signs of any luncheon, and that the majority were gathered about the game boards when he entered.

Rumors of a possible arrest in the case were current to-night, and kept the Pier alive with interest. More developments are expected within a short time.

No trace has been found yet of the gambling paraphernalia which was spirited away from the club early Sunday morning.

LEAVE THEIR CHICKEN RANCH.

H. A. Rheinstrom and Actress Wife Seek Reconciliation with His Mother.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 8.—Six months on a chicken ranch in Boyle Heights have proved enough for Harry A. Rheinstrom, son of the widow of a Cincinnati millionaire, and his wife, formerly Edna Loftus, an English actress.

The simple life did not appeal to them, and they have returned to Cincinnati to try to effect a reconciliation with Rheinstrom's mother, whose six millions she must leave to some one.

They arrived in Los Angeles last February after some adventures in the East. Mrs. Rheinstrom was a stage beauty whom Rheinstrom met when she made a Broadway hit in New York. When he announced his intention of marrying her his family interposed strong objections. In Cincinnati she was arrested and he was sent to a private sanitarium. The woman obtained her release on habeas corpus proceedings. Their marriage took place soon after his discharge from the sanitarium.

A. D. JUILLIARD HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Thrown from Car, Is Found on Swiss Road with Head in Wife's Lap.

WIFE NOT BADLY INJURED

Machine Ditched in Effort to Avoid Collision with Girl on Bicycle—Reassuring Telegram Received.

GENEVA, Aug. 8.—Augustus D. Juilliard, senior member of the firm of A. D. Juilliard & Co. of New York and Director in many American banks, was injured while making an automobile trip near here yesterday.

Mr. Juilliard was accompanied by his wife and a chauffeur. They were proceeding along the road from Geneva to Evian-les-Bains at a rapid pace, when a girl on a bicycle appeared almost directly in front of them. The girl, in her alarm, zigzagged over the roadway, and in avoiding a collision the chauffeur was compelled to swerve his machine sharply. This manoeuvre ditched the car, and both Mr. and Mrs. Juilliard were thrown out, the former being quite severely hurt and the latter suffering slight injuries.

Mr. Juilliard's condition is not considered dangerous. In addition to the shock he is suffering from a severe scalp wound.

A passing automobile found the injured man lying by the roadside, his head supported by his wife. The car was a wreck in the ditch. Mr. and Mrs. Juilliard were brought to the National Hotel here.

In explaining the accident, the chauffeur said that the cyclist, who was a young Swiss woman, loomed up suddenly in the obscurity of the highway. She was frightened and lost control of her bicycle. There was no alternative but to swerve abruptly to the side. This he did, and the machine plunged with great force into the ditch.

The chauffeur and the cyclist were uninjured.

Mr. and Mrs. Juilliard have been in Europe for about a month. Mr. Juilliard's nephew, Frederic A. Juilliard, who is at the Juilliard country house at Tuxedo Park, confirms the report of the accident.

He yesterday received a telegram from Mrs. Juilliard, in which she said that her husband had escaped with a scalp wound and that she was practically unhurt.

ROCKEFELLER ACCUSED.

Summoned to Court on Charge of Speeding in Automobile.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 8.—Constable Bilkey of South Euclid to-day served a summons on John D. Rockefeller to appear in court on a charge of speeding in a motor car. Mr. Rockefeller will appear at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning before Judge Dean of South Euclid.

The offense occurred last Thursday, but the constable did not learn until to-day who owned the car that had gone faster than the twenty miles an hour that the village law permits.

He discovered, after much research, that the car was the property of the owner of Forest Hill, so he set out to arrest Mr. Rockefeller. He got as far as the iron gates when Supt. Lynch stopped him.

"Who are you?" asked Lynch.

"I am Constable Bilkey of South Euclid and I want to arrest Mr. Rockefeller," the officer replied, not one whit abashed.

Lynch telephone up to the house and was directed to bring up the constable. Mr. Rockefeller was waiting on the veranda. Constable Bilkey was greeted. Then he proceeded to serve the summons.

"Very well," remarked Mr. Rockefeller. "Very well. I didn't know I had been violating the law. I am willing to accept."

Then Mr. Rockefeller ordered a carriage, and Constable Bilkey, reclining at his ease on the cushions, was driven down the winding avenue and put down outside of the gates.

He heaved a sigh of relief. South Euclid justice had not been slighted.

ASKS MATCH, SHOOTS SAILOR.

Seaman Who Aided Stranger Is Dying in the Marine Hospital.

While on their way to the Brooklyn Navy Yard early yesterday morning a stranger stopped four United States sailors of the battleship North Dakota at Sands and Jay Streets, Brooklyn, and asked for a match. Joseph Smith, one of the jackies, gave him one, whereupon the man drew a revolver and fired at him.

The bullet struck Smith in the abdomen and he sank to the sidewalk. His three companions stooped to assist him, not noticing his assailant moving away unconcerned, with the revolver still in his right hand.

When they thought of capturing the man and started after him, he had half a block start. He managed to keep that distance for a couple of blocks, and then disappeared in an alley.

An ambulance from the Brooklyn Hospital brought Dr. Buddington, who found Smith bleeding profusely, unconscious, and in a serious condition. He was hurried to the Marine Hospital in the navy yard. He did not regain consciousness yesterday, and until he does little light can be thrown on the shooting. His companions said there was no quarrel. They said the man was of medium height, dark complexioned, and roughly dressed, but more than that they were unable to tell.

HIGHWAYMEN HOLD UP THREE IN AUTO

Swing a Red Lantern on Boston Post Road Near Rye and Jump Aboard as Car Slows Down.

REVOLVERS IN THEIR HANDS

Autoists' Pockets Are Emptied and Then the Car Owner Breaks Away to Get Help—The Robbers Escape.

Special to The New York Times.

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 8.—Down the Boston Post Road an automobile sped at 1:30 o'clock this morning on the way to New York. In it were J. W. Bannon, the owner, a dealer in bookbinding material at 74 Duane Street; R. L. Gilmore, a friend, and Mr. Bannon's chauffeur, Rudolph Wehr.

The road was dark. When nearly opposite the home of John E. Parsons, a New York lawyer, Wehr saw a man ahead waving a red lantern. Thought of an accident and the probable need of help flashed through Wehr's mind, and with a word over his shoulder to his employer the chauffeur put on his brakes and slowed down as he neared the man with the lantern.

"What's the trouble?" inquired Wehr. "Some one hurt?"

For response the man in the road dropped his lantern and made a leap for the running board of the car, jerking a revolver from his pocket as he did so. At the same time another man, also armed with a revolver, stepped from behind the bushes by the roadside and leaped to the other side of the car.

"Quick! Hand over everything of value that you've got if you don't want your heads blown off! Come on, now; everything," one of the men called out.

The revolvers of the two robbers were aimed directly at the occupants of the car, and they had a firm footing on the running boards, so that even had the chauffeur thrown on the power he could not have got rid of the highwaymen. Convinced that there was no escape, Mr. Bannon, Mr. Gilmore, and the chauffeur commenced to clean out their pockets. Mr. Bannon, though, was watching his chance all the time, and as one of the thieves reached for some of Mr. Gilmore's valuables he jumped from the car.

A leap took him into the bushes which lined the road, and in the darkness he offered no mark for the robbers. Both of the latter were astounded by Mr. Bannon's daring, and hastily gathering together $55 which they got from Mr. Gilmore and a smaller amount taken from the chauffeur they ordered their victims to get out of the car. Then one of them mounted to the driving seat and tried to get a start. He could not manage it and gave it up. The highwaymen then took to the woods themselves.

Meantime Mr. Bannon had run through the woods and fields to the home of William H. Geary, President of the Board of Education here. He rang the bell again and again and banged upon the front door until at last he aroused the household. When he was admitted Mr. Bannon told his story briefly and asked to use the telephone.

Over the wire he summoned the police, and two motorcycle policemen set out instantly. They found Mr. Gilmore and Wehr and Bannon, who had rejoined them by this time. There was no trace of the highwaymen, however.

Mr. Bannon and his party continued to New York. The police are trying to get some trace of the robbers, but have met with no success as yet. Gangs of laborers are at work in several places in this vicinity, and the police think that the highwaymen were foreigners employed in some of these gangs.

GETS BAD CHECKS CASHED.

Bogus Elk Pretends to be W. L. Beck of Lockport.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Aug. 8.—A man who impersonated W. L. Beck, a prominent man of Lockport, N. Y., and well known in the Order of Elks, has passed bad checks in Middletown, Goshen, and Binghamton. In every instance the checks have been for $15, made payable to W. L. Beck, and signed H. B. Cooper. They were drawn on the Genesee Bank of Mount Morris.

It is said that the bad check man found the Elks Lodge card of the real W. L. Beck. In each city he has visited he made the acquaintance of prominent Elks, showed his lodge credentials, and then asked hotel men to cash his checks. He disappeared before the checks were returned. Elk lodges all over the country have been notified to look out for the man.

DEPORT REAL BLUE BEARD.

Russian Stained His Whiskers with Indelible Pencil to Look Young.

When Morris Lukowsky, a seventy-year-old Russian who arrived here a few days ago on the steamship Prinz Friedrich Wilhelm, with little money and no relatives here, heard he might be deported because of his age, he determined to improve his appearance by trying to conceal the ravages of time.

Having no hair dye, he set to work to manufacture some. Getting an indelible pencil he carefully extracted the lead, which he mixed with water and applied the mixture liberally to his long white whiskers, which became a beautiful blue. He neglected to dye his white hair.

The first setback came when a registration officer, after questioning him, ordered him held for examination by a Board of Special Inquiry.

When called before the board he stroked his blue beard in an attempt to impress the officials with his youth, but despite it all he was ordered deported.

LONDON, Aug. 8.—Firemen of the White Star liner Adriatic, numbering over 100, left the ship to-day at Southampton and refused to go back, although the vessel is due to sail on Wednesday for New York with a full list of passengers.

The men allege that they have not been paid for extra work done and demand an additional ten shillings ($2.50) a month. All the men who came out are members of the Seamen's and Firemen's Union, a delegate of which said that doubtless the strike would spread. Firemen, he stated, received $25 per month and head firemen $27.50.

Nothing is known at Southampton to-night as to the attitude of the company with regard to the demands of the men.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Aug. 8.—Several sailors of the battleship fleet are reported critically ill aboard the hospital ship Solace as a result of drinking whisky containing wood alcohol, and two persons who are alleged to have sold them the liquor have been summoned to appear in court to-morrow.

The summonses were the result of a raid conducted by Lieut. Sellars of the Michigan on a house in the outskirts of town, in which thirty-five quarts of whisky were seized.

As yet there have been no deaths from the poisoning, but a number are said to be in a critical state and some may not live.

SARATOGA, Aug. 8.—Rumors were curent to-night that the "lid" had been lifted in some parts of the village. Everything was quiet on the surface, however. Most of the sporting men and clubhouse proprietors have little hope of anything except a "quiet game" this year.

When Canfield removed all gambling apparatus from his clubhouse in the Spring it was a sign that the palmy days were over. There will probably be some playing this Summer, but nothing that can be termed "open," according to persons who are supposed to know the situation.

HARMONY OUTLOOK PLEASES DEMOCRATS

Conservatives and Radicals Express Satisfaction After Conference at Albany.

CANDIDATES NOT DISCUSSED

After Others Are Heard Shepard Committee Will Suggest Platform for State Convention to Adopt.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Aug. 8.—Both conservative and radical Democrats who participated in the harmony conference held here to-day under the auspices of the Democratic State Committee expressed satisfaction with the result when the meeting came to a close just before 7 o'clock this evening.

At that time a small room on the third floor of the Hotel Ten Eyck had contained for nearly five hours a group of Democrats representing views on party questions so divergent that for years they had rent the Democratic organization asunder in each successive campaign. Yet all emerged from the conference declaring that the talk had been of the most friendly nature, and that there was every reason to expect that past differences would be composed in time for the Gubernatorial contest this Fall.

There was one subject, however, that was tabooed at the conference. Candidates were not discussed at all.

"The woods are too full of men who are willing to run for Governor on the Democratic ticket this year," said one of the conferrees in commenting on this omission. On the other hand, there was the fullest discussion of platform principles.

Of course, the conference to-day had no power except to take steps to have the Democratic State Committee make recommendations to the State Convention, but it was pointed out that any recommendations thus made would in all probability be heeded. Before the next meeting of the Democratic State Committee, scheduled to be held at Saratoga on Aug. 19, it was announced, a tentative platform would be drafted presenting as far as possible a reasonable compromise between the views of the conservative and radical elements represented at the conference for submission to the governing body of the Democratic State organization.

Edward M. Shepard of Kings, as Chairman of a sub-committee of three representing the Democratic State Executive Committee, presided at the conference. Here are the participants and the organizations they represented:

DEMOCRATIC LEAGUE—Thomas M. Osborne of Cayuga, William Temple Emmett of New York, Henry W. Killeen of Erie, and Francis A. Willard of Oneida.

PROGRESSIVE DEMOCRATS—A. J. Elias of Erie, Henry George and William Lustgarten of New York, Raymond V. Ingersoll of Kings, John Martin of Richmond, and C. C. Platt of Genesee.

DEMOCRATIC STATE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE—Edward M. Shepard of Kings, John S. Crosby and Richard T. Wilson of New York.

Chairman John A. Dix of the Democratic State Committee had expected to attend the conference, but telegraphed that he had been detained.

Shepard Announces Result.

The conference, which began shortly after 2 o'clock, was held behind closed doors. At its close Mr. Shepard told the newspaper correspondents what the conferrees desired to to make known.

"This conference," said Mr. Shepard, "was held in pursuance of a resolution adopted by the Executive Committeeof the Democratic State Committee authorizing the sub-committee, of which I am Chairman, to meet similar committees from the Democratic League, which is supposed to be composed of rather conservative Democrats, and the progressive Democrats of New York, a body which, as I believe, is composed of Democrats of a less conservative type. The purpose was to consult with them on the question of planks that should go into the Democratic platform with a view of making recommendations on the subject to the Democratic State Convention.

"The Progressive Democrats submitted a declaration of principles, and Mr. Osborne, on behalf of the Democratic League, submitted a draft of the principles adopted at the Saratoga conference last September, when the league movement was launched.

"We who represent the State Committee were authorized merely to receive the views of both sides without committing the party in any way on any question. We will submit these views to the State Executive Committee for submission to the State Committee itself with a view of enabling that body to make some recommendations on the subject to the State Convention, and thus promote harmony among Democrats of different shades of opinion on questions of public importance.

"Every member of the conference stated his views very freely on all questions that came before us. The conversation was friendly, but entirely informal, and not for publication. I may say that it is probable our sub-committee may hold similar conferences in the future with bodies representing other movements."

The last of Mr. Shepard's statement was prompted by an incident that occurred before the meeting. A year ago J. Francis Condon of Utica organized what was known as the Income Tax and Progressive Democratic League of the State of New York. There were about seven participants present at the meeting in this city last September when the league was launched. Nevertheless Mr. Condon, who was the prime factor in the movement, had appointed a committee of about twenty members to attend the conference to-day, though his organization had not been invited to participate. Only two of Mr. Condon's score of prospective conferrees appeared. When they were not admitted they departed, denouncing the harmony promoters generally and Thomas M. Osborne in particular.

Mr. Shepard explained that under the resolution his committee had no power to deal with any except the Democratic League and the Progressive Democrats, but that had Mr. Condon and his conferrees remained he would have been glad to accord them a separate hearing.

"Does your statement apply to committees representing the Hearst movement?" Mr. Shepard was asked.

Opinions of All Welcome.

"We shall be glad to confer with any representative body of citizens," said Mr. Shepard with some degree of emphasis. "The theory is that in preparing its platform the Democratic Party should give a respectful hearing to the opinions of all those who are in sympathy with general party principles."

Mr. Shepard was asked to indicate how he thought a platform could be drafted to satisfy both the conservative element and the ultra-radical, almost populistic, faction represented at the conference to-day.

"Inasmuch as we were not authorized to pass on that question, I should prefer to make no statement on the subject at present," was his reply.

Mr. Shepard expressed himself as very hopeful that the conference would be fruitful in results making for party harmony. These sentiments were echoed by other conferees representing the two organizations at the meeting. This was considered rather surprising, in view of the fact that the declaration of principles submitted by the Progressive Democrats not only called for direct primaries, initiative, and referendum, recall, Federal income tax, election of United States Senators by direct vote, and such latter-day heresies, but it began with a preamble abusing both the other organizations represented in the conference.

The Democratic organization, in this preamble, is declared "not to represent the Democratic voters." The preamble contains this opinion of the Democratic League:

> Conservative Democrats have formed a Democratic League, which has shown its ignorance and contempt of the people's wishes by presenting to the Legislature a fraudulent primary reform bill which would leave the political control in the hands of the bosses and of the interests they represent. A combination of the Democratic machine and the Democratic League will not voluntarily write a reform platform and nominate a ticket that Progressive Democrats can support.

Mr. Elias, Mr Ingersoll, Mr. Lustgarten, and other progressives, before they entered the conference, declared that they would jealously contend for planks voicing the principles contained in this declaration. Nevertheless, they came away declaring themselves satisfied. Mr. Ingersoll said he was actually surprised to find what a little distance separated the progressives and the conservatives.

"I believe that as a result of this conference a tentative platform can be drafted on which all Democrats can unite," said Thomas M. Osborne.

HEARST INFLUENCE GONE.

So Democrats Declare in Discussing Gubernatorial Possibilities.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Aug. 8.—While the subject of candidates was tabooed at the Democratic harmony conference here to-day, some of the participants, as well as other Democrats who had been drawn to the capital by the meeting, talked freely on the subject with their friends in the hotel corridors.

The one salient feature in these talks was the total eclipse of William R. Hearst up State. The radical Democrats, who forced the nomination of Mr. Hearst for Governor in 1906, and who have supported his candidates in State elections since, were, if possible, more vehement than Democrats of less radical views in declaring that they would have no more of Hearst.

"When Mr. Hearst ran for Governor he came within an ace of carrying Erie County," said A. J. Elias, President of the Progressive Democrats. "If he runs this year I doubt whether he will get 100 votes in the entire county. There is no reason why any Democrat should vote for Hearst, no matter how dissatisfied he may be with his own party. Mr. Hearst's views on the important questions of the tariff, ship subsidies, armament and imperialism are essentially those of the most pronounced type of Republicans."

Mr. Elias said the Progressive Democrats had no candidate to advocate.

"We might be compelled to oppose some," he added. "I doubt if any man who bolted Bryan would be acceptable to our organization or to any Democrats of our way of thinking."

In Erie County, Mr. Elias said, the regulars were discussing the availability of National Committeeman Norman E. Mack. There were Sulzer shouters, too, but no organized movement or crystallized sentiment for the New York City Congressman.

"How about Mayor Gaynor; would he be acceptable to the progressives?" Mr. Elias was asked.

"I should think so," he replied. "His doings are an inspiration to Democrats throughout the State, but I have seen no organized movement for Mr. Gaynor in our part of the State."

G. Hyde Clarke, Democratic leader in Otsego County, said people up his way generally looked upon the Gaynor propaganda carried on up-State with the little town of Fishkill-on-the-Hudson as its base of operations as an attempt on the part of Tammany Hall to use Gaynor's name to secure a sufficient number of up-State delegates to control the State Convention.

"If a genuine boom for Mayor Gaynor should develop," said Mr. Clarke, "I believe he would find more enthusiastic support among the Otsego Democrats than almost any other candidate."

The report that Mayor Gaynor has an eye on the Gubernatorial nomination as a steppingstone to the Presidential nomination two years hence found no credence among the Democrats who gathered here to-day. It was generally admitted that if Mr. Gaynor's name should come before the convention with the indorsement of his home organization all other aspirants might as well pack up and go home. A very shrewd local politician gave it as his opinion that this support would not be forthcoming. He said:

"Could Tammany Hall afford to eliminate from the city government the only man it succeeded in electing? Could Tammany Hall afford to turn over the City Hall to President Mitchel of the Board of Aldermen, who was elected as the candidate of the Republican organization and the Hearst Independence League? That does not seem likely unless Mr. Murphy in some way should succeed in making a deal with Mitchel, and that is improbable."

The only aspirants for the Democratic nomination for Governor who have made any headway in securing pledges or promises from delegates already chosen or to be selected, according to up-State reports, are Thomas M. Osborne, Edward M. Shepard, and Representative Havens. Mr. Havens has received the indorsement of Monroe County with fifteen delegates to the convention. Mr. Osborne has received pledges and promises from several counties, according to his friends. The convention in the First Chautauqua District elected delegates last Saturday. These delegates were instructed for Shepard as first choice and Osborne as second.

The Sulzer boom, which has made some noise up State, is declared to be going the way of most midsummer booms.

SOCIALISTS WIN LABOR BODY.

Federation to Take Vote of Chicago Unions on Political Action.

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—Socialists captured the meeting of the Chicago Federation of Labor yesterday. At the close of a three-hour debate they had matters their own way and forced through a motion to submit to a referendum vote of all the unions in the city the question of co-operating with the Socialist Party or forming an independent political labor organization.

The vote must be sent in within sixty days, and the Socialist orators are preparing to invade the union meetings and spread their propaganda.

Car Wheels Cut Locks of His Hair.

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 8.—Charles Lewis of Grantwood, N. Y., fell while running for a train this morning, and his arm was cut off by the wheels of the rear car. Lewis was late for the train, and jumped the iron fence. The train was under way when he tried to board it. He missed the step and fell under the car, his right arm falling across the track, and his head against the rail. Those who saw the accident thought his head had been cut off. He came so close to it that the wheels cut off the rim of his hat and locks of his hair. He was sent to the hospital.

SLAYER OF W. L. RICE IS STILL UNTRACED

Police Stick to Robbery Theory in Case of Cleveland Clubman Found Shot.

FRIENDS THINK OTHERWISE

Man Tells Story of Hearing Whistle After Shots—Caddy Arrested—Cromwell Doubles Reward.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 8.—The body of W. L. Rice, the wealthy clubman, who was shot on Euclid Avenue Friday night, was buried in Fairview Cemetery this afternoon. The police and a score of detectives are busy running down all clues that seem to promise an explanation of the slaying, but to-night the most tangible thing the officers have discovered is a person who says he overheard certain men planning a robbery for last Friday night in the section of Cleveland Heights where the crime occurred. Though relatives and close friends of Rice are now beginning to desert the robbery theory, to which they have clung, the Cleveland Heights police and County Detective Doran still stick to it.

The robbery theory is not credited by the great majority of people who knew Rice. He had made enemies in business, some of whom were bitter enough to make it not unlikely that they might plan to beat him up, at least. Among those who do not give credence to the robbery motive is William Nelson Cromwell, who has brought two detectives from New York with him. Mr. Cromwell says nothing, but it is known that the detectives are here, and they are quietly looking into the actions of men who might have been seeking revenge on Rice. The reward offered for the apprehension of the murderer or murderers was to-day increased to $10,000. The $5,000 reward offered Saturday by E. J. Blandin, Frank H. Ginn, and J. B. Zerbe, associates of Rice, being duplicated by Mr. Cromwell, who was associated with Rice in business.

Pasquale Giuliano, aged 17 years, formerly a caddy at the Euclid Golf Club, is held in the Cleveland Heights jail on a technical charge of trespass until he can be examined by Marshal Brockway. Giuliano was arrested on the golf links Saturday. He had been discharged as caddy about one month ago and ordered to stay off the club grounds. The boy while employed at the club had often caddied for Rice. He said he had never had any trouble with the murdered man. Giuliano's discharge followed a fight with the caddie master. He says he was on his way to ask for his place back Sunday night when he was arrested.

The newest evidence to support the theory that the murder was malicious and carefully prearranged is given by Charles H. Stanley, who lives on Derbyshire Road, 600 feet north of the scene of the crime. It was perhaps 10:35 or 10:40 Friday night, Stanley says, when he heard two revolver shots, fired in quick succession to the south. The report of the shots was so loud Stanley at first thought the shooting was on his own grounds.

"That means business," Stanley remarked to his wife. Hardly had he said this when there came, clearly and distinctly, the sound of a long-drawn whistle. Stanley thought this whistle came from a point east of where the shots had been fired, and believed it to be the signal of a policeman. Mrs. Stanley, however, is positive the whistle was given from the same spot where the shooting occurred. Neither Stanley nor his wife heard any outcry or any preceding altercation or quarrel.

That there was an outcry, however, the police are certain. A woman who lives almost adjoining the spot where Rice was slain maintains that the cry of a man was blotted out by the first sharp crack of the revolver. The stories of others who declare they heard an outcry at the time of the shooting seem to make certain that Rice, struggling for his life, called for help before his assailants shot him down.

Sunday the finding of a sack containing seven dead chickens, hidden in the shrubbery not far from the spot where Rice's body was found, was pounced upon as offering a possible solution. Rice, it was argued, might have surprised the thieves as they were dragging their booty away and have been knocked down and killed in an encounter with them. Others saw in the finding of the dead fowls a "plant" to distract the officers from the real motive and identity of the murderers. The chicken clew, however, was dropped as merely one confusing incident.

Investigation of a story that the dead man's pockets were rifled of valuable papers, although his money and other valuables were untouched, revealed little basis for such belief. Rice carried no papers of such importance as to induce any one to murder him for them.

VANDERBILT SETTLES SUITS.

Owner of Biltmore Agrees to Pay Claims of His ex-Forester.

Special to The New York Times.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Aug. 8.—George W. Vanderbilt, owner of the Biltmore estate, has settled out of court two damage suits which were brought against him by Dr. Charles A. Schenck, the former forester of Vanderbilt's vast forest preserves. While the formal orders withdrawing the suits which were signed to-day in court do not tell the amount, it is known that the sum paid Dr. Schenck will aggregate from $12,000 to $15,000.

The litigation followed the dismissal of Dr. Schenck by Mr. Vanderbilt, about eighteen months ago, following a lease by Dr. Schenck to a number of Chicago sporting men of the fishing and hunting privileges of the estate. This Mr. Vanderbilt thought was an invasion of his prerogative and an assumption of power to which the forester had no right. The dismissal followed forthwith, with the damage suit as a consequence.

Mr. Vanderbilt quietly repudiated the lease made by Schenck. One of the suits in which Schenck was plaintiff asked for $8,000 back salary and $2,500 as a balance due on some lumber accounts, while the second suit involved insurance contracts. Mr. Vanderbilt, it is said, did not care to appear in court and so settled outside. Schenck is a German.

Francis Hovey Stoddard was appointed Dean of the College of Arts and Pure Science at a special meeting yesterday of the Council of New York University, to fill the vacancy caused by the death, some time ago, of Prof. Henry M. Baird. He will enter upon his duties in September.

Prof. Stoddard, who was born in Middlebury, Vt., in 1847, ranks as senior professor of the college Faculty, having come to the university from California in 1887. He was graduated from Amherst in 1869, and took his A. M. at that institution. He received his Ph. D. at the University of Pennsylvania. He was a student at Oxford from 1884 to 1886, and instructor in the University of California from 1886 to 1888. Since 1888 he has been Professor of English Literature in New York University. He is the author of many works on English literature, among them "The Modern Novel," "Miracle Plays and Mysteries," and "The Evolution of the English Novel."

THE DELAWARE FAST.

Makes 21½ Knots on Her Test Under Forced Draught.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Official reports from the speed trial of the new battleship Delaware, received at the Navy Department to-day, are that the ship exceeded her contract speed on all the tests.

The Delaware averaged 21½ knots an hour for four consecutive hours under forced draught and 19 knots an hour for twenty-four consecutive hours at normal.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 8.—The new battleship Delaware, returned from her trial trip along the coast to the Bradford Coaling Station to-night, with one of the happiest crews in the service over the showing made by the big fighter. In addition to the records reported from Washington to-day it was learned to-night that the ship held one satisfactory test of steaming 20 knots an hour for twenty-four hours.

Capt. Gove expressed his keen pleasure not only at the cruising ability of his ship but with her fighting qualities. All her turret guns were discharged simultaneously and then the whole battery of ten and twelve inch guns was let go at once. This supreme test of a battleship's "punching power" the new dreadnought met excellently, wireless reports said to-night. She rolled very little and made altogether a remarkably steady fighting platform. She proved herself a good sea boat in rough water. After taking on coal she will take a shaking down cruise for ship and men along the New England Coast.

TOWN SITE TO BE SOLD.

Surrogate Permits Corbin Estate to Dispose of Arkansas Land.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., Aug. 8.—Surrogate Nicoll to-day signed an order permitting the Austin Corbin estate to dispose of land at Sunnyside, Ark. The late President of the Long Island Railroad conceived the idea of building a town in Arkansas which he named Sunnyside. Since his death the property has been a white elephant to the executors.

A company was formed to manage it, the estate taking $206,000 of the $300,000 moragage bonds, and many schemes have been tried to make the property pay. Lately it has been used as a cotton plantation and enough money was obtained to pay two years' interest. A purchaser willing to give $200,000 for the tract has been found.

ANOTHER ESTRADA VICTORY.

San Ubaldo Taken—Madriz Force Said to Have Lost Many Killed.

BLUEFIELDS, Aug. 8.—Gen. Mena reported to-day that San Ubaldo, on the north coast of Lake Nicaragua, had been taken by the insurgents under Gens. Macis and Saenz. Two assaults were made, one upon the Government's position at San José and the other upon the City of San Ubaldo itself.

The insurgents encountered the remnants of the Government troops, which had gathered at that point from throughout the department of Chontales. Gen. Mena reports that a great quantity of provisions, rifles, and ammunition was captured, and that the enemy lost many killed. The losses among the attacking force were small. Gen. Mena adds:

"With this victory we have the whole Department of Chontales in our hands, and a part of the Department of Managua is also now dominated by our friends."

MINE LAYING IN QUICK TIME.

Idaho's Crew Plants Twelve Mines in Three Minutes, Twenty-five Seconds.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Aug. 8.—Mine planting records were assailed as enthusiastically to-day by the battleships of the Atlantic fleet as the big gun records have been. While no official figures have been made public, it is understood that so far the Idaho leads, and that her crew made up and planted twelve mines in three minutes and twenty-five seconds. Last year there was considerable pride when the same test was performed in 16 minutes.

To-morrow some of the boats will go on the torpedo station, while the Vermont will be tested on the submarine bell system. This afternoon the Connecticut and the Nebraska were satisfactorily tested in this direction.

CUT DOWN PARK TREES.

Two Brothers Arrested as They Carted Them from Van Cortlandt Woods.

For two weeks the police of the Kingsbridge Station have been on the alert for persons who have been cutting down young oak trees in Van Cortlandt Park and carting them away. Last night Mounted Patrolman Hayden of that station appeared in the Night Court with John and Frank Palos, brothers, of 149 Oark Street, Yonkers.

The patrolman testified to the ruthless way the park trees had been sacrificed and said that on previous occasions the wagon trail of the destroyers had been followed toward Yonkers. He said last night from a place of concealment he saw the Palos brothers drive into the park and cut down a number of the young oaks. They piled the trees upon a wagon and were well out of the park when arrested, the policeman declared.

The prisoners, when questioned by Magistrate Murphy, pleaded guilty. They said they didn't know it was unlawful to take the trees, and assured the court that they would not commit the offense a second time. The brothers were fined $5 each.

YOUNG BRADFORD A SUICIDE.

Gamaliel, 3d, Shoots Himself In Hotel—Young Woman Refused to Wed Him.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 8.—Following the example set by his chum Gamaliel Bradford, third, a Harvard graduate and Boston banker, committed suicide by shooting in the Kendall Hotel, at South Framingham, about 10:30 this morning. Bradford died four hours later at the Framingham Hospital. Three years ago his classmate, John Brooks, went to a hotel in Boston and hired a room. He shot himself and died a few days later in the Relief Hospital.

It was learned that a young woman of Great Barrington, to whom Bradford had been paying attention during the past few months, had refused to marry him, and had told him she was engaged to marry another man. It is believed this led him to suicide. Mr. Bradford left his home this morning ostensibly to go to Boston, where he was employed in the banking house of N. W. Harris & Co. Instead he went to the Hotel Kendall, where he registered in his own name. He told the clerk, John Hogan, he was very tired, and wanted a room where he could sleep. He was assigned to one on the second floor. When the clerk showed him his room he asked Mr. Bradford if he thought the noise would bother him. Bradford replied that he did not think anything would trouble him.

In about fifteen minutes the clerk heard four pistol shots. He rushed to Bradford's room and found the door locked. When it was broken open Bradford was lying, face downward, on the bed. He was unconscious, and the revolver lay at his side. Of the four shots he had fired, the first three had missed. On the dressing table the clerk found a note reading: "Notify S. N. W. Harris, 35 Federal Street, Boston."

Doctors were called and Bradford was rushed to the Framingham Hospital. His father, Gamaliel Bradford, second, of Wellesley Hills was notified, and went immediately to the hospital.

Gamaliel Bradford was 22 years old, and was graduated from the Wellesley High School in 1906. When he was at High School he took a prominent part in athletics, being manager of several teams. He entered Harvard and completed his four-year course in three years, with honors. His father, Gamaliel Bradford, Jr., is a writer, and his grandfather, Gamaliel Bradford, is the well-known anti-imperialist, and has been a candidate for Governor. Gamaliel Bradford, third, lived with his parents on Worcester Street, Wellesley Hills.

TREASURY RECEIPTS INCREASE $75,000,000

Statement for First Year of Payne-Aldrich Act Shows Surplus of $20,000,000.

CUSTOMS UP $28,400,000

Corporation Tax Yields $27,000,000 and Internal Revenue Increases $25,000,000—Miscellaneous $5,500,000 Less.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The Treasury Department gave out a statement to-day showing for the first time the actual workings of the Payne-Aldrich law for an entire year. The year ran from Aug. 6, 1909, the day after its enactment, to Aug. 6, 1910, and the figures of the Treasury statement show for this period a surplus of ordinary receipts over ordinary disbursements of $20,214,028.99.

The receipts, of course, include many items besides the customs. The ordinary receipts of the Treasury for the year designated include the entirely new item of the corporation tax, which amounts to $27,090,934.18. There is also the internal revenue, amounting this year to $271,120,142.10, an increase of $24,907,499 over the year preceding. These two items make an increase in revenues, aside from the tariff, of $52,000,000. Miscellaneous receipts this year fell off about $5,500,000, still leaving, however, an increase in total revenues aside from the customs of $46,500,000. The Treasury statement says:

"The ordinary receipts for the first full year of the new tariff law were greater by almost $15,000,000 than the ordinary receipts during the fiscal year 1907, when the total was $663,125,659.92. And the fiscal year 1907 was the banner year in point of receipts, its total having exceeded that of any other year in the history of the Government by almost $60,000,000. Hence the Payne-Aldrich law produced in its first year a revenue greater by $75,000,000 than the sum collected in any other year of our National life, except the year 1907. It will be observed that whereas there was a deficit of $58,734,955 in the ordinary operations of the Government in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1909, there was a surplus in the year ended last Saturday of more than $20,000,000."

The increase in customs receipts of $28,400,000 for the first year of the new tariff cannot be taken as a fair indication of the revenue-producing qualities of the act. From the day it became certain that the bill would be passed until all trade agreements with foreign Governments were finally abrogated there was a tremendous rush on the part of importers to get goods into the country before the higher rates became effective.

As these agreements lasted for many months after the new law went into effect, the figures for the first year of the new tariff are increased by the artifical stimulus supplied by the desire of importers to lay in a large stock. Their imports, of course, paid duty under the old agreements, unaffected by the new law, and came into the country really in an effort to avoid the new law.

DESERTED SHIP FOR A CHILD.

French Sailor Couldn't Bear to Leave Her Nor She to Have Him Go.

Locked up in the detention room at Ellis Island is Robert Simon, a young Frenchman, who deserted his ship because of his fondness for a pretty six-year-old child. He was a steward on the French Liner Lorraine. Every time his ship arrived here Simon spent the week before she sailed again at the home of Mrs. Mary Lang, in West 126th Street. He had great fun playing with Georgette, the little granddaughter of Mrs. Lang. He and the child were inseparable playmates. The little girl always cried bitterly when it came time for Simon to sail away.

So Simon determined to give up following the sea. As men on the French liners sign for a round trip and must be discharged at Havre, Simon left his vessel some months ago. Mrs. Lang was glad to have him stop ashore and little Georgette was delighted. Simon obtained employment as a waiter in the Café Brevoort. He might have been there yet had not some one informed the immigration authorities. A few days ago an Inspector arrested him while he was at work and took him to Ellis Island.

His little playmate has been faithful in visiting him, and she wept when told that it had been decided that Simon must go back to France. He had appealed his case to Washington, and he told Georgette that he believed the Government would not consider him so bad and would allow him to go home with her in a few days.

NEW GRAFT HUNT IN QUEENS.

Instigated by Weeks, Flushing Business Men Are Leading It.

The Business Men's Association of Flushing is to have an investigation of its own into public affairs in the Borough of Queens, this committee having been appointed yesterday to make the inquiry: Former Street Cleaning Commissioner Foster Crowell, the Rev. Clarence Rexford Raymond of the First Congregational Church of Flushing, Walter B. Lawrence, former Governor of the New York Stock Exchange; C. G. Norman, a large manufacturer and ex-member of the New York Building Trades Council; Gilbert W. Roberts, an attorney. Clarence M. Lowes, President of the association, and Treasurer of the Dime Savings Bank in Brooklyn, and William B. Parsons, an attorney, will act as ex-officio members.

Following a resolution passed at a special meeting of the association this committee is to "obtain information to enable the Business Men's Association to act with intelligence and effect toward improvement in borough administrative conditions and to report with its recommendations to the association at a special meeting to be called by the Chair."

This action was brought about by Henry T. Weeks, Foreman of the Grand Jury which returned indictments against the grafters.

BURIED THE WRONG MAN.

Woman Threatens to Sue the City for the Mistake of a Clerk.

An indignant woman in Los Angeles, Mrs. M. G. Donnelly, has threatened to bring suit unless the City of New York refunds the money she spent in burying the body of a man which, through the mistake of a city clerk, she thought was that of her brother.

On June 19 last John Doyle, Mrs. Donnelly's brother, was admitted to the City Home. He was discharged on July 18. Another John Doyle died in the City Home on July 8. This John Doyle had no friends or relatives.

Mrs. Donnelly was notified that her brother was dead, and she sent money to an undertaker to inter the body in Calvary Cemetery.

On July 31 Mrs. Donnelly received a letter from her brother stating that he had been in the City Home, but was out again. Then she wrote threatening to sue.

Deputy Commissioner of Charities Goodwin said he would trace the mistake to the person who had made it. Mrs. Donnelly did not give the address of her brother, and as soon as the department gets it he will be locked up. Mrs. Donnelly spent $200 to bury the wrong man.

Colorado Court's Decision Favors Hollingsworth's Grub-Stake Claim.

Special to The New York Times.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Aug. 8.—Despite the decision of District Judge W. S. Morris this morning in the Hollingsworth-Tuft suit involving immensely valuable mining properties in the State of Sonora, Mexico, the controversy is far from ended. Judge Morris ruled that a partnership had been formed between Dr. J. G. Hollingsworth, a prominent Kansas City dentist, and Edward R. Tufts, now a wealthy New Yorker, in 1898, that Hollingsworth had grubstaked Tufts, and that he is entitled to a half interest in all the properties discovered by Tufts as the result of the financial aid given by Hollingsworth. O. E. Collins of this city was appointed referee and the next fight will take place when he hears evidence to determine how much of the mining property was discovered as a result of the grubstaking.

According to L. W. Cunningham, attorney for Tufts, the defendant will claim that none of the property was discovered by Tufts through the financial aid of Hollingsworth. On the other hand, the plaintiff will claim that all of the copper, gold, and silver mines which have made Tufts a millionaire come under the court's ruling of this morning, and that Tufts must pay over one-half of the profits as well as give a half interest in the properties.

The suit was filed in the local district court in May, 1908, and after being heard a few months ago was taken under advisement by the court. Tufts contends that the trip which he made to Mexico, after being grubstaked by Hollingsworth, was fruitless, and that it was many years afterward that he located the paying claims. Shortly after his first trip he returned to the East and interested Thomas W. Lawson and others in Mexican mining properties. Mining claims aggregating 400,000 square miles of land were bought up, the principal company being the Grand Union Mining Company, of which Mr. Tufts is President. The property involved is said to be worth upward of $50,000,000.

KIDNAPS HIS OWN CHILD.

R. E. Hall, a New Yorker, Snatches Babe from Wife and Flees.

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Texas, Aug. 8.—Rushing into the dining room of the Cloudcroft Lodge, at Cloudcroft, N. M., in the Sacramento mountains, R. E. Hall of New York snatched his baby daughter from its mother, Mrs. Faith McCormick Hall of Cincinnati, and boarding the train escaped down the mountain with the baby. Mrs. Hall followed him on horseback, but was unable to overtake the train. Hall and his wife, who is the daughter of a Cincinnati manufacturer, were separated while Hall was operating on the New York Exchange.

He came to Cloudcroft recently to persuade his wife to return with him, but she declared her intention of getting a divorce and marrying Leo Stills, son of the President of the Pennsylvania Life Insurance Company, who is spending the Summer at the resort.

Mrs. Hall has wired here and to Cincinnati to have legal proceedings brought against Hall to recover the child.

HURT AUTOIST UNIDENTIFIED.

Hides His Name In Ossining Hospital—Woman Leaves Him.

OSSINING, N. Y., Aug. 8.—The hospital authorities here refused to-day to give the name of the man who was injured in an automobile accident yesterday. Both of his legs were broken. As the mishap occurred in the town of Yorktown the case is not within the judisdiction of the police here. The automobile bears the new license plates, with the number 24,324 N. Y. That is said to be the registered number of a machine beloning to Theodore H. Price of 168 West Fifty-eighth Street, Manhattan, a cotton operator.

The auto is said to have been making about fifty miles an hour when the smashing occurred at Merritt's Corners, where the car crashed into an electric-light pole. The woman who was in the car escaped with light bruises. She went back to Manhattan.

Asked why he didn't wish his name made public, especially as the secrecy was annoying to the hospital, the patient said that he had hired a room, was paying for spcial attention, and it was nobody's business why he didn't care to be known

He is a man about 40 years of age and speaks with a slight foreign accent or lisp. The assertion credited to Mr. Price that the number given of the car must be an error is not well founded. If Mr. Price has that number on his Ford car it is duplicated here on the wrecked National.

FIND THEIR FLAT ROBBED.

Burglars Pay the Glucks a Visit In the Family's Absence.

Jacob Gluck, a real estate owner and operator, and his bride of two months returned at 11 o'clock last night to their apartment on the third floor of Pavanozza Court, at 152d Street and Broadway, after having been absent all day. As they alighted from the elevator Mr. Gluck noticed what appeared to be the marks of a jimmy on the door. He took hold of the doorknob and found that the door was unlocked.

Instead of entering the apartment Mr. and Mrs. Gluck hurried to the West 152d Street Station, at the corner of Amsterdam Avenue, a block away. A policeman was sent back with him, and the two men entered the Gluck apartment.

They found that the place had been ransacked, everything being in disorder, even to the pictures on the walls, many of which were turned around as though the burglars had moved them to search for a wall safe such as some apartments are squipped with.

Mr. Gluck said later that it was impossible for him to tell what had been taken. He missed a large Gladstone bag, and presumes that the burglars packed it with loot before leaving the apartment. There were many wedding presents in the apartment, some of them of much value.

A window in the rear opening on a fire escape was found open, and it is supposed that the intruders were disturbed at work by the noise Mr. Gluck made in trying the front door and fled by way of the fire escape. None of the hallboys in the house recall having seen any strangers enter the place, and they are sure that no strangers were taken up by them on the elevator.

OBJECTS TO YONKERS FARE.

Mayor Lennon Complains to Utilities Board Against New York Central.

A complaint in behalf of the City of Yonkers, prepared at the instance of Mayor James T. Lennon, protesting against the increase in commutation rates on the New York Central lines passing through Yonkers, was filed with the up-State Public Service Commission yesterday.

The complaint calls attention to the fact that during all the years of existence of the Harlem Railroad and its successor, the New York Central, there was no increase in the rates of fare to Yonkers until the Public Service Commission was created by law in 1907. It is then pointed out that since 1907 there have been no less than four increases tolerated by the Public Service Board, to wit, two increases in the single fare and excursion rates and two increases in the commutation and fifty-trip rates.

Away back in 1907, the complaint further alleges, protests were made and complaints filed with the commission in behalf of the City of Yonkers, but no action has ever been taken by the commission.

Yonkers has a population of over 80,000 and has far more commuters affected by the increased rates than any other locality in the Hudson River Valley. Prior to 1907 the commutation rate between New York and Yonkers on the New York Central was $5.10. Then it was raised to $5.90, and in July was increased to $6.75. There were similar increases affecting Yonkers commuters on the Putnam & Harlem Railroad.

THREATENS WOMAN AND DEMANDS $2,000

Andrew Fitzpatrick Wrote Mrs. C. S. Wadsworth He Would Blow Up Her Middletown House.

ARRESTED BY DECOY PACKAGE

Missive Placed in a Cannon, as Accused Requested, and Policemen Were on Watch When He Came.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Aug. 8.—Andrew Fitzpatrick, aged 60 years, has been arrested and will be arraigned before the City Court to-morrow morning charged with an atempt to extort money from Mrs. Clarence S. Wadsworth, wife of one of Middletown's wealthiest and most prominent citizens, by a threat to blow up her residence with dynamite if $2,000 was not paid him.

Three letters were received by Mrs. Wadsworth. The first one demanded $2,000; in the last one the amount was reduced to $200. The letters were all neatly written, but unsigned. They were mailed at the local Post Office. The last letter was the most explicit of the three, reading as follows: "Unless you place $2,000 in the cannon on South Green before Sunday morning I will blow your house up, even if it is built of iron."

Chief of Police Inglis, who was investigating the case, when shown this last letter advised the Wadsworth family to place a decoy package in the cannon. This was done and several officers were stationed nearby. When Fitzpatrick came to remove the package he was arrested and locked up at Police Headquarters. At the time of the arrest Fitzpatrick was accompanied by his son, Andrew, Jr., and he, too, was arrested, but as yet the authorities are only holding him on a charge of intoxication, being in doubt as to whether he was implicated in the attempt to blackmail or not.

Both Fitzpatrick and his son refuse to talk of the affair. The elder Fitzpatrick has always borne a good reputation in this city, where he has lived many years. He is a blacksmith by trade. He evidently appreciates the seriousness of the charge against him, as he appeared worn and haggard to-day. His son is 21 years of age and came home on Saturday from New London, where he is employed. The two were released on bonds to-day, the bail being fixed at $1,000 in the father's case and at $100 for the son. The bonds were furnished by Thomas F. Griffin, the local Democratic leader.

Mrs. Wadsworth, to whom the Black Hand letters were sent, lives with her husband and two children in the old Wadsworth homestead on Washington Street here. She is the daughter of E. K. Hubbard, the President of the Russell Manufacturing Company, a concern that employs 2,000 hands and provides the chief industry of the town. His brother, E. Kent Hubbard, Jr., was the Democratic candidate for Lieutenant Governor several years ago, and has been mentioned in that connection this year. Besides their home here the Wadsworths maintain a residence in New York City and in Bar Harbor. Mr. Wadsworth is reputed to be the wealthiest man in Middlesex County. Recently he purchased a large estate near here and is building a country home on it.

It was thought at first that the letters were sent by some workman who had been discharged by Mr. Wadsworth, but the latter says Fitzpatrick is an entire stranger to him.

Mrs. Wadsworth has just recovered from an attack of typhoid fever and the affair has completely unnerved her.

The Wadsworths live the greater part of the year at Middletown, and are rarely seen at the large brownstone house at 17 East Forty-first Street, which they give as their New York address. Mr. Wadsworth is a Harvard man of the class of 1896. His considerable means are invested to a great extent in real estate. His New York holdings are for the most part in the business sections, intrusted to the care of Stephen H. Tying of 41 Union Square, his business adviser.

Mr. Wadsworth is a Captain in the Twelfth Regiment, now in camp at Pine Plain. He is a member of the Union, Knickerbocker, and Players' Clubs, and he and his wife are often seen lunching at the Colony Club when in town. They have two boys, who are in the private tutor stage of their education.

PADRONE LEVIES ON ITALIANS.

Gary Steel Workers Pay $100,000 Yearly to Secret Society.

Special to The New York Times.

GARY, Ind., Aug. 8.—It was definitely learned to-day that a system of padronage, as bad as any discovered in America, has existed for months among the foreign workmen of the Indiana Steel Company, and that the men have been mulcted by foremen and other bosses in Chicago to the extent of $100,000 a year. The Gary police, who have known of the affair for some time, have vainly sought until recently to arrest the leader of the secret society conducting the system, but have been unable to lay their hands on him. Now they feel his capture is near.

The recent arrest of two timekeepers, a foreman, and a Superintendent of the carpenters' department of the Indiana Steel Company reveals the fact that wholesale frauds have been perpetrated both upon the company and upon the foreigners who have been employed in the mills, particularly Italian laborers. The padrone organization is as extensive as the Mafia, and has agents in Chicago, Gary, and in New York City. To effect the arrest of the leader, officials of the steel company have promised the Gary detectives large rewards, including a house and lot.

It is known that the Italian foremen in the mills have been in collusion with the padrones. When men of this nationality have applied to the foremen in Gary for work they have been referred to Chicago. Upon arrival there they have been informed that they would receive employment upon the payment of an initiatory fee of $5 and that they would be expected to contribute a like amount each pay day.

For some time the men thus robbed have endeavored to get redress, but have been afraid to refuse to pay the monthly amounts, because those who did so have, without exception, been discharged.

Fire Truck Hits a Pile of Bricks.

A hook and ladder truck on the way to a fire last night ran into a pile of bricks in front of a new apartment house going up at 130 West Forty-seventh St. One of the back wheels went up over the bricks, plowed through the side of a pile of dirt, and finished up wedged between two slabs of marble. A quarter of an hour's hard work got the truck loose. Neither the driver nor his horses were injured.

KNIGHTS TEMPLARS MEET IN CHICAGO

The City Is Bright with Scarlet-Crossed Chapeau and Glistening White Plumes.

EARL OF EUSTON WELCOMED

Conclave Attracts 500,000 Guests—To-day 30,000 Knights In Full Uniform Will Parade.

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—Keen rivalry to secure the Knights Templars' conclave of 1913 developed to-day as delegation after delegation to the present meeting arrived. Los Angeles, Denver, New Orleans, Atlantic City, and Atlanta are actively seeking the honor.

All are keeping open house. The Californians arrived on a special train, and to attract attention to their invitation will distribute 2,000 boxes of oranges at a reception to be given on Wednesday night. Mayor Behrman of New Orleans leads the fight for that city. The New Orleans headquarters is decorated with cane, corn, sheaves of rice, and Spanish moss. The Denver delegation fairly seeths with enthusiasm, and points to its entertainment of the Democratic National Convention delegates as a sample of what the city can do. Atlantic City includes the entertaining of large crowds among its routine of business affairs, the same being loudly proclaimed. Atlanta claims to be the "New South" in epitome, with all the hospitality of a section which prides itself on caring for its guests.

The great display freature of the conclave will be seen to-morrow, when the Knights hold their parade. It is calculated that 30,000 will be in line.

The Right Hon. Henry James Earl of Euston, "Most Eminent Supreme Pro-Grand Master of the Great Priories of the Knights Templars of England and Wales," &c., arrived here to-day to attend the thirty-first conclave of the order in the United States. In the Earl's party were Lord Athlumney, Past Grand Constable of the Priories; John Fergus, the yacht builder, Henry Homer, aid de camp to the Earl of Euston; R. Newton Crane, Past Grand Herald of the Great Preceptory of England and Wales, and Thomas Frazer, Great Marshal of England.

Failure of trains to arrive on schedule time make the task of the escort committees difficult, and some delegations were left to their own devices temporarily. But there was no mistake about meeting the Earl and party. An escort of 200 local Knights under command of Eminent Sir Benjamin S. Wilson, met the distinguished delegation from abroad. They were taken to the Congress Hotel, where Acting Grand Master Melish and the Earl cordially greeted each other.

To-day was the real beginning of Knight Templar week in Chicago. Many thousands of Knights are assembling arrayed in full uniform. Workmen at dawn turned over the refurbishing and gaudily arrayed city to the waiting and wondering throngs, and all day long, as yesterday, the tread of marching feet, the flash of light on scarlet crossed chapeau and cross-hilted sword and the waving lines of glistening white plumes told of the coming of additional guests.

The guests to-day were estimated to number 500,000.

Keyes and Smith Box a Draw.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 8.—"Cy" Smith of West Hoboken and Bert Keyes of New York went ten fast rounds to a draw before the Knickerbocker Athletic Club here to-night. Smith was the aggressor from start to finish, but Keyes landed cleaner blows. Smith seemed to relish right and left hand swings to the jaw and stomach, and kept boring in. He wanted to rough it, but Keyes kept preventing him by holding in the clinches.

SAYS CREAGER ASKED MONEY OF M'MURRAY

Hamon Declares Accusing Congressman Demanded Large Sums in Guise of Loans.

INDIANS TIRED OF DELAY

Choctaws Tell Committee They Would Have Given More Than 10 Per Cent. to Get Land Sold.

McALESTER, Okla., Aug. 8.—Jake L. Hamon testified to-day before the Congressional committee investigating the Indian land scandals that Congressman C. E. Creager of Oklahoma had solicited money from J. F. McMurray during the pendency in Congress of a bill which had been drawn up by McMurray, and which Creager had introduced.

Hamon is the man named by Senator Gore as having offered him a bribe of $25,000 to $50,000 to withdraw his opposition to the McMurray contracts. Congressman Creager has also testified that Hamon suggested to him that he might obtain an interest in the contracts by favoring their approval.

The bill referred to by Hamon to-day provided for the sale of the surface lands to private individuals and the mineral wealth to the Government. Although the McMurray contracts were not referred to in it the bill, Hamon said, was so framed that McMurray might have been enabled to put in a claim for the attorneys' fees. The measure, however, was not passed.

"I want Mr. Creager recalled to the stand to answer these charges," said Hamon. "I want him to explain why, just after he introduced that bill, he went to McMurray and under the guise of loans demanded from McMurray large sums of money. I think it will throw considerable light on the Indian land situation at Washington if Creager is recalled and asked about his repeated demands for money from McMurray."

Chairman Burke said he did not believe Creager could properly be recalled, as he had already been excused as a witness. Then Hamon demanded the privilege of calling other witnesses to prove his charges. The demand was taken under advisement by the committee.

Hamon, in his testimony, explained his presence in Washington at the time referred to in the Gore charges as being connected with Gov. Haskell's indictment in the Muskogee town lot cases, and having nothing to do with the McMurray contracts. C. B. Stewart testified that he was attorney for Gov. Haskell, and that he had not heard of Hamon's being so employed.

A number of Indians testified to-day that they had signed the McMurray contracts because they had become impatient with the Government. They said they had concluded that they must employ attorneys to fight the Government in order to secure the money that had been promised. That McMurray's agents had gone among the Indians and asked them to sign the contracts and to send telegrams to President Taft urging him to approve them, was the burden of most of the Indians' testimony.

"We have become used to the 10 per cent. idea," declared Parke Anderson, a Choctaw. "Most of the Indians in this State have to pay 10 per cent. on all debts and borrowed money. We have become so dependent on attorneys that they have a hand in almost everything we do."

"Do you mean to say that to sell your land you were willing to give McMurray $3,000,000, or enough to hire all the lawyers in Oklahoma?" asked Congressman C. B. Miller.

"Yes; we have waited so long for the Government to act that we would give 25 per cent. if that would cause a quick sale. We need the money to develop the land on which we live."

It was estimated by C. C. Choate, another Choctaw, that if his land was sold through the McMurray contracts he would receive $5,000 with a reduction of $500 in fees.

"Now," he said, "I would rather have $4,500 while I am living than wait until the Government acts and get $5,000 when I'm dead."

"Why is it that, while you have attorneys paid on a regular salary and approved of by the Government, you employ special attorneys?"

"Because our regular attorneys get paid whether they work or not, while the special attorneys work on a contingent fee."

A singular appearance was presented by Charles Laflore, a Choctaw, who as Captain of Police has figured in many a battle of the plains. He has only one eye, three of his fingers have been shot off, and his body is covered with bullet wounds. Asked about the activity of McMurray's agents, he said he had been approached by George W. Scott, acting for McMurray, and had been induced to sign a telegram to Richard C. Adams of Washington, an attorney. The substance of the telegram was that the Indians approved the contracts and it asked Adams to call on President Taft and urge him to sell the land without delay.

"Who did you think Adams was?"

"Why, I thought he was somebody with powerful influence, who could go to the President and to Congress and tell them what we wanted. We were not so anxious to give up 10 per cent., but we thought it would be better to sell on that basis than not to get anything at all. We were in the dark as to how matters stood at Washington, but we thought Adams would be able to fix things all right."

W. T. Hollman, a Choctaw, testified that he had been employed by McMurray to go out among the Oklahoma Indians and induce them to sign the documents. Hollman said he got $1 a head for securing contracts apointing McMurray to act in tax cases. In this way McMurray obtained 10,000 contracts to sell land.

In a statement to the committee and without going on the stand, McMurray declared to-day that the contracts came to him originally against his desire. He said the Indians at a war council had demonstrated their impatience with the Government's delay in selling the land and had called on him to take up the matter on a 10 per cent. commission, which he did with reluctance. McMurray will go on the stand later.

TO RECLAIM INDIAN LANDS.

Department of Justice Preparing to Fight Those Exploiting Them.

BEVERLY, Mass., Aug. 8.—A vigorous prosecution to reclaim title to a vast amount of Indian land in Oklahoma is being planned by the Department of Justice for the coming Autumn. One of the principal actions in prospect is to overcome the effect of an ingenious "joker" which was written into the Indian Appropriation bill just before that measure was handed to the President for his signature. The "joker" was discovered by Solicitor General Bowers, but it was agreed between the President and Mr. Bowers that it was too late to send the bill back to Congress, and that a means of offsetting the "joker" could be devised.

This "joker," which is now a law, grants the right of appeal to the United States Supreme Court in a case involving over 20,000 Indian contracts, which had been decided in favor of the Government by the Circuit Court of Appeals of the Eighth Circuit. As the matter had been taken into the Circuit Court on a demurrer the defendants had no right of appeal to the Supreme Court before the "joker" was enacted.

It is the belief of the Government officials that the authority to appeal was sought and secured, not with any idea that the case might be won in the court of final resort, but simply to obtain a delay of a year or eighteen months. This belief is based on the fact that the lands involved in this case are practically all coal and oil lands, and every day that passes they are being stripped of these natural resources as fast as the coal can be mined and the oil pumped. A delay of a year and a half means millions of dollars to the claimants.

The plan to offset this move by the possessors of the land is to apply to the United States Court in Oklahoma for a receiver for the lands just as soon as the Autumn term begins. In this way the court will exercise full control over all the operations and secure the benefits to the litigants finally successful.

In investigating the contracts by which it is claimed the Indians have been defrauded of lands granted to them by the Government, it is said that the Department of Justice officers have unearthed a startling condition of affairs involving many well-known persons, which will come out fully when the cases are heard. The Government is fighting the cases hard for the Indians, and once the lands are reclaimed it is proposed to throw further protection about them if Congress can be prevailed upon to do so.

The defendants in some of the actions that are pending have offered unique legal propositions to be met by the Government. In the first place, they claim that, having granted the land to Indians, the Government has not the constitutional right to restrict this land. The Court of Appeals decided against this contention, however.

It is now claimed in another case that the Indians have become citizens of the State, and that Congress has no right to act respecting them.

The Government is preparing a novel answer to this suit. It will be contended that while the Indians may have gained the right of citizenship under the United States they do not become citizens under the Fourteenth Amendment, providing that persons born in and under the jurisdiction of the United States, or naturalized, are citizens of the United States and of the State in which they reside. It will be declared that the Indians were not born under the jurisdiction of the United States, but under their tribal jurisdiction. The United States deals with the tribes, but never with the individuals.

President Taft has told several of his callers recently that he was fully acquainted with Vice President Sherman's attitude as to the Indian contract cases involved in the pending Oklahoma investigation and that he knew the Vice President to be opposed to allowing the big fees to attorneys in connection with which the alleged attempt at bribery occurred.

CREAGER DID SEEK LOAN,

But Dropped Negotiations When Question of Propriety Was Raised.

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Aug. 8.—In reply to the charges made by Jake L. Hamon at McAlester to-day, that Congressman C. E. Creager had attempted, under the guise of loans, to obtain $4,000 from J. F. McMurray, Mr. Creager to-night gave out the following statement:

"I have just written a letter to Congressman Burke in reply to the charges made against me by Mr. Hamon this afternoon, in which I am explaining the circumstances in detail and advising him that if necessary I will be glad to go before the committee and answer any questions that may be asked in regard to the matter.

"There is some foundation for the statement of Mr. Hamon, but he must have stated the case in an entirely different manner than it was given to him by McMurray.

"Before leaving Muskogee in November I tried to trade certain property for eighty acres of farm land, worth $10,000, agreeing to pay the difference, which amounted to $4,000. I found that I could not meet the requirements of the transaction, so I made application to the State for a loan from the school fund. In December, after my arrival at Washington, I received a letter from Guthrie denying my request.

"Mr. McMurray happened to be in my office at this time, and I explained the situation to him and asked if he knew where I could get the money. He replied that if he had the money on hand he would be glad to make the loan himself.

"A few days later McMurray told me that he had the necessary money and could make the loan, but questioned the propriety of our entering into a deal of this kind. This was the first time that the matter was brought to my attention in that light, and it was dropped then and there. Mr. McMurray never loaned me the money."

HASKELL DISPUTES HAMON.

Never Hired Him as Counsel or Paid Him for Any Services.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Aug. 8.—Gov. Haskell to-day denied that J. L. Hamon had ever been employed as counsel for him in the matter of securing an investigation of the town lot indictments.

"When Hamon was on his way to Washington," said the Governor, "he suggested that he could aid in the passage of the Gore resolution directing an inquiry into "third degree" methods in departments of the Government, and I told him I would appreciate his influence. I never employed him as counsel and never paid him for any services rendered."

EXCHANGE SEATS PROCEEDS.

Court Decides That Exchange Members Have a Prior Claim on Them.

Judge Hough in the United States Circuit Court handed down yesterday a decision denying the application of Frederick G. Austen, trustee in bankruptcy for Cameron Currie & Co., for an order entitling him to lay claim to the proceeds of the sale of the Stock Exchange seat of the bankrupt firm. In so doing Judge Hough upheld the uniform contention of the Exchange that the proceeds of the sale of a seat must be applied to the debts of its own members before any distribution is made to outside creditors.

Judge Hough says: "A seat in this Stock Exchange is property of such a nature that it never can become available to the assignee, representative, receiver, or trustee until the claims of the other members of this association have been passed on by the sole tribunal entitled to pass on the same according to the laws of the Exchange, which are no more than contractual engagements entered into by every person joining the organization and, therefore, binding upon all their successors in interest who claim by, through, or under a Stock Exchange membership."

The claim in this case is one against Cameron Currie in favor of Hayden, Stone & Co.

COOKS MAKE BAD MONEY.

Use Hotel Ovens for Baking Plaster Molds for Counterfeits.

HARRISBURG, Penn., Aug. 8.—Joseph and Thomas Mosee, negroes, confessed today to having undertaken to set up in business as counterfeiters. Joseph Mosee was arrested last night charged with attempting to pass a bogus silver dollar. Thomas Mosee was arrested to-day.

The brothers have been employed as cooks in a local hotel, and used the kitchen oven for baking their plaster of Paris molds.

A man in Chicago, according to the police, is said to have taught Thomas Mosee how to make the dies and prepare the metal, and the Federal authorities expect to get him. His name is not disclosed.

To Build Hotels in Porto Rico.

Rudolph Aronson returned yesterday on the steamer Caracas from his fourth trip to Porto Rico. Mr. Aronson has incorporated the Porto Rico Hotels, Springs, and Development Company, capitalized at $1,000,000, and has promised sites for modern hotels in the principal cities of Porto Rico.

Johannisthal Aviation Week Begun.

JOHANNISTHAL, Germany, Aug. 8.—The aviation week began to-day, the opening having been delayed owing to the high winds yesterday. The flights were of an indifferent character.

QUALEY LOOKED OVER DR. BULL'S ESTATE

He Made a Report of Its Value to Mrs. Bull and Indicated He Had an Eye on Her Co-Executor.

A PLEDGE TO MRS. HOPKINS

Mrs. Bull Says She Promised, with Uplifted Hand, Not to Tell of Her Magnesia Asbestos Investment.

Mrs. Mary Nevins Bull, widow of Dr. William T. Bull, passed the ordeal of a second day's cross-examination yesterday by John F. McIntyre, attorney for John A. Qualey and Harvey Wiley Corbett, the Magnesia Asbestos Company promoters whom she charges with getting $35,000 from her under false pretenses. The hearing was before Magistrate Krotel in the chambers of Harlem Court.

Charles L. Craig, attorney for Mrs. Bull, said yesterday that he had come into possession of documentary evidence that the passage of Mrs. Ellen Dunlap Hopkins to Europe was paid out of Mrs. Bull's money, deposited in the Fifth Avenue Bank by Corbett. One of his proofs, he said, was a check drawn July 18 by Corbett in favor of the International Sleeping Car Company for $447.25. In return, he says, the company's books show that Mrs. Hopkins received a first-class passage to Europe, sailing July 20. Mr. Craig said he would try to introduce this check into evidence at the next hearing as part of his proof that Mrs. Bull's money had been misapplied.

Mrs. Bull told how Mrs. Ellen Dunlap Hopkins, who had introduced Qualey to her, had advised her to keep silent about her investment in Magnesia Asbestos stock. She said that after giving Qualey the first check she made a pledge in this way:

"I lifted up my right hand as the sun was setting and gave my sacred word of honor not to mention what I had done to any one, not even my son, or Mr. Young, my co-executor of my husband's estate, or Mrs. X."

"Mrs. X." was the way Mrs. Bull described a friend several times during the proceedings. She said she did not wish to bring the names of third parties into the affair.

"Mrs. Hopkins told me that Mr. Qualey was willing to be of great help to me in my affairs. But she said that I was apt to talk too much about my business. She said she hoped I would not discuss what Mr. Qualey was doing for me with my sister, my son, and others. She said life would look different to me if I kept silent. She said that the reason I had not got along well financially before was that I had discussed my affairs too much. She said she had profited by keeping her affairs to herself.

Q.—Who suggested Mr. Corbett's name as payee on your checks? A.—Mr. Qualey.

Q.—Did you say that you would sign the checks special and make them payable to the order of Mr. Corbett because you did not wish the executor under your husband's will to know of the transaction? A.—No.

Her Son's Qualifications.

Mr. McIntyre inquired about the qualifications of her son, James G. Blaine III., who made the adverse report to her about Qualey and his enterprises which caused her to bring charges against him and Corbett. She said he was 22 years old and just finishing at Harvard College.

"I do not know what courses he took in college," she said, "but he was sufficiently intelligent to find out what I wanted to know."

When she was asked what qualifications he had to judge the value of real estate she observed tartly:

"Well, I presume he would know that a lot on Fifth Avenue would be worth more than one in Jersey."

Q.—How did he investigate? A.—He went to one of the biggest banking houses in Boston and asked them to make an investigation of Mr. Qualey's character and business record.

Q.—But which plant did he visit? A.—He didn't visit any plant. He didn't have to.

Mrs. Bull thus described a stormy interview she had with Corbett before she caused his arrest:

I 'phoned to Mr. Qualey to come to see me. Mr. Corbett came instead. It was the Tuesday that Mr. Qualey was to come to Mr. Lauterbach's office to pay back $15,000 of my money. It was a week ago last Tuesday. He said: "I'm sorry, but Mr. Qualey is out of town." I said: "If I were he, I would arrange this matter before it gets into the hands of the law. You don't want another scandal like the Leon Kresser case."

He said:

"I'm satisfied that everything is all right. I know where every penny of your money is gone. Every penny went into the plant, the plant at Newark."

I was surprised. I thought that plant was running. I asked him to give me the names of three reputable men who were interested in his company. He refused to do so. I said: "You must be skating on thin ice if you can't give me the names of three reputable men."

Letter from Mrs. Hopkins.

A portion of a letter from Mrs. Ellen Dunlap Hopkins to Mrs. Bull was introduced in evidence. It read:

> Dearest Marie: I have been acting in your interests of late, and while assiduous in my purpose, I have not been a successful as I hoped to be. Mr. Bertron sails in a few weeks for a lengthy and protracted trip about the world. He is getting out of all business affairs. So he cannot take over any new business. I had a talk with the Other Great Mind, (Qualey,) and he tells me under no circumstances should you leave your place as executrix to any one, that it would be criminal to do so. He said if you write to the executor, who is distasteful to you, he will assuredly resign. It is an unwritten law recognizable to all men in such positions.

The letter was signed "Ellen," and contained among other things a recipe for Hollandaise sauce.

Portions of a letter from Qualey to Mrs. Bull, dated June 26, and written on the stationery of the yacht Goldenrod, gave a statement of Dr. Bull's estate. Qualey estimated the estate to be worth $166,535, and then wrote:

"Thank God! you are in such splendid shape. We must now deposit the money so it will draw interest, &c. You may be assured it is not idle in his hands, [reference to George W. Young, co-executor with Mrs. Bull of her husband's will.] I now have something to work on.

Another letter from Qualey to Mrs. Bull read:

> Dear Mrs. Bull: Your letter at hand with inclosures. Mr. Young evidently has a spy on you at the Farmers' Trust Company. But that will not avail him one advantage. I have a plan on gas stock, and will run up and see you at Newport. I can do better in a personal interview than by letter. When I wire, arrange to give me the time. My plan benefits Jamie as you will see, all the way through. In haste, yours sincerely,
> JOHN A. QUALEY.

The Newport Gas Stock.

George W. Young, the co-executor, wrote a letter on June 23, which was introduced in evidence. It read:

> My Dear Mrs. Bull: I have given considerable thought of late to the estate's holding of Newport gas stock. Mr. Minrath advises me to sell the stock, as we have no right to hold it as executors. What about purchasing this stock with your insurance money? You have said you did not want to sell it because you wanted to keep it in the Bull estate. I think we could arrange for you to purchase it on reasonable terms. If you should need cash later, it would be good collateral for a loan. I think this would solve some of our difficulties very happily.

"Every President of the Newport Gas Company has been a member of the Bull family for sixty years and I wanted to keep the stock for my boy," Mrs. Bull explained after the letter was read.

Mr. McIntyre made a searching inquiry with the idea of establishing Mrs. Bull's place of residence. Since the death of her husband she has been living principally in Newport.

"I suppose I'm a vagrant," she observed, "but I think my position as executrix of my husband's estate ought to give me some standing in the courts of New York."

Magistrate Krotel questioned Mrs. Bull:

Q.—And did Mr. Qualey tell you the plant at Newark was running? A.—He did.

Q.—And what did he tell you it was making every day? A.—He told me it was making $3,000 every day, and they were using the profits to build up the other plants, and that was why they weren't paying any dividends just now.

Q.—And you're positive he told you the Newark plant was running and making $3,000 a day? A.—I'm perfectly positive.

Magistrate Krotel adjourned the hearing till Monday afternoon, Aug. 15, at 2 o'clock, in the chambers of the Tombs Court. Papers in a civil action, charging breach of warranty, were served on Qualey in the courtroom.

COLUMBUS RIOTS RESUMED.

Strikers Stone Cars and Motormen, Injuring Many—Forty Are Arrested.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 8.—With the withdrawal of the troops to-day serious disturbances were resumed all over the city. Gov. Harmon ordered the troops to be relieved on the assurance of Mayor Marshall that with his reinforced police and Deputy Sheriffs he could control the situation. One regiment, the Third, remains on duty, but will leave to-morrow morning.

No women are seen in the cars to-night, and very few men are riding. There were forty arrests on various charges to-day.

Stoning of cars was frequent during the day and to-night, and many are injured, one fatally. Five stone throwers were arrested. A motorman was rendered unconscious by one missile, and he lies critically ill in a hospital suffering from concussion of the brain. Another motorman's hand was torn open by a stone. A third driver was struck by a shower of bricks on West Broad Street and dropped to the floor of his car unconscious. His scalp was laid bare.

One mob set upon a strikebreaking motorman, who was carried insensible to the hospital with an abdominal injury. Another mob spiked a switch, and when the crew of a car tried to replace it drove them away with bricks. Some one turned the current on full and the car leaped and crashed into another car. Both began to burn. The police interfered and extinguished the fire.

Along the Livingston Avenue line tonight rioters poured gasoline on the tracks and set fire to them in front of the cars, causing great excitement among passengers.

The Executive Committee of the Carmen's Union to-day issued a statement declaring the union to have information to the effect that the Chamber of Commerce is planning a movement to have the Columbus Railway and Light Company grant the men an increase in wages without recognition of the union, and to ask the merchants of the city to refuse credit to union men unless such a concession is accepted by the union. The union calls the alleged movement a "conspiracy" and says it will fail. The union is depending largely on the willingness of the public to refrain from riding on the cars.

The Columbus Typographical Union today passed resolutions calling upon the city and State authorities to seize, by process of law, and operate the Columbus Railway and Light Company's cars, holding that the company has violated its franchise in not maintaining a satisfactory car service.

TRIED FOR BREWERY VISIT.

Three Firemen Found Drinking Gain Delay—One Fined for Neglect.

Four firemen were placed on trial yesterday before Commissioner Waldo at Fire Headquarters on charges growing out of the visit to the Bernheimer & Schwartz brewery, at Amsterdam Avenue and 128th Street, by Battalion Chief John C. Howe and Fire Marshal Kelly on July 28, where the officers found several firemen, and they reported fourteen policemen imbibing freely the contents of a beer keg.

Those on trial were Firemen William J. Barron and Thomas J. Bennett, Engine 37; Andrew C. O'Neill, Engine 38, and Engineer Joseph J. Paul, Engine 47. Bennett was fined three days' pay. Decision was reserved in Barron's case and the other cases were adjourned.

Barron, the first called, was charged under Section 207 of the rules, with conduct prejudical to good order and discipline. He pleaded guilty.

Bennett was not in the brewery, but was charged with failing to record the fact that Barron had left the quarters. Bennett, who was on watch, said he thought Barron was to take some papers to the Battalion Chief's office, but did not see him leave the house. Bennett was adjudged guilty.

O'Neill, who was charged with the same offense as Barron, pleaded not guilty. His lawyer said that one of the charges under Section 207 was "immoral conduct," and asked that the charges be corrected. Commissioner Waldo granted the lawyer's request and put the trial off until Wednesday.

Paul had the same lawyer, who made the same plea in his case, with the same result. Commissioner Waldo intimated that had the charge been unaltered both might have been acquitted.

No mention was made of policemen being in the place. Chief Howe reported there were fourteen policemen, but Inspector Hussey found only five.

C. W. MORSE'S ILLNESS.

Letter from Atlanta Says He Has a Rheumatic Complaint.

A letter received in New York from Atlanta states on the authority of one of the physicians in the Federal prison that the condition of Charles W. Morse is not as serious as some recent newspaper accounts would indicate. Mr. Morse, it seems, was suffering from some rheumatic or gouty complaint when he entered the prison, and has been going to the hospital daily for Swedish exercises with a view to remedying his condition.

Physically, he is said to be in practically the same condition as when he entered the prison.

New Ship Goes First to Catch Seals.

L. B. Stoddard of the firm of Bowring Brothers, 17 State Street, who has just returned from Europe, announced yesterday that next season the Red Cross Line would have a new steel ship to take the place of the Bornu. The new ship, which will be commanded by Capt. Clarke, now of the Florizel, will be of 4,000 tons and have a speed of fifteen knots. She will have accommodations for 200 first and 100 second cabin passengers, and will be fitted with all the latest improvements. She will be 330 feet long, 46 feet beam and about 30 feet deep.

C. Connell & Co., Limited, of Glasgow, the builders, are to have the ship completed by February, and she will be sent at once to St. John's to take part in the seal fisheries. On her return from the ice fields she will be put at once in service on the line.

Fined for Sunday Work on Fifth Ave.

Peace and quiet near St. Patrick's Cathedral was disturbed Sunday by sawing and hammering of cabinetmakers in a store at 632 Fifth Avenue, adjoining the home of Ogden Mills. As a result Joseph Wick of 444 West Thirtieth Street was fined in the Yorkville Court yesterday for violating the law prohibiting unnecessary work on Sunday. Wick said he had been told by his employer that a special permit had been issued for the work. Magistrate Butts expressed regret that $10 was the maximum fine he could impose.

Hid Stolen Gems in an Old Shoe.

Using an old shoe as a hiding place for a diamond and a pearl ring, valued at $100, which she had stolen, Eleanor Barry, thirteen years old, of 33 West Amity Street, Flushing, pleaded guilty before Magistrate Connolly in the Flushing Police Court yesterday. She was put on probation. The girl was employed in the family of Mrs. Annie Bertram of 81 Amity Street. She told the Magistrate that she did not intend to keep the rings, but wanted to wear them a few times to show her companions.

CLOAK SHOPS OPEN; STRIKERS WRECK ONE

Three Hundred Charge Special Guards and Destroy the Furnishings of the Plant.

MANY RETURN TO WORK

Take Back Their Old Places Despite the Taunts of the Men Who Stand by the Strike.

The resumption of work yesterday in the shops of the members of the Cloak and Suit Manufacturers' Association provoked the union men who still remain on strike to a fighting frenzy. Several fights occurred and eight strikers were arrested.

Three hundred strikers charged a police line in West Twenty-first Street late yesterday afternoon. They swept all before them, made their way up the stairs, and proceeded to sack a shop on the top floor of No. 48.

The rioters bowled over the strike breakers at work on the machines and pummeled them lustily. They threw over the sewing machines, broke chairs over the tables, smashed windows, and threw tools on the floor and cloth out of the windows. In all they did several hundred dollars' damage.

A hurry call to Police Headquarters brought the reserves. The news of their coming led to a quick retreat on the part of the rioters and only three were captured—Nathan Frank of 203 East 107th Street, Max Marcowitz of 103 Fifth Street, and Israel Frank of 1,490 Brook Avenue, the Bronx.

The sight of former strikers marching back to work in small bodies compactly lined up between rows of special policemen inflamed 1,500 strikers gathered on the sidewalks at Sixth Avenue and Twenty-sixth Street. The strikers hooted and jeered, and some of them refused to get out of the way to let the strikebreakers pass. When the special policemen threatened to use their heavy clubs, a fight began. Some of the strikers were badly clubbed, and they ran back into the crowd and hurled sticks, stones, brickbats, and other missiles. Reserves from the Tenderloin and West Twentieth Street Stations rushed to the scene and broke up the riot. David Katz, a tailor, and Israel Levine, a cutter, were arrested for disorderly conduct. John Hunter, a special policeman, was struck on the head with a stone.

Lower Fifth Avenue became an embarrassing place for shoppers during the afternoon. Fights between the returning workers and their special police guardians on the one side and the strikers on the other, were occurring continuously along the avenue between Eighth Street and Madison Square. Rocco Silve and Ferdinand Antonia were arrrested for participating in one of these attacks. The manufacturers charged that the strikers had hired east side gang members to do strong arm work along the avenue. This the strike leaders denied.

The cloak designers, who are organized as the Mutual Aid Cloak and Suit Designers of America, held a meeting yesterday afternoon at the old Masonic Hall, Twenty-third Street and Sixth Avenue, which was attended by sveral hundred designers. Their organization is not a trade union and as the designers are neutral in the fight the meeting was called to discuss the advisability of offering its aid as an intermediary to end the trouble. A committee of ten was appointed to go first to the manufacturers and then to the strike leaders and ask if they were willing that the committee would try and bring both sides together. The committee will call on the Executive Committee of the Manufacturers' Association to-day at 10 A. M.

No figures can be obtained from the representatives of the manufacturers as to the number of people at work. The Manufacturers' Association held a meeting in the Fifth Avenue Building in the afternoon. Later it issued this statement:

"With the reopening of their shops the members of the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association, at a meeting of the whole membership to-day, took additional steps to protect their operatives from possible assaults at the hands of the striking cloakmakers. The retention of Harford Marshall, formerly an Assistant District Attorney under Jerome and now engaged in private practice, was announced. Mr. Marshall will take entire charge of the police court cases which may arise from conflicts between workers and strikers. He will have a staff of assistants.

"The meeting was an enthusiastic one, many of the members arising to tell of their good fortune in obtaining men to man their factories. Nearly every member of the association who had not done so previously, opened his factory yesterday, and for the first time since the strike began, more than four weeks ago, there was genuine activity throughout the trade centres.

"Many of the manufacturers have arranged to house their employes in nearby hotels, taking them there at night under guard and bringing them back to work in the morning under similar escort. Others have adopted the plan of sending their employes to their homes in taxicabs and having these vehicles call for them in the morning. There is none who has not provided some means of safeguarding the men from injury at the hands of strikers."

FAIL TO BREAK SUGAR STRIKE.

Trust's Williamsburg Refineries Can't Get Enough Workers.

Because of the failure to obtain enough men, the Havemeyer sugar refineries, in Williamsburg, were not reopened yesterday. More than 100 policemen were on hand early, under the direction of Deputy Police Commissioner Reynolds of Brooklyn, who had with him Borough Inspector Holahan, Inspector Sweeney, and Capt. Dooley of the Bedford Avenue Police Station. Only about 100 of the strikers responded to the call to return to work. These men had extreme difficulty in getting through the picket lines, which the more aggressive of the strikers had established for blocks around. Some of the men who did reach the refineries were escorted there by their wives, who were insistent that they should return. Many other strikers whose wives had them in hand were intercepted by pickets and persuaded to stay out.

When the refinery officials realized that there was no possibility of the plant reopening they made it known that they had thousands of applications from other men and that it was altogether probable that a sufficient force of workers would be engaged to resume operations to-morrow. Three boatloads of men were landed at the South Third Street pier yesterday. Half were new drivers and the others skilled men for the refineries. The drivers who afterward hauled sugar did so under the protection of special policemen. Two strikers who attempted to raise a disturbance at Kent Avenue and South Fourth Street were promptly arrested, and later were sent to jail for ten days each.

Yesterday afternoon the Central Labor Union of Brooklyn took a hand in the strike. A Committee on Conciliation, with J. P. Coughlin as Chairman, and accompanied by Mr. Reagan of the State Department of Labor and a Protestant clergyman, went to the office of the American Sugar Refining Company, at 117 Wall Street, to have a conference with Vice President Samuel C. Hooker. The latter, it was said, absolutely refused to receive the committee, and made it known that the company would fight the strikers to the end. This irritated the committee, and last night Mr. Coughlin said that the Brooklyn Central Labor Union would give all the aid it could to the strikers.

DOG ATTACKS LITTLE GIRL.

Then Turns on Her Sister and Mother—Shot by a Policeman.

Dora Barrel, 8 years old, of 261 Sackman Street, Brownsville, Brooklyn, was severely bitten yesterday by a large dog which turned upon her when she attempted to pet it. The animal also attacked her eleven-year-old sister Fannie and their mother when they rushed to Dora's aid.

Mrs. Barrel beat the animal over the head with a broom, while Fannie endeavored to tear her little sister away from the dog which, after biting her in the right leg and left hand, grasped her dress in his teeth and shook her savagely. Releasing the child the animal seized Mrs. Barrel by the right wrist, just as a man living in the house, in the rear of which the attack took place, hurled a large piece of iron at the dog.

His aim was true. Struck in the side the dog howled and bounded into the cellar, where it was shot by Policeman Thomas Gorman of the Brownsville Station.

The dog was owned by a family which moved into the house a week ago. It had acted strangely for several days, but was not thought to be dangerous. A lover of animals, little Dora patted it on the head in the yard, and with a snarl it leaped upon her. Child and mother were treated by Dr. Duff of Bradford Street Hospital, who cauterized their wounds and advised that they be taken to the Pasteur Institute.

FLED IN THEIR NIGHT CLOTHES

Three Little Sisters Caught Trying to Escape from a Charity Home.

Three sisters were sent to the New York Protectory yesterday by Justice McInerney of the Children's Court, Brooklyn, to wait there until their father, who is now serving a short term in prison for assault, is released and able to provide a home for them. They are Sarah McCarrity, 15 years old; Nellie, 12, and Teresa, 10.

They were sent to the Roman Catholic Orphan Asylum in care of the Sisters of Mercy, at Kent and Willoughby Avenues, two weeks ago, after an agent of the Children's Society found them in a two-room flat at 307 Gold Street, friendless and almost starving. Their mother has been dead a year, and with their father serving a prison term, they had no one to provide for them.

They might still be with the Sisters of Mercy had they not attempted to escape from the asylum on Saturday night. About 10 o'clock they stole out of the Quarantine Building, which is used as a dormitory, and reached the yard unnoticed. Almost immediately they were missed and search was begun. They were dressed in their nightgowns and were in the act of trying to scale a high brick wall when they were caught.

It was then decided that the protectory would be the proper place for them.

PORTUGAL ALSO HAS DISPUTE WITH POPE

Like Spain, Is on the Verge of an Open Rupture—Result of Various Incidents.

NO AMBASSADOR TO VATICAN

Post Allowed to Remain Vacant—Government Proposes to Deprive Clergy of Important Source of Income.

LISBON, Aug. 8.—Portugal, like Spain, is on the verge of an open rupture with the Vatican, the result of friction over the governmental censure of the Archbishop of Braga for suppressing a Portuguese Franciscan newspaper without submitting the order to the Government for approval, and other incidents.

Since the issue of a royal decree on July 12 nullifying the action of the Archbishop the Clerical forces, inspired, it is charged, by Cardinal Merry del Val, have been conducting a bitter campaign against the Government.

At the same time the Vatican has been raising difficulties in regard to refilling the diplomatic vacancy caused by the death of Senhor Martins d'Antas, the Portuguese Ambassador to the Vatican. The Portuguese Government has retaliated by deciding to allow the post to remain vacant for the present.

The Minister of Justice has drafted a bill providing for the civil registration of births, deaths, and marriages. As this threatens an important source of income of the clergy, a big meeting of ecclesiastics was held here to-day to protest against it.

Danger also threatens the Government from the side of the Republicans on account of the refusal of the King to redeem the promise made by the Government of amnesty for political offenders, including the members of the secret societies involved in the assassination of his father and brother. The Government has been trying to appease the Republicans by appointing prominent members of the party to important positions in the provinces.

The monarchist press fears that this policy will enable the Republicans to turn the election machinery against the Government in future elections to the Cortes, the results of Portuguese elections being largely swayed by the influences in control of the election machinery.

POPE SEES 200 AMERICANS.

Gives Apostolic Blessing to Large Party of Pilgrims and Tourists.

ROME, Aug. 8.—The Pope to-day received in private audience the Right Rev. Augustine Van De Vyver, Bishop of Richmond, Va., who presented a report upon conditions in his diocese. He also received J. J. McGrane of New York, delegated with a group of other Knights of Columbus on behalf of the Governing Board of the order to thank the Pope for the special blessing given to the Knights.

Afterward the Pontiff received 186 American pilgrims and a number of American tourists, the party in all numbering more than 200. Bishop Van De Vyver, who presented the Americans, delivered an address of loyalty, to which the Pope replied, expressing satisfaction at being among so many Americans. He imparted his Apostolic blessing to the party and thanked them for the $1,800 of Peter's pence presented by the pilgrims.

MUCH BLOODSHED IN TEHERAN

Over 40 Killed and Wounded in the Battle—300 Insurgents Captured.

TEHERAN, Aug. 8.—Casualties on the Government side in yesterday's battle in the city streets between the Government troops and the Nationalist insurgents were about twelve killed and wounded. The Nationalists, who were fighting under the leadership of Satar Khan, made famous by his long defense of the City of Tabriz against the forces of the deposed Shah, lost thirty killed and wounded.

Three hundred of the Nationalists were captured in the final assault, which was made after their position in the northern part of the city had been under fire from infantry and rapid-fire guns during the entire afternoon. Bakir Khan, the principal subordinate to Satar Khan, was among the prisoners. Satar Khan was wounded.

VICTORIA, B. C., Aug. 8.—Japanese newspapers received yesterday devote much space to the resignation of his imperial rank by Prince Teruhisa, son of Prince Kitashirakawa. He was divested formally of his rank on July 20, and is to enter the navy as a midshipman.

This is the only instance of the kind in modern Japan.

Chooses American Site at Turin.

TURIN, Aug. 8.—Francis B. Loomis, American Commissioner to the International and Industrial Exposition to be held in Turin next year, to-day selected the site for the American pavilion at the Exposition. The site is considered one of the best in the grounds.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

BOGOTA, Aug. 8.—The new Administration and Cabinet of Colombia began their duties today, absolute quiet prevailing in the city. The new President, Carlos E. Restrepo, formerly Vice President of the House of Representatives, upon his inauguration yesterday announced his Cabinet. The Prime Minister and Minister of the Interior is Luis Felipe Campo.

LONDON, Aug. 8.—Advices from Wick, Scotland, received to-day, report that the British steamer Indian struck a submerged rock in a fog, a hole being stove in her port side. She is beached at Sinclair Bay. The Indian sailed from Shields on Aug. 5 for New Orleans.

KOENIGSBERG, Aug. 8.—Crown Prince Frederick William was again to-day chosen Rector Magnificentissimus of the University of Koenigsberg.

MAIL KEPT FROM CRIPPEN.

Some Letters to Him Written by Women—Dew Back in Quebec.

QUEBEC, Aug. 8.—Letters and telegrams addressed to Dr. Crippen are accumulating at the provincial jail, but he is allowed to receive and to answer only the cable messages from Arthur Newton, his London attorney, relating to the preparation of his defense.

Fully a dozen letters and as many messages have never reached the prisoner, because the jailer has adjudged them improper to deliver to a man in Crippen's situation. All are from the United States or Canada, and most of them from attorneys, but one or two are inclosed in dainty square envelopes and addressed in feminine hands.

Inspector Dew returned to Quebec today after a sightseeing trip in Central Canada. He visited the jail this afternoon to carry a cable message to Crippen, but did not see the prisoner. Like others, the message did not pass the censorship of the jailer, and its contents have not been revealed.

During his absence the Scotland Yard Inspector was not so successful as he had hoped in preserving his incognito, and his opinion of American newspapers does not improve. He expressed it freely when he found the reporters still on the watch here, but otherwise he was as uncommunicative as ever.

For the first time since her arrest Miss Leneve asked to-day for something to read. The jailer sent her some magazines. A fresh batch of magazines was also sent to Crippen, who reads omnivorously.

The week for which Crippen and Miss Leneve were remanded by the Provincial Court expired this morning, but Judge Angers said that in the ordinary course of events the prisoners would not appear in court before they sailed for England. He added that he expected to have no more direct dealings with them unless they exercistd their right to demand another appearance in court.

DEFENDS CUBAN LOTTERY.

Senor Arazoza Declares It Is Beneficial to the Country.

A. J. Arazoza, Sub-Secretary of the Cuban Treasury, who is in this city on a special mission for the Cuban Government, has received an official telegram asking for his immediate presence in Havana, the resignation of Secretary of the Treasury Villegas having been accepted by President Gomez. Señor Arazoza will sail for Havana to-morrow. He said yesterday:

"The financial situation of Cuba is very favorable, all obligations having been paid and there being a surplus in the Treasury of $1,344,088.80.

"In regard to the attacks appearing in the press of this country on the lottery of Cuba, I wish to say that it is untrue that the people are suffering on account of it. The lottery has given a greater profit to the Government than was expected. It is beneficial to the country, because it has stopped petty gambling. The lottery is conducted with perfect order and honesty.

"Capital invested in Cuba has always paid big interest. We had this year the largest sugar crop on record."

ROOT CONTINUES HIS SPEECH.

Ex-Justice Brown Listens to His Argument Before The Hague Court.

THE HAGUE, Aug. 8.—Henry B. Brown, formerly Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court, who retired in 1906, was an interested listener to-day to the proceedings in the Newfoundland fisheries case before the Arbitration Tribunal. He had a seat beside the members of the court.

United States Senator Root, continuing his summing-up argument for the American case, argued that neither in 1783 nor in 1818 did regulations exist regarding the time and the methods according to which the fisheries should be conducted off Labrador and Newfoundland, and that during the negotiations for the treaty of 1818 the negotiators were actuated by the understanding that England could not frame regulations for the fisheries except in co-operation with the United States.

SAVE SISTER FROM FLAMES.

Girl's Small Brothers Beat Out Her Blazing Clothing.

A little girl appeared in the doorway of 414 East Ninth Street yesterday noon with her clothing in flames. Her screams sounded through the big tenement house and across the street, where her two little brothers were playing. The boys promptly ran to their sister's aid and she retreated back into her home, which is on the first floor.

She ran into her mother's bedroom and jumped into the big feather bed. The bed clothing caught fire, but, nothing daunted, the lads dragged their sister from the bed and literally tore the burning clothes from her. Neighbors in the house gave one look into the burning apartment and quickly beat a retreat.

The little girl is Valeria Radziwitz, 4 years old. She had been left at home while her mother went to buy something for the noonday meal. In the house also were twelve-year-old Michael, Bruno, aged 10, and Thomas, aged 2½ years. Michael and Bruno took Thomas across the street, leaving Valeria alone.

After her brothers had gone the little girl got hold of some matches. She lighted a bit of "punk," such as is used by youngsters to set fire to crackers, and in doing so ignited her clothing.

After the two brothers, Michael and Bruno, had stripped their sister of all her clothing they handed her over to a neighbor to care for while they extinguished the blaze in the house. Calling some of their companions to their assistance, Michael and Bruno, with tact and promptness far beyond their years, went into their mother's bedroom, and, getting hold of the burning mattress, threw it out into the street, along with the other blazing bedclothes. There was nothing to do when the firemen arrived.

Valeria was badly burned, and Dr. Adams, who took her to Bellevue Hospital, said that if she lived she would owe her life to the promptness with which her brothers had acted.

TRIED FOR OPENING LETTER.

Postmaster Who Did It to Aid the Police Set Free.

John J. Lynch, Postmaster at Storm King, Dutchess County, was discharged yesterday by United States Commissioner Shields after a hearing on a complaint charging that he had opened a letter not addressed to himself. The discharge was granted because no wrongful intent appeared in Lynch's act.

The letter was one sent from the Bronx Detective Bureau addressed to the Sheriff, or constable, at Storm King, demanding the arrest of one William Dunne. There is neither Sheriff nor constable at Storm King, so Lynch opened the letter and arrested the man, who afterward escaped. The escape of the prisoner angered the sleuths in the Bronx bureau and they brought about Lynch's arrest.

Various citizens of Storm King appeared before Commissioner Shields yesterday to testify for the Postmaster.

RUNAWAY IN BUSY STREET.

Stopped by Mounted Policeman After a Mile Dash in Brooklyn.

A runaway horse attached to a light delivery wagon ran through a crowd at Malbone Street and Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn, near the entrance to Prospect Park, yesterday, and dashed past trolley cars moving in both directions along Flatbush Avenue. The driver, Russel Holmstroin, was knocked off his seat into the wagon and laid clinging to the seat. Mounted Policeman Thomas Waters of the Flatbush Police Station seized the bridle of the runaway horse and stopped him. The horse ran almost a mile along Flatbush Avenue before his flight was checked. Several pedestrians in the path of the runaway had narrow escapes.

SPANISH CATHOLICS PLAN BIG CAMPAIGN

A Mammoth Manifestation and Militant Juntas in Every Province Proposed.

POPE SENDS HIS BLESSING

Six Thousand Rifles Seized at Bilbao—Authorities Fear Catholic and Carlist Co-operation.

SAN SEBASTIAN, Aug. 8.—The Catholic Juntas of the Basque Provinces at a meeting to-day decided to wage a broad campaign "in defense of Catholicism" and to use all efforts to spread the propaganda throughout Spain.

As the first step they named a general committee to organize a mammoth manifestation against the Government. Later they will seek to create militant juntas in every province.

The Carlist leaders also held a meeting this afternoon, but behind closed doors.

The suspicion that the Catholics and Carlists are working hand in hand has increased the uneasiness of the authorities.

There were no disorders of any kind to-day.

In answer to telegrams from the Spanish Catholics pledging their loyalty to the Vatican in the present conflict, the President of the Catholic Junta here to-day received the following telegram from Cardinal Merry del Val, the Papal Secretary of State:

> In the present sad and bitter hour his Holiness sees with particular satisfaction the sister Biscayan provinces evince their magnificent sentiments of unshaken Christian fidelity. He thanks you for your homage and filial love, and sends to you all his paternal affection and apostolic benediction.

About half the number of those arrested on Saturday night while taking part in a street demonstration and shouting "Death to Spain! Long live the Pope!" were released to-day. The Basque Senators and Deputies have decided to ask for the release of the others, and to interpellate the Government at the opening of the Cortes, protesting against the "arbitrary acts at San Sebastian." Sixteen priests and monks were among the persons arrested on Saturday.

The Government, however, will insist upon the prosecution of the signers of the insulting protest directed to it by the Catholics, the Premier hoping thereby to expose the real cause of the agitation in the Basque Provinces.

The Queen Mother, who is a zealous Catholic, to-day congratulated Premier Canalejas and the Governor on the success which attended their efforts to prevent trouble here yesterday.

BILBAO, Aug. 8.—Six thousands rifles were seized by the authorities to-day on board a tug which had been chartered to go to San Sebastian.

Local authorities at San Sebastian believed that the Carlists were planning to take advantage of the proposed Catholic manifestation to start a movement against the Government.

No statement, however, is made as to which party to the conflict chartered the tug and loaded it with arms.

MADRID, Aug. 8.—An official of the Government stated to-day that the Government had no confirmation of the report, current in several European capitals, that the Pope had addressed a personal letter to King Alfonso, appealing to the King to use his influence for a settlement of the conflict between the Spanish Government and the Vatican.

The official further asserted that there was no foundation for the reports at Rome indicating a prospect of the improvement of the relations between Spain and the Vatican.

He further denied a current report that Spain had presented a protest to Austria against the conduct during the conflict of Don Jaime, the Carlist Pretender, who is an officer in the Austrian service.

ROME, Aug. 8.—The Pope and Cardinal Merry del Val received this morning from Spain many telegrams expressing loyalty to the Vatican in the conflict with that country. The telegrams were sent yesterday, having evidently been delayed by the Spanish authorities.

The telegrams encouraged the Vatican to resist the anti-Clerical movement in Spain, the senders assuring the Pope and Cardinal Merry del Val that the movement does not find deep root among the Spanish people.

AUTO HITS ELDERLY MAN.

Chauffeur Speeds on and There Is No Clue to His Identity.

A small one-seated automobile that was going up Broadway on the wrong side of the street at 3 o'clock yesterday morning struck 64-year-old Carl Stroman at Nineteenth Street and hurled him to the ground. The chauffeur did not even look behind, and was out of sight before his number could be observed.

Before he lapsed into unconsciousness Stroman managed to give his name and age, but could not tell where he lived. Patrolman Concannon of the West 100th Street Station signaled a touring car, and the injured man was hurried to the J. Hood Wright Hospital.

It was found that he had concussion of the brain and that his spine was hurt. The physicians gave little hope of his recovery.

SAYS LOVE WENT WITH CASH.

Daniels, Defending His Wife's Suit for Separation, Lays Trouble to Poverty.

Mrs. Annie Daniels, whose home is at Baldwin, Long Island, applied yesterday to Justice Goff in the Supreme Court for an order compelling her husband, William Daniels, an upholsterer and decorator to pay her $35 a week alimony and $250 counsel fees pending her suit against him for separation. Mrs. Daniels complains of cruelty, and also says that her husband took a dislike to her because she is Irish and a member of the Roman Catholic Church.

She says that on June 29 last, while they were aboard their yacht Portia off Freeport, L. I., Daniels beat their 19-year-old son, and when she interfered to save the boy turned on her and choked her.

Mrs. Daniels was represented by a lawyer, but Daniels appeared in his own behalf. He told Justice Goff that he had no money with which to hire counsel.

"When I had plenty of money things were all right between us," he declared to the court, "but when my money went love flew out of the window."

Justice Goff reserved decision.

MODEL FOR POSTAL BANKS.

Institution in Washington Will Be Used for Experimental Purposes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The committee of the Post Office Department having under consideration plans for organizing the postal banking system has about decided to make the bank in this city a model for the rest of the country. This decision was arrived at in spite of the fact that no request has yet been filed by the local office for the establishment of a bank.

The idea of the committee is that in the initial stage of the new system it will be well to have one of the institutions where it can be closely watched, and in which changes can be made experimentally with the least loss of time. It is now thought that the Washington office will be included in the first group to be opened for deposits. There are several branch Post Offices in Washington, and it is planned now to open accounts in two of the branches most remote from the central office, partly as a convenience for people living on the outskirts and partly to see how the establishment of branch banks affects the general system.

It is about decided to use at the outset ordinary pass books, so that accounts can be made up and interest computed at the chief office in every State.

NO WOOD PULP FAMINE.

Consul General at Quebec Reports Plenty in the Province for Export.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Despite the policy of the Government of the Province of Quebec, Canada, prohibiting the exportation of pulp wood cut on crown lands subsequent to May 1, 1910, there need be no apprehension of a pulp wood shortage in that province for the American market, according to a report from Gebhard Willrich, American Consul General at Quebec.

"Competent authorities say," reports Mr. Willrich, "that only about 15 per cent. of all the pulp wood cut in this province was cut on crown lands. This percentage, while not considerable, was sufficient to prevent the sale at fair prices of large quantities of such wood cut on private lands, which has accumulated in large quantities. Despite the new policy of the Government the market for pulp wood has been poor. The report further shows that the second largest article of export from Quebec in 1909 was wood pulp, representing a value of nearly a million dollars. The value in 1909 was $949,549, an increase in two years of over 100 per cent. The exports of the product to Great Britain in 1909 amounted to $487,176; to France, $82,213, and to the United States, $19,100, a decrease from $38,700 in 1908.

In contrast to the foregoing figures are the export figures for pulp wood, all of which is taken by the United States because its bulk prevents exportation across the ocean. In 1908 there were exported by water to the United States 30,479 cords, valued at $197,662; in 1909, 80,781 cords, valued at $625,827. Exports declared at this consulate of pulp wood by water as well as by rail show a value of $636,186 during 1908, and of $1,180,029 in 1909, making an increase of $543,843 for last year.

TROOPS FOR FOREST FIRES.

Taft Authorizes Use of Regular Soldiers to Fight Them at Need.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—President Taft has authorized the use of troops to fight forest fires in Montana, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, and California.

The War Department has ordered Major General T. H. Barry, commanding the Department of California, headquarters at San Francisco; Brig. Gen. M. P. Maus, commanding the Department of the Columbia, with headquarters at Vancouver Barracks, Wash., and Brig. Gen. Walter Howe, commanding the Department of Dakota, at St. Paul, Minn., to hold the troops at all posts in their commands in readiness to fight the forest fires.

Troops will be furnished as they may be requested by the district officials of the National Forests. Commanders of posts will be instructed to give immediate assistance in case of a call in their territory.

BOGUS INSPECTORS CAUGHT.

Their Pictures in Rogues' Gallery—Thrown Out of a Theatre.

Two men, described in the police records as Edward McGuinness, alias William Hart of 246 West Seventeenth Street, whose number is 17,463 in the Rogues' Gallery, and Thomas Gaffney, alias Thomas Nelson, of 30 Bowery, 17,423 in the gallery, were arraigned yesterday before Magistrate Corrigan in Jefferson Market Court charged with grand larceny and were held in $1,000 each for examination to-day.

Superintendent Rudolph Miller of the Buildings Department had complained that two swindlers were passing themselves off as building inspectors and extorting money from business men and property owners. One of those victimized was Edward Sleich, manager of the A. A. Vantine Company. He gave up $50.

Mr. Sleich was taken to Police Headquarters and without hesitation picked out the pictures of McGuinness and Gaffney as the two men who had swindled him. He said that they had informed him they were acting for Chief Inspector Daniel O'Connor of the Building Department. The swindlers would order an alleged violation of the Building Code remedied, but would hint that the violation would be overlooked for a consideration.

The detectives say that on July 5 they visited the Criterion Theatre and demanded to see Francis Wilson, the actor, who had just completed an engagement there. When they announced that their object was to levy blackmail for inadequate fire exits they were immediately thrown out.

GRAPE-NUTS.

A COOL PROPOSITION
And a Sure One.
The Body Does Not Feel Heat Unpleasantly if it Has Proper Food—
Grape-Nuts

People can live in a temperature which feels from ten to twenty degrees cooler than their neighbors enjoy, by regulating the diet.

The plan is to avoid meat entirely for breakfast; use a goodly allowance of fruit, either fresh or cooked. Then follow with a saucer containing about four heaping teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts, treated with a little rich cream. Add to this about two slices of crisp toast with a meager amount of butter, and one cup of well-made Postum.

By this selection of food the bodily energy is preserved, while the hot, carbonaceous foods have been left out. The result is a very marked difference in the temperature of the body, and to this comfortable condition is added the certainty of easy and perfect digestion, for the food being partially pre-digested is quickly assimilated by the digestive machinery.

Experience and experiment in food, and its application to the human body has brought out these facts. They can be made use of and add materially to the comfort of the user.

BELMONT RACE TRACK FOR AVIATION MEET

International Speed Contest This Fall to be Decided at World's Greatest Race Course.

MORE MONEY FOR PRIZES

Change in Location Gives Additional Funds for Contestants—Public Interests Considered.

In order to facilitate the business end of the international aviation championship meet next October a Committee of Arrangements was selected yesterday at a special meeting of the Finance Committee of the Aero Club Corporation, held at the Lawyers' Club. The committee comprises Alan A. Ryan, Chairman; Clifford B. Harmon, and W. Redmond Cross.

The offer of the Belmont Park Racing Association was accepted, and final details will be completed to-day with August Belmont, President of the association. The delay in announcing the location of the meet was caused by the necessity of making certain changes in the field, particularly the fence around the upper end of the track. These difficulties have been overcome, and the work of putting the grounds into shape for the aviators will shortly be started.

After the meeting L. L. Gillespie, Chairman of the Finance Committee, announced that nearly all of the $125,000 necessary to conduct the meet had been secured, and before the end of the week the subscription books will be closed. In explaining the change from Garden City to Belmont Park, Mr. Gillespie said:

"Instead of spending a lot of money in the erection of stands and inclosing grounds, which was at first seriously considered, the Aero Club decided to spend less money and add materially to the prizes for the aviators. With this object in view it was determined to hold the international meet at Belmont Park. There is another serious consideration, and that is the public. In making the change we have considered the convenience of those persons who will witness the flights.

"The changes necessary at Belmont Park to make it an almost perfect aviation ground is the removal of a few trees and the fences on either side of the upper end of the track. The grand stand, parking spaces, and field stands offer exceptional facilities to the spectators for witnessing the flights. Clifford B. Harmon and J. C. McCoy recently visited Belmont Park, and in their report to the committee recommended several changes, which were minor in character. These changes have been approved, and, after the final meeting with Mr. Belmont, will at once be put into effect.

"This event will be the first real competition among aeroplanes in this country. The international course must be three miles in circumference. In order to comply with the conditions, the start will be made in Belmont Park. The contestants will then circle the course, a part of which will be outside of the grounds, and the finish will be at the point from which the start is made.

"We shall have many of the best foreign aviators, as the prize list will be sufficient to induce them to make the trip across the water. We shall pay them a reasonable sum for legitimate expenses, but in this latter respect we shall not favor the foreigners over the American contestants. We expect to be able to announce our full programme in a few days. The delay in this matter was due to the uncertainty of the location, but with Belmont Park definitely decided upon, we are now able to set aside more money for prizes than we would have been able to do had we held the meet at Garden City."

The committee decided many important matters at the meeting, which will be announced after the conference with Mr. Belmont. Those who attended the meeting were L. L. Gillespie, Andrew Freedman, Clifford B. Harmon, De Lancey Nicoll, and Alan A. Ryan.

AEROPLANES IN CRASH.

Aviator Mars Escapes Injury in Collision with Curtiss Machine.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., Aug. 8.—J. C. Mars this morning met with a mishap at Brunot's Island which might have cost him his life. As it was, his fine machine Skylark was shattered through a collision he had with another Curtiss machine in which he had been making a trial flight. It was some time before Mars could be disentangled from the wreckage, and a still longer time before the spectators were convinced that he was not seriously hurt. The aviator managed to escape injury.

Aviators Curtiss and Baldwin had gone from Pittsburg, leaving Mars to pack up the flying machines at his leisure and follow them to New York. It was a nice morning for flying and Mars decided to try some flights for the few hundred people who had gathered at the park. He chose one of the eight-cylinder Curtiss machines for the first trial flight.

Circling once or twice around the island, Mars found the machine was not running as light as he had hoped and decided to make a landing and fix it up. Mars had just made a Curtiss dip with his machine and was landing when the heavy machine landed on the Skylark like the crack of doom. The entire front part of the flying machine was crushed, so that she must be rebuilt entirely. Mars was thrown from his seat to the ground under a mass of wreckage, from which his escape was little short of wonderful. Afterward Mars made some small flights on another machine, but broke no records.

BEGIN WORK ON BALLOON.

Walter Wellman's Big Dirigible Ready for Inflation.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 8.—The rest of Walter Wellman's big dirigible balloon America arrived here to-day, and to-morrow the real work of putting it together will be started. The big gas bag was unpacked to-day, and it is now all ready for inflating with air. When this is completed and it is found to be all right or any repairs made that may be needed, the big envelope will be filled with oxygen.

Mr. Vanaman, the engineer of the big expedition, has taken full charge of the work of preparation in so far as the detail of the airship is concerned. He is disappointed that things have been delayed as long as they have been, but believes that with the assistance of the two French machinists he brought to this country he will be able to make up a good portion of the lost time. He does not believe they will be able to get ready for any trial flights this week, but says he can get things in shape to go up on the first favorable day of the week following.

CURTISS WANTS GROUNDS.

Aviator Seeks to Establish Headquarters Near New York.

Glenn H. Curtiss returned to New York yesterday from Pittsburg, where he took part in the aviation meet at Bruntt's Island. He will, during the next few days, make a tour of inspection of available aviation grounds within a radius of twenty miles of New York City for the purpose of securing a site for testing and experimental ground.

It is the intention of Curtiss to establish a permanent headquarters near this city, where daily flights can be made, not only by those learning the science of aviation, but also by experts employed by him. Curtiss thinks that if the public can be assured of flights under fair weather conditions it will result in more interest being manifested in the science.

As the wind is usually steady near the water front, Curtiss will endeavor to locate near the ocean. He favors Long Island, Staten Island, or the Jersey Coast. When he selects the location he will thoroughly equip it with buildings and workshops. He intends to keep several machines on hand at all times for demonstrations.

AIR RACE EXCITES FRANCE.

Immense Enthusiasm Over Its Success—Second Stage To-day.

PARIS, Aug. 8.—All France is aeroplane mad over the marvelous success upon the first lap of the great 485-mile cross-country race from Issy-les-Molineaux, a suburb of Paris, through Troyes, Nancy, Mézières, Charleville, Douai, and Amiens, back to Paris, in which six of the eight aviators yesterday successfully completed the first stage, to Troyes.

All the aviators unite in declaring that the success of the prearranged flight by so many machines marks the definite conquest of the air.

Literally thousands of automobiles gathered at Troyes to-day with the intention of following the race, the second stage of which starts to-morrow, through to the finish.

On account of the difficulty experienced by the machines yesterday in following the course it has been arranged to put marking flags on the spires of churches along the route.

Three military aeroplanes, the drivers of which, under the rules, are not allowed to compete for prizes, flew from Mourmelon-le-Grand to Nancy to-day to join the contestants when they arrive there to-morrow at the conclusion of the second stage.

Hubert Latham, who was unable to start yesterday on account of illness, started from Paris on his machine to-day, in an endeavor to complete the trip to Troyes and place himself upon an equal footing with the other competitors. An hour and sixteen minutes later, however, Latham alighted on the lawn of his mother's château, near Dreux, about forty-two miles from Paris.

FIANCEE DIES; TAKES POISON.

Young Man Seeks Death in His Sweetheart's Room, but Is Restored.

Special to The New York Times.

GOUVERNEUR, N. Y., Aug. 8.—The little village of Lisbon has been stirred by two sensational attempts at suicide of Jarrett Flack owing to the death of his sweetheart, Miss Lodeen Moore, who was only 18 years old and an heiress to $100,000.

Both young people belonged to the best families of Lisbon. Miss Moore was an orphan and resided with the family of her guardian. A few days ago she died of Bright's disease. Young Flack and Miss Moore were to have been married last June, but her illness prevented the wedding taking place.

Her death brought a climax in the life of Jarrett Flack. He went to her room in the hotel, gathered her wedding costume before him, then taking a large dose of morphine lay down on the bed prepared to join his dead sweetheart. His condition was discovered and a physician, after an hour's work, restored him. When he had recovered sufficiently to walk he noticed some poison in the doctor's case and attempted to obtain it, but was again foiled.

Miss Moore was buried on Saturday. At the grave Flack made a scene, refusing to leave until forced to do so.

SLAYS A MAN WHILE FLEEING.

Chicago Has Another Street Murder Near Where Dr. Michaelis Was Shot.

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—Following close on the murder of Dr. William F. Michaelis last Friday night in Sixty-first Street, another man was fatally shot by a robber last night near the scene of the dentist's death. This second crime leads the police to believe that a desperate thug operating in that part of the city committed both crimes, as well as several minor offenses previously reported.

While the theory had been advanced that Dr. Michaelis was slain by the husband of one of the dentist's patients, the widow has contended that he was the victim of a footpad.

Last night's shooting took place after W. H. Schroeder, proprietor of a pharmacy at 632 East Sixty-first Street, had fired four shots at a robber and pursued him down Champlain Avenue. Two hundred feet from the store Anton Helding, standing in front of his home, attempted to intercept the fugitive. The robber hardly paused as he drew a revolver and fired a shot that struck Helding directly over the heart.

In escaping the highwayman lost his straw hat. The police hope to capture him soon.

"STILL BUSY—YOURS, IZZY."

Paterson Swain Wastes Time, but No Words in Answering Hymen's Call.

Miss Rosa Siegel of this city went to Paterson, N. J., yesterday to ask the Chief of Police there to help her find Isidor Zeterman, who, she said, was her sweetheart. She told the Chief she and Isidor had been engaged to marry on July 31, on the strength of which, she said, she lent Zeterman $195 to help him in his business. He was a silk salesman. Then he went to Paterson. She had heard vaguely of Weber & Fields' Can't-you-get-out-of Paterson Club, and she thought the Paterson Chief of Police might help her find out if Zeterman had joined it.

On the day set for the wedding, she said, she got a postcard from Isidor, which read:

Too busy to return.

A few days later another and the final postcard came bearing this laconic message:

Still busy. Yours, IZZY.

Neither the Chief of Police nor Zeterman's brother could give Miss Siegel the information she sought.

STOLE HIS UNCLE'S WATCH.

Nephew Was Led Astray by Bad Bronx Boys, Relative Says.

As James J. Crowe approached his home, 711 Crotona Park North, yesterday afternoon, he observed his seventeen-year-old nephew, James McCauley, entering the apartment that has been the home of both for five years. The nephew had been missing since last Wednesday, on which day Crowe missed $90 and his gold watch and chain.

At sight of his uncle the boy took to his heels, which proved no fleeter than his uncle's, who caught him on the roof of an adjoining apartment house. There he confessed to taking the watch and showed the pawn ticket. It had brought him $5 last Thursday.

Of the missing money he pleaded ignorance, so his indignant uncle marched him to the Tremont Police Station, where he was locked up. He is a good boy, Mr. Crowe explained later, but he has been associating with many bad Bronx boys.

DOG BITES A POLICEMAN.

Harlem Detectives Suspect the Animal Did It in Revenge.

The police of Harlem are making a search for a brindle bulldog which bit Policeman George Heim last night at Lenox Avenue and 125th Street, scratching his leg and badly tearing his trousers. Heim had his wounds cauterized by Dr. Fulton of the Harlem Hospital, and was sent home on sick leave to have his trousers mended.

The Harlem Detective Bureau believe that the dog is the same one which used to be seen in 126th Street. It would growl savagely at any policeman who swung his club at it, or tried to kick it as he walked by. The behavior of the dog last night was such as to warrant the theory that it had a deep-seated antipathy to the police, and took advantage of a good opportunity to vent it.

Heim says he was standing on the northeast corner of Lenox Avenue and 125th Street when the dog broke away from a man who was holding it on a leash, dashed across the street, and seized him on the leg. As Heim raised his night stick the dog raced away, and its owner also disappeared.

BLUES CRUSH REDS IN PRACTICE FIGHT

Col. Bates, with Half of State Troops, Wipes Out Other Half Under Col. Conley.

ENEMY GETS BATES'S HORSE

Bold Charge of Squadron A Holds Up-State Cavalry While Blue Infantry Smashes Red Line.

Special to The New York Times.

PINE CAMP, N. Y., Aug. 8.—The battle of Hubbard's Corners, or, if you please, of Dave Hubbard's Farm, was fought to a finish this morning, the opposing armies, with the exception of a battery of the Third Regular Field Artillery and some up-State cavalrymen, being made up exclusively of Manhattan troops. Col. William G. Bates of the Seventy-first Regiment, commanded the Blue army, which included the Twelfth and Seventy-first Regiments of Infantry and Squadron A. The Red army, which was made up of the Sixty-ninth Regiment, Troops B and D of New York cavalry, and the regular artillerymen, was under command of Col. Louis D. Conley of the Sixty-ninth Regiment.

Col. Bates, who lost his horse, was almost captured, and who may have been strategically wounded or even killed—the umpire's report is not specific—directed a furious onslaught on the Red lines, and when the umpires called the battle off his forces were so situated as to insure certain annihilation of the Red men had the battle lasted half an hour longer.

It was the biggest encounter on Pine Plains since the mimic war of 1908, and after it was all over and the dead and wounded had reported well and ready for another battle at any time, the umpires were a unit in pronouncing the manoeuvre one of the most satisfactory yet held in this section of the country.

Late Sunday afternoon Col. Bates and Col. Conley received their final instructions to get ready to fight. It appears that Col. Bates, the Blue commander, had sent out a big detachment of spies and learned that a big force of Conley's men had reached Leraysville late Sunday afternoon and gone into camp, and that all along the road that leads through Antwerp, Carthage, and Fargo, the enemy was moving its supply trains in a manner highly menacing.

On top of this came the information that Conley was intrenching his army on the banks of Black Creek, (not the river of the same name,) while on a hill in the rear of the intrenchments the regular artillerymen were taking up a position. Friendly natives who had beaten their way through the bushes to the Blue headquarters gave Col. Bates even more detailed information concerning the activities of Conley's men.

The Natives Tattled.

Col. Conley, the invader, likewise learned much about Bates's movements, and some of his more talkative soldiers told the friendly natives, who tattled the news to Bates's army, that Col. Conley knew that the Blue force was assembling at Richmond, (there's a railroad eating house there,) and that there was another big detachment encamped on the banks of the Black River, on the outskirts of Watertown.

Thus everybody knew a battle was coming, and at 8 o'clock this morning the Blues broke camp and went out to meet the Reds. They met them on the Hubbard farm where it is crossed by Black Creek. The Twelfth and Seventy-first Regiments took up a position to the west of the creek, taking advantage of the natural cover to protect themselves from the fire of the artillerymen, who greeted them with a cannonade, the noise of which was heard in Carthage, seven miles away.

Bates's problem was how to get at Conley and still be out of range of the terrific artillery fire on the crest of the hill. Likewise he wanted to put an end to the mosquito-like activities of the pesky Albany and Syracuse cavalrymen who were operating with Conley's army. To get these latter fellows he designated Squadron A. The Manhattan horsemen jumped at the chance for more glory, but they had to find a way to get to their men without exposing themselves to the fire of the artillerymen. Accordingly, they took a roundabout way and finally, after describing a great circle, managed to find their chosen prey.

The horsemen went at each other hammer and tongs. Col. Conley heard the uproar of the conflict, and after a quick consultation with Capt. John McA. Palmer of the regulars, who was his chief adviser, he detached a big force of his infantrymen at a double quick over some of the roughest ground in New York to rescue the distressed troopers from the inland cities.

Malone Smashes Red Line.

Capt. Paul B. Malone of the Twenty-seventh United States Infantry anticipated that Conley would weaken his infantry line to save his cavalrymen, and he was quick to seize the opportunity that made the rout of the Reds complete. No sooner were the reinforcements well under way to the relief of the cavalrymen than Malone charged the weakened infantry line with Bates's full strength of foot.

As his men got under way to deliver the decisive blow, Col. Bates left his mount and hurried to a place of vantage from which he could see the victory won. It was while he was gone that half a dozen Reds sneaked in behind and captured his horse. He had to borrow a horse to ride back into camp, but that did not disturb him in the least, for he knew that he was the victor of the battle of Dave Hubbard's farm.

The number of killed and wounded on both sides was appalling. Squadron A lost at least three officers and fifty troopers, while each of the infantry commands had to shoulder casualty lists that footed into the hundreds. Major Wells of the Twenty-third Regiment of Brooklyn, who is a National Guard umpire, it was said was among those wounded. He was very much cut up about it, for his mortality has been very high. This is his third war in three years. In 1908 he was ruled out as dead three times; last year in Massachusetts he was killed once and wounded twice, and he had hoped that he would get through this conflict without a scratch.

The battle lasted about four hours, and was the forerunner of the still bigger battle scheduled for to-morrow, when the entire National Guard force will attempt to vanquish the regulars. Col. George R. Dyer of the Twelfth will command the State forces and Lieut. Col. Gale of the Tenth United States Cavalry the regulars in that battle. To-night the armies are sleeping under little shelter tents on the outskirts of the reservation, the regulars near Felts Mills and the National Guardsmen near Sterlingsville, fifteen miles off in the opposite direction.

The armies left their regular camps at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon, and each man carried the field ration that he would have to live on during the active warfare. Some of the tired soldiers didnt conceal the fact that they hated to make the long march this afternoon. The butcher of the Seventy-first Regiment openly rebelled. He said he enlisted to cut meat and not to sleep on the ground. He was successful in begging off.

Private Wilcox of the New York Signal Corps detachment said this afternoon that his Farman biplane was ready and that he expected to ascend and operate in conjunction with State troops during to-morrow's battle.

The Seventy-first Regiment and Squadron A will leave for New York to-morrow night. The rest of the Manhattan troops will leave early Wednesday morning.

PONDS SUPPLIED BY DEW.

Sea Mists Aid in Keeping Hilltop Reservoirs Filled with Water.

The question why Jack and Jill went "up" the hill, instead of down, to fetch the famous pail of water has been solved by the latest dictionaries, in which may be found the word "dew pond." It was to one of these, which are always built upon high ground, that the two were bound, says the Scientific American, adding that probably it was located on the English downs. Continuing, the writer says:

"The hydrology of the down country is topsy-turvy, for a down is an unland, and the downs afford a bountiful supply of water even when the vales are parched. Hence the singular spectacle of cattle being driven to the hilltops and carts sent uphill to procur water.

"What is a dew pond? The word is only to be found in the two newest dictionaries—the New International and the Century Supplement, both published this year—though it has been used locally for a hundred years, perhaps much longer.

"Dew ponds date back to a prehistoric era. They receive water directly from the air—whether chiefly in the form of rain, mist, or otherwise is a question still unsettled, impervious bottoms enabling them to retain all the water they gather. The bottom commonly consists of chalk or clay, over which is strewn a layer of rubble to prevent perforation by the hoofs of animals. A layer of straw is often added. The ponds measure 30 to 70 feet across, and the depth does not exceed three or four feet.

"The theory that these ponds are fed by dew—by the condensation of the invisible moisture of the air—is supported by Edward A. Martin, who has been making extensive observations in Sussex, and who believes that he has found an important source of the water supply in the frequent mists from the sea. From the Geographical Journal of August, 1909, we quote the following:

"'Every one acquainted with the Sussex downs must be familiar with the sea fogs which sweep inland from the south. One's clothing quickly becomes covered with a deposit of dew-like beads. * * * On some of the downs in West Sussex the highest parts are chosen for pond construction, as being more exposed to the moisture-laden winds. Dew would not be deposited if the air were in rapid motion, but fog brought in from the sea would remain in spite of the wind, provided the temperature were sufficiently low.'

"So the name 'dew pond' is a misnomer; but as Dr. Hugh Robert Mill has recently remarked, it would be a pity if this picturesque word should vanish from the language."

$250,000 GEM FAILURE.

Maiden Lane Firm Has Only $20,000 Assets—$25,000 in Stones Missing.

A bankruptcy petition was filed yesterday against L. Tannenbaum & Co., Inc., diamond dealers at 15 Maiden Lane. The liabilities were given as $250,000, and the assets only $20,000, consisting principally of unset stones, which, it is said, might be carried in one's vest pocket.

The petition was filed by attorneys for three creditors, with claims aggregating $13,000, and Judge Hough appointed Lee Reichman receiver, with a bond of $4,000.

The company, it was said, purchased a few months ago a large quantity of diamonds, which were sold at a great loss. Counsel for the petitioners said that an examination of the books shows that the corporation is "hopelessly insolvent," and that $25,000 worth of precious stones are missing, with nothing in the records to account for them.

The business was started in 1877 by Lippman Tannenbaum, who was Treasurer of the Kingsland Brick Company of Kingsland, N. J., which failed in July, 1907, for $101,000. In that case Rachel Tannenbaum was the principal creditor, with a claim of $84,000. Mr. Tannenbaum also was President of the Himalaya Mining Company, producers of tourmalines, turquois, &c., with mines in California and Nevada, which was organized in 1891 and capitalized at $1,000,000.

MAGISTRATE KNEW DOGS.

Awarded One in Ownership Dispute on the Strength of Its Own Testimony.

Special to The New York Times.

BURLINGTON, N. J., Aug. 8.—A thoroughhred brindle bulldog belonging tot Mrs. Eli G. Jones made Magistrate Smith's court lively this morning. The dog was claimed by John McLaughlin of East Burlington, who said that it was 6 years old. When the dog was brought into court he made one leap over the bench into the Maigstrate's lap, and then bounded on to a typewriter. The Magistrate promptly awarded the dog to Mrs. Jones. She had stated that it was a puppy.

PAID $150 TO GET BONDSMAN.

Prisoner Is Surrendered and Warrant Is Issued for Real Estate Man's Arrest.

When George Menges, 19 years old, who was arrested on June 21 last on a charge of taking $54 from the Venezuelan Consul General, Jacinto Lopez, of 1 Liberty Street, was arraigned in the Tombs Court yesterday before Magistrate Harris, his lawyer stated that the prisoner's wife had paid $150 to a real estate man for the purpose of obtaining a bondsman, and that the bondsman had just surrendered the prisoner.

The lawyer stated that the money had been paid when the young man was arrested and he had been bailed by Ciro Spino of 243 East 121st Street. Mrs. Menges met the real estate man to-day in the corridor of the court building and demanded the return of her money. When the man refused there was a scene which attracted a crowd. Maurice Meyer, Menges's lawyer, then went before the Magistrate and got a summons for the man.

The examination of Menges was then adjourned until to-morrow. A new bondsman was furnished and Menges was again released.

OLD SWINDLE REVIVAL.

The "Spanish Prisoner" Is Writing Letters Again to Americans.

A systematic effort to revive the old Spanish prisoner swindle is now being made by operators abroad. In the past few weeks the swindlers have flooded the State with scores of letters telling of a draft for $330,000 which is held in the seized trunk of an absconding banker. The banker promises $110,000 to the man who will send $2,400 to pay his fine and obtain his release, so that he can redeem the trunk with the draft hidden in its secret compartment. The letter says quick action is necessary before the trunk is sold at public auction.

The postal authorities are trying to catch the swindlers and their American confederates by co-operating with the Spanish Government. Effective work has been done through a case reported by Christopher Morgan, a policeman, of 31 Vernon Avenue, Brooklyn. Hugh Smollen of Bayside, L. I., brother of Joseph Smollen, the chauffeur who eloped last December with Margaret Leavitt, a Flushing heiress, was one of those who reported receiving a letter.

DIRECTORS REGRET TO LOSE HASSINGER

President of Southern Iron & Steel Co. Resigns of His Own Accord, Officials Say.

SUCCESSOR NOT YET NAMED

But Vice President Miller's Place Has Been Filled by James Bowron—Concern's Financial Condition.

The Southern Iron and Steel Company made an official statement yesterday in explanation of the retirement of President W. H. Hassinger and other changes in the executive staff announced in dispatches from Birmingham, Ala., on Saturday. It had been suggested in the dispatches from the South that there was friction between the management and President Hassinger, and the company's statement yesterday was made to contradict this idea.

Mr. Hassinger assumed the Presidency of the company in 1909, after its reorganization to succeed the Southern Steel Company. He was one of the practical steel men surviving from the original organization formed to consolidate the Alabama Steel and Wire Company, the Underwood Coal and Iron Company, and other properties.

Of his resignation the company's statement said:

> Mr. Hassinger having completed all of the work of construction, extension, betterment, and improvement contemplated under the reorganization of the company, and having completely organized the company with as competent a set of operators under Vice President F. B. Keiser as has ever been gathered together, and having actually started and brought into successful operation the first wire-finishing product mills in the South—mills second to none—will at his own request be relieved from a continuance of his responsibilities in September. It will be with regret that we part with Mr. Hassinger's services, but appreciating that having perfectly completed the organization, in fact, to quote his own words, "the company no longer requires my services," we feel we must comply with his wishes. Although Mr. Hassinger will cease to be an officer, he will nevertheless continue to render all possible assistance and advice for the welfare and success of the company, and we feel that Alabama as well as the company owes to Mr. Hassinger a lasting debt of gratitude for his efficient work in reorganizing and rehabilitating the property.

The statement goes on to describe in glowing terms the present high efficiency of the company's organization, saying: "We can but state that we long ago passed the hopeful stage and are now at the assurance stage; and why should we not be?" The natural advantages of the Birmingham district for the company's business and the efficiency of the plant and working forces are then described.

Of its position as a producer and its general financial situation, the statement says:

> In the past year the Southern Iron and Steel Company has spent upward of $2,500,000 in construction, betterments, improvements, and extensions. We have now practically reached the unit of production contemplated, by our original plan, but this does not by any means mean the end.
>
> Sales of wire fence, barbed wire, nails, &c., are quite up to our expectation. We must admit that collections are slow, but this is not unexpected. Banks curtail their loans, and, like a disease, this spreads, and every one immediately proceeds to conserve his cash resources. It is really not an unhealthy condition because the characteristic American optimist requires an occasional check to avoid unbridled and ultimately disastrous overproduction.
>
> We were pleased to find that on July 1 after the completion of the new work, the balance sheet of the Southern Iron and Steel Company showed free net cash and quick assets of $1,866,020, against which there was but $947,151 of unsecured current liabilities.

Robert B. Van Cortlandt and D. G. Boissevain of the firm of Kean, Van Cortlandt & Co., were largely interested in the original Southern Steel Company and its reorganization, which involved the radical scaling down of its capital. Included in the Directorate were Cornelius Vanderbilt and R. T. Wilson. Last Spring the firm of Kean, Van Cortlandt & Co. was dissolved, Mr. Van Cortlandt retiring to take a long rest in Europe, and at the same time D. G. and G. L. Boissevain withdrew. Hamilton F. Kean and Moses Taylor, neither of whom is a Director of the Southern Iron and Steel Company, formed a new Stock Exchange firm with J. R. Swan under the name of Kean, Taylor & Co. Mr. Van Cortlandt is now back in New York.

C. A. Grenfell, representative on the board of the English security holders of the company, left Birmingham for New York yesterday, the understanding being that he will sail for Europe shortly to report to the foreign interests. At the same time W. W. Miller, Vice President, general counsel, and Director of the company, resigned as Vice President and was succeeded, according to dispatches from the South, by James Bowron as Vice President and Treasurer in charge of the commercial operations and fiancial affairs of the company.

It is stated that no consideration has yet been given to the choice of a successor to President Hassinger.

Battersby Is Swimming Champion.

The annual swimming race for the amateur long distance championship of England, which was originally known as the "Lords and Commons" contest, because the first cup, won outright by Horace Davenport, was purchased with subscriptions obtained from the members of both houses of Parliament, was decided on July 24, over the usual course, a distance of about five miles and sixty yards. The water was somewhat cold, the temperature being about 60 degrees, but it was fairly smooth, and T. S. Batterby of Wigan, who led all the way after the first 100 yards, won in the new English record time of 1:03:12 2-5. H. Taylor of Chadderton, last year's winner and holder of the perpetual challenge cup, was second. There were thirty-three starters and twenty-eight finished.

HELD AS OPIUM SMUGGLERS.

Two Engineers of an Ocean Liner and a Saloon Keeper Arrested.

Customs Inspectors locked up in Police Headquarters, Hoboken, last night Johannis Gella and Carl Ahmien, engineers on the Hamburg-American liner Agagonia, lying at Pier 55 North River, Manhattan, and Henry Schroder, a saloon keeper of 160 First Street, Hoboken. The first two are charged with smuggling and the latter with being a receiver of smuggled articles. The arrests were made after some days' investigation of a story of opium smuggling, which reached the Custom House in a letter from a man who was disgruntled with some of the men interested in the plot.

The Federal officers, assisted by the local police, went to Schroder's saloon shortly before 10 o'clock last night. They say they found there the two engineers, who were selling to Schroder nine and a half pounds of opium. Customs watchmen were placed on guard at the saloon last night, and this morning Inspector George Malley will obtain a search warrant from United States Commissioner Russ and search the premises.

The arrests are expected to lead to another investigation at this port. It is said that the officials have received information that the smuggling of opium and codeine has been going on for months. It is particularly profitable now, since the passage of the law restricting the handling of the drug and making smuggling almost impossible. It was also said that such investigation would be based upon confessions.

GAS KILLS MOTHER AND BABY.

Tube Slipped from a Stove and Both Were Found Dead.

Mrs. Edward Gilmore of 117 Ninth Avenue crossed the hall last night to call on Mrs. Mary Mankin. She received no answer to her knocks on the door. Smelling gas, she tried the door, and, finding it open, entered the apartment.

The odor of gas almost overcame her, but she made her way to the kitchen, where she found Mrs. Mankin seated in a chair, holding her baby son John in her arms. Both were dead. A tube to a gas stove had been pulled from the pipe. It was old and worn, and apparently slipped off accidentally.

DONKEYS ON TRACK BALK POLICE EFFORTS

Eusapia and Ned Stubbornly Resent Heroic Efforts of Reserves to Remove Them.

WESTCHESTER WANDERERS

Pulling Tails Only Woke Them Up—Police Wished for a Steam Crane to Hoist Obstinate Beasts.

The five reserves of the Westchester Police Station had the time of their lives last night persuading two donkeys who were sleeping on the car tracks at Castle Hill Avenue and Walker Avenue to come to more suitable quarters.

One of the donkeys rejoices in the name of Eusapia, and the other contents himself with the more simple name of Ned. They are old offenders in the wander habit, and the police say they have had several complaints against them. A fireman, Arthur Pages of 2,193 Sterling Avenue, is now under bail in the Westchester Court because of the donkeys.

Sunday morning Pages saw the donkeys trampling on his flowers from his window and when he came down to shoo them off he found Policeman Fisher also on the flower beds. An argument began, and culminated by the policeman locking up the fireman for interfering with him in the performance of his duty—shooing trespassing donkeys.

The donkeys were taken to a stable near the police station. George Shand, 9 years old, of 1,151 Virginia Avenue, claimed them, saying that they were a gift from his father, who left them to him when he died. From George the police learned the names of the animals.

Last night a motorman on a southbound car told Policeman Hunger that two donkeys were lying on the northbound tracks.

Hunger did not wait to investigate, but ran to the station house and breathlessly exclaimed to Lieut. McAuliffe:

"Eusapia and Ned are trying to commit suicide on the car tracks."

"If they succeed they won't cause us any more trouble," grumbled the Lieutenant, but he summoned all his available men to help Hunger. They ran to the tracks and then the trouble began.

Prods, kicks, and bad language had no effect on the animals. Neither of the donkeys had as much as a piece of string as a harness, and the reserves had been in such a hurry to do their best that they had not provided themselves with any implements to remove the donkeys. They were convinced at first that nothing but a steam crane would haul the donkeys from their positions.

Attempts to move the donkeys by twisting their tails resulted in waking them up, but the police decided that the hind legs of a good healhy donkey can make even a valiant Westchester policeman feel hurt. Holding a donkey's head by its ears may be possible to those acquainted with the brutes, but the police could not see how it was possible to get an obstinate donkey to rise by holding its ears.

United action was necessary, and the five policemen decided to tackle one donkey at a time. Using the thongs of their nightsticks as lassoos around the legs of Eusapia, they lifted the donkey bodily. Adopting the same tactics with Ned, they were successful also, but, Eusapia had taken it into her head that the southbound tracks were as comfortable as her former quarters, and was settling down again before the police had finished their work with Ned. This time, however, the police had gained by experience, and raised her without much difficulty.

The next job was to get the donkeys to the station house. By this time two or three cars had been stopped by the operations, and the police went in search of rope. The motormen had none, but a Good Samaritan appeared from one of the houses in the neighborhood with some. A noose was fastened around the necks of the animals, and with two policeman dragging at each of the ropes and the fifth policeman using his night stick on the animals as they became refractory, they managed to get them to a stable near the station house.

Late last night a policeman was sent to tell young George Shand to come and get his donkeys.

FAVORITES FAIL OVER FAST TRACK

Outsiders Land Races at Saratoga—Leah Leads Youngsters—Henderson Has Bad Fall.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 8.—Favorites were bowled over this afternoon, though a good day of sport was offered by the Saratoga Racing Association. The track was fast for the first time since the opening of the meeting, and the bright weather made the Monday crowd a particularly large one. The feature of the afternoon was the Kentucky, a selling dash at five and a half furlongs, for two-year-old fillies, and it went to Leah, from the Newcastle Stable.

For the Kentucky Richard F. Carman's Horizon seemed to be easily best on all of her races, and it was natural that she should be an odds-on favorite at post time. She was ridden by Shilling, and that added to her chances, in the opinion of the players, though, as a matter of fact, Shilling was in wretched form during the day, and he did not score in a race. When the break came Shilling was slow to have Horizon away, while Martin was very alert with Leah, and she took the track in the first furlong.

Helen Barbee was the one to chase along after her, and the pair had it between them to the stretch, where Gold of Ophir was along in time to take the place, but Leah had won very easily by three lengths. She was neglected in the betting and went to the post with 8 to 1 offered about her chances.

The steeplechase of the day was for maidens, and of the nine that raced four came to grief. The ones to fall were Bannock Bob, Profusion, Indiola, and Hylda. Henderson, who had the mount on Hylda, was the only rider hurt in the four tumbles, and his injury was a broken collarbone that will keep him out of the saddle for some days.

The winner of the race turned up in Jesuit, a jumper from the stable of Ivan Fox, that is trained by Harry Stone, a few seasons back one of the best cross-country riders in the East. Stone made no secret of his hope of winning, and Jesuit was one of the well-played winners of the afternoon.

John Sanford scored his first purse of the meeting when his Herkimer made a show of the three-year-olds that started in the seven-furlong race. The Sanford colors have always been popular here, and he had a good following, closing at 4 to 1, while Uncas Chief was held at a like price.

Medallion, the three-year-old for which Capt. E. B. Cassatt paid $10,000 last season, was another of the winners, but he was one of the big surprises of the day, his price being 20 to 1 at post time. He led from end to end, while Woodcraft, the Hildreth starter, on whom Shilling had the mount, could never reach a contending position. Bonnie Kelso took the mile and a quarter, and Eagle Bird, played for a good thing in her previous start, beat the two-year-olds in the first race very handily. The summaries:

Fast Time for Three-Year-Old Trotter.

Special to The New York Times.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Aug. 8.—In the 2:17 class trot at the Blue Grass Fair here to-day, J. R. Magowan's three-year-old colt J. Malcolm Forbes electrified the spectators by trotting the two heats for a winning race in the fast time of 2:09¼ and 2:10¾, the world's record for two heats trotted by a three-year-old so early in the season.

Notes of the Turf.

After the mile and a quarter race yesterday at Saratoga in which Pretend finished second he was claimed by William Walker for $1,440.

Starter Cassidy suspended Jockey Shilling for three days for misbehavior at the post on Woodcraft in the last race.

For the convenience of out-of-town patrons it has been decided to set the Saratoga races back fifteen minutes, and beginning to-day the first race will be called at 2:45.

Chalmers "30" Touring Car, $1,500.

THE 1911 CHALMERS CARS ARE HERE

APPEARANCE

The 1911 Chalmers is in every line eloquent of motor car beauty—and more—beauty inseparably allied with style. In its richness, its simplicity, its grace, the obvious good form of every appointment, the exquisite harmony of line and finish so evident of good taste and correct usage, it is the perfect equipage for those whom we think of as "nice people." It has the sort of quiet elegance one associates with a beautiful woman, a well-groomed man, a well-appointed household. It is good form—the best form—and very beautiful, indeed.

SERVICE

We estimate that Chalmers Cars have been driven more than three billion miles this past year. Several million of these miles were over roads far worse than any you will ever traverse in a car. This is the ultimate test of design, material and construction. To say that all three stood the test would be trite and inadequate—rather like saying that ice is cold. Design, material and construction were permanently proven to be so exactly best for the cars that we cannot better any feature of either of the three. These cars did all that any car could do—and remember, we do not except any cars at any price.

The service these cars gave has made the Chalmers reputation so big a thing, so standard, so wide, that you who read already know that Chalmers Cars are safe to buy, safe, sure, solid business-judgment-cars, which give the best service that money can procure. The 1911 Chalmers bears the reputation that this mileage made—it is an outgrowth, a development, a refinement of three billion miles. The 1911 Chalmers is the best car we can build—it is sound as a gold dollar—it is good everywhere—we are very, very proud of it.

We talk about this service, this reputation, because we are proud of it; but, after all, it is summed up in the phrase which you will remember whenever you see the name Carl H. Page and Company—"We guarantee the service," and, after all, that's what you want to know and ALL you need to know.

The 1911 Chalmers will give a better service than our former car, because the test of three billion miles has enabled us to add a few minor touches of refinement for the comfort of the owner and his guests—to add a bit of beauty, a trifle of grace, of richness in line and finish. We have anticipated your wishes, then idealized them—and you will find them all, and far better than you dreamed, in the 1911 Chalmers.

PERFORMANCE

It is significant that besides winning so great a percentage of classic road races, important hill climbs and track races—89 Firsts, 18 Seconds and 12 Thirds out of 137 entries—that the "Horseless Age" has called Chalmers Cars "the Champion Cars."

Chalmers Cars also won the Detroit Trophy in the Glidden Tour last year and the Glidden Trophy itself this year. Last year with the "Forty," this year with the "30." Think of it! This year with the "30"—the fifteen hundred dollar car.

This year's tour, the 1910 Glidden Tour, the tour the Chalmers "30" won, was so severe that not one single car finished with a perfect score.

Our car ran five days longer with a perfect score than any other car at any price, and the third day the residents of Dallas, Tex., and along the route wagered 10 to 1 that no car at all would ever finish that day's run.

In the Indiana Trophy Road Race at Chicago last June the Chalmers "30" won and averaged faster time than the big cars in the Big Car Race the next day.

In the Vanderbilt Race on Long Island in October, 1909, the Chalmers "30" won the Massapequa Trophy, establishing a new world's record—59 miles per hour—for light cars. The same day in the Big Car Race for the Vanderbilt Cup the Chalmers "Forty" led all the others all the way for 240 miles, averaging for that distance 62.2 miles per hour.

Again the "30," again the "Forty."

Here are some of the more prominent events which Chalmers Cars have won: The Jericho Sweepstakes, the Indiana Trophy, the Santa Monica Road Race, the Minneapolis Tribune Trophy, the Brighton Beach Marathon. At Atlanta, Ga., out of 23 entries, Chalmers Cars won 5 Firsts, 11 Seconds and 7 Thirds—every entry "in the money."

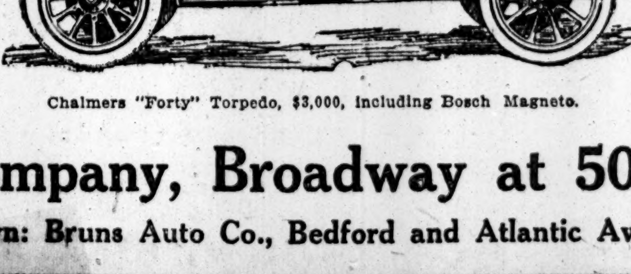
Contest records compiled by motor trade publications and technical boards, covering both Europe and America, show that the Chalmers "30"—$1,500 stock model—has won a greater proportion of big events entered and has finished a greater proportion of races started than any car in the world.

Some cars have specialized in road races or hill climbs or track races, but no car in the world ever won such conspicuous victories in all of these four classes of motor contests.

Truly THEY ARE the Champion Cars.

SATISFACTION

There is satisfaction in owning a Champion Car. No matter what company your Chalmers may be in, it will have the respect and the deference due a Champion. To own a Chalmers is to have them all know that your car is beyond reproach—that its service is unsurpassed. Every one knows what Chalmers Cars have done—every one knows what your car will do if called on—speed, endurance, hill-climbing ability—all championship timber all the time. There's the satisfaction of possessing the most that money can buy of beauty, style, good taste, good form—of expressing good judgment—of owning the correct thing. And way down deep, a foundation to build on, a safeguard to tie to, there is the satisfaction of knowing "We guarantee the service."



Chalmers "Forty" Torpedo, $3,000, including Bosch Magneto.

REFINEMENTS IN DETAIL

The curves just back of the tonneau have been straightened out, making the low, rakish, straight-lined bodies which every maker strives so hard to obtain. The seats have been lowered, adding materially to the riding comfort.

The tonneaus of both "30" and "Forty" have been made longer and wider. The fenders have been changed slightly, adding to the graceful appearance of the car and at the same time affording greater protection from water and mud.

The angle of the steering post has been changed slightly, so as to allow more space between steering wheel and driving seat.

The brackets supporting the running boards are fastened inside the frame, making the exterior of the car appear perfectly smooth.

Note the wide, beautiful doors. Hinges and door locks are furnished by a famous lock manufacturer; no better can be bought.

On the "30" the dash, heel boards and the door strips are of black walnut; on the "Forty," Circassian walnut. All handles, mouldings, levers, etc., are shapely and massive.

The battery box has been placed under the tonneau floor, and a tool box big enough to hold a pump placed on the left running board, a change that every driver will praise.

New style carburetors are used on both the "30" and "Forty" motors, and their economy and uniformity of operation under all conditions will surprise every buyer.

DEMAND

We have secured every car which the factory could be induced to allot to this territory. We wish we could secure as many more. Many intending purchasers were disappointed this year, as we were sold out completely early in the year. Many will be disappointed for 1911. We have already sold many of our deliveries for every month between now and May. We still have some deliveries for every month from September 1st to May 1st, 1911. The choice of these dates will soon go. Just now you can get a 1911 Chalmers for delivery almost exactly when you want it—in a month the dates you prefer may be gone. Better come in NOW and look over the 1911 Chalmers, and look over, too, our delivery sheets.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich. Aug. 8.—Detroit took the fourth game and made a complete clean-up of the series with the Yankees this afternoon, forcing the New York team down to fourth place in the pennant race. The score was 2 to 1. Warhop held the champions to four bingles and had good control, but the misplays of his teammates cost him the game, at least the chance of the contest going overtime.

Hal Chase wasted a chance to tie it up by an unsuccessful attempt to steal third with one out in the fifth, Criger singling on the next pitched ball. Stroud, making his first appearance since the return of the Tigers from New York, was little behind the Yankee flinger, the Yanks' allotment being a half dozen smashes. Five of them were packed into three innings, the bunching in the sixth of a pair giving the visitors their lone tally. Save for a fumble by Davy Jones, which cost the Tigers nothing, the Detroit twirler was given perfect support. But a slip by Wolter was more costly. Laporte also had a hand in the mess that cost Warhop a run. Cobb's single registered at the proper moment decided it and prevented the teams from indulging in an extra-inning conflict.

New York made four misplays, but a single error of commission is also figured in the tally getting, this one by Laporte being responsible for the annexation of Detroit's second run Crawford started the excitement in the second by doubling just inside the left-field foul line. Moriarty sacrificed. Warhop tried for a play at third, but Crawford was safe. Moriarty was caught off first a moment later. Bush walked, and Jones's single to left sent Crawford across the plate. Schmidt forced Tom Jones at second and put Bush on third. Bush strolled too far off the bag and was nipped by Warhop's quick throw. Stroud opened up the Tiger half of the third inning by poking a grounder at Laporte. It went through the second-sacker and Ralph got life. Davy Jones advanced the twirler with a sacrifice, Warhop to Chase. Delehanty fanned, but Cobb's single to left permitted Stroud to score, Wolter fumbling the hit on which Stroud should have been held at third.

Wolter, who replaced Daniels on account of the collegian's weak hitting, celebrated his return to the game by singling in the sixth. He advanced on Hemphill's out, Delehanty to T. Jones, and scored on Cree's single to left.

Two hits, a pass, and an error were collected by the Yankees 'n the fifth, but Stroud managed to escape without allowing the combination to be converted into a run.

Hard Luck for Scott.

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—Scott, who relieved Young in the first, after two runs had counted on Milan's double, Schaefer's single, a hit batter and an infield out, pitched no-hit ball, but Washington won, 3 to 2. Johnson was found for four hits, including a triple and scratch single in the seventh that netted Chicago a tally, and his lack of control and McBride's error counted another in the ninth.

VANDERBILT'S BOAT TAKES FIRST RACE

Aurora First to Finish Third Squadron Run of New York Y. C. to West Chop.

Special to The New York Times.

WOODSHOLE, Mass., Aug. 8.—The third squadron run of the New York Yacht Club's annual cruise ended at West Chop this afternoon, after a fairly fast race, at least for the leaders, of thirty-seven miles from Brenton's Reef to this port. It was a long race for all the yachts. At the finish they had head-winds and a strong tide running to buck against. Former Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt's sloop Aurora, sailed by W. Butler Duncan, Jr., was first to finish. She crossed the line at 6:07:18, and won the Rear Commodore's Cup for the large sloops. It was her first victory of this cruise, and she administered the first defeat to the Shimna.

The cup for the smaller sloops was won by Stuyvesant Wainwright's Cara Mia. Elmina and Irolita, owned by E. Walter Clark, won the two schooner cups. The prizes offered by Mrs. James for auxiliaries were won by the Intrepid and Seneca.

Aurora reached the finishing line at 6:07:18. She had to buck a head tide and sail against head winds, and it was slow work getting in, but she did better than some yachts which followed her. The Winsome was next in at 6:18:55, and then came the Elmina, at 6:28:08. The Shimna finished at 6:28:56 and although she had won in her class she had suffered defeat in the race against the 65-footers, and it was her first defeat on the cruise. The Istalena was next, at 6:32:08. The Irolita had done remarkably well. She finished far ahead of the yachts in her class, crossing the line at 6:34:19.

The Katrina finished at 6:38:45, and then came the Sea Fox, at 6:47:16; the Ariel, at 6:51:04; the Dervish, at 6:01:08; the Iris, at 6:56:50; the Cara Mia, at 6:59:15; the Seneca, at 7:01:12, and the Irondequoit, at 7:04:35.

Heavy clouds made it quite dark and on the committee's boat a searchlight was used to pick up the numbers on the racing craft as they crossed the line. Far in the distance the lights of the yachts showed far away and it was late before the last one was in port.

In a light breeze from the southeast and west-going tide, seventeen schooners, twenty sloops, and two yawls made a pretty start at 10 o'clock in their third squadron run to the eastward, the first leg of which was a beat dead to windward of 17¼ miles from the starting point off Brenton's Reef Lightship to the Vineyard Sound Lightship.

Harold S. Vanderbilt's schooner Vagrant led the F class over the line at 10:15. She was on the port tack. Meeting the Cygnet on the line she was forced about. The Dervish and Miladi were the other two starters in this class, and they both got away on the starboard tack. At 10:20 George Batchelder's Dorello led the sloops in Classes L, M, and N, but she crossed a few seconds too soon, and was recalled by the committee, so the Mimosa II. was really the leader, with the Shimna close on her weather beam, the Adventuress, Phantom, Polaris, Hermes II., Irondequoit, and Eleanora following in that order.

The start of the sixty-five-foot class at 10:25, all being on the starboard, was inspiring. H. F. Lippitt with his Winsome managed to obtain the weather berth, but George M. Pynchon, with the Istalena, crossed the line first, just to leeward of the Winsome, with the Hester under her lee beam, and the Aurora, handled by William Butler Duncan, Jr., to leeward of all, but going fast with her wind clear. Capt. Duncan put her about at once and stood off shore on the port tack. The others held the starboard tack, heading in for the Rhode Island shore.

As soon as the Winsome, Istalena and Hester could weather the eastern buoy on Breton's Reef they stood close in to the north shore. Then coming about, they worked that shore in short tacks up to West Island, which the Winsome passed about an hour after the start. Still standing along on the starboard tack they kept that shore just under their lee for about five miles, when the Winsome came about and stood off shore to meet the Aurora, which on the starboard tack had obtained a commanding weather position and was trying in vain to pass the Shimna. That sloop had taken a position about an eighth of a mile on the Aurora's weather bow, and in the light breeze she was able to stay there with little difficulty.

At 12 o'clock, when the leaders had covered about half the distance between the lightships, and when the Vineyard Sound Lightship was in plain view the Shimna was the leading sloop and the Elmina the leading schooner. She passed West Island Light at 12:45. It was about three miles on her lee beam. The Idler was at this time the second schooner.

The Aurora not being able to get through Shimna's lee tacked off shore at 1 o'clock, the Shimna following suit five minutes later. The Aurora held the port tack just ten minutes, until Capt. Duncan thought he could fetch the lightship, then he let come around again, and headed to the eastward. When she met the Shimna coming off shore she easily crossed her bow by several lengths. The Winsome tacked off shore at 1:30 for twelve minutes, crossing the bow of the Istalena by a margin of at least 500 yards. When the Winsome had made another short tack she was able at 2:02 to fetch the lightship. Both seemed to have overstood a little into Buzzard's Bay.

The times taken at the Vineyard Sound Lightship were: Aurora, 2:03:10; Shimna, 2:06:51; Winsome, 2:08:20; Istalena, 2:10:24; Elmina, 2:16:02; Adventuress, 2:23:37; Hester, 2:28:59; Dorello, 2:30:09; Taormina, 2:30:34; Mimosa II., 2:35:34; Seneca, 2:36:20; Cara Mia, 2:37:13; Idler, 2:39:17; Alera, Iris, 2:41:54; Phryne, 2:42:40; Katrina, 2:44:10; Irondequoit, 2:46:30; Dervish, 2:47:10; Polaris, 2:47:12; Irolita, 2:49:20; Eleanora, 2:50:15; Sea Fox, 2:52:08. This shows that the elapsed times of the leaders from the start to this lightship was: Aurora, 3:39:10; Winsome, 3:43:20; Elmina, 3:45:02; Shimna, 3:46:51.

With a fair tide and a reaching breeze of fairly good strength fast time was made by the fleet through Vineyard Sound, and at 3:30, when the Aurora passed Tarpaulin Cove she was plainly the winner in her class. The summaries:

MOTOR CYCLISTS IN RAIN.

Endurance Run of 505 Miles Starts from Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Aug. 8.—One hundred and twenty-three contestants for honors in the ninth National endurance and reliability run of the Federation of American Motorcyclists left the Century Motor Clubhouse here to-day for a 505-mile journey through Pennsylvania, New York, and New Jersey. The first of the motorcyclists got away at 7 A. M. sharp and the last left the clubhouse at 8:03.

The run will last three days, finishing at the starting point. To-day's trip was through Reading, Allentown, and Easton in Pennsylvania; Phillipsburg and Hackettstown, in New Jersey, to Stroudsburg, Penn., where the night will be spent. The length of the day's run was 170.6 miles.

To-morrow's run will be through Port Jervis and Newburg, in New York, and Northern New Jersey to Newark, and Wednesday's will be through Southern New Jersey.

The three days' run is one of the big events of the annual meet of the Federation of American Motorcyclists, which will conclude on Friday and Saturday at Point Breeze Park, in this city, with a series of races for all classes of motorcycles. Some of the best motorcyclists in the world will compete.

Rain began falling shortly after leaving here and the cyclists were drenched before they reached Reading, the first control, sixty miles from this city. Bad roads were encountered and much magneto trouble was experienced.

HARPOON AND CIMA LEAD.

Elimination Trials in Sonder Class Race Held at Marblehead.

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., Aug. 8.—The Harpoon, owned by C. F. Adams, second, and the Cima, owned by Guy Lowell, both of the Eastern Yacht Club, carried off the honors to-day in the first day's racing of the elimination trials to determine the three American contestants in the Spanish-American sonder yacht races to be sailed off this port next week. They came in winners in their respective divisions in each of the two races held to-day. Weather conditions were of the lightest character. The Lady, owned by R. De B. Boardman, and the Beaver, owned by C. H. W. Foster, both of the Eastern Yacht Club, won second place in their respective divisions in each race. The elapsed time showed The Lady a little in the lead for second place.

The Regatta Committee arranged a system of points for the series, giving the leading boat in each race a zero mark, with one for the second boat, two for the third, and so on.

BUNDY A SURPRISE IN TENNIS MATCH

Californian Defeats Alexander in Southampton Tourney—Slocum Downs Pell.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 8.—Thomas C. Bundy, the Californian, contributed the leading feature to-day in the opening matches of the lawn tennis tournament on the turf courts of the Meadow Club here, which is preparatory to the all-comers' National championship next week at Newport. Bundy worked his shots freely, and defeated Frederick G. Anderson, the Reading, Penn., player, 6—1, 6—0, love.

It was the occasional absentee among the sixty-four aspirants that allowed only half of the first round to be decided. Maurice E. McLoughlin was ready to play, but his man had not appeared. Drummond Jones, the Yale player, fresh from his competitions at Omaha, took the place of Melville H. Long and defeated Karl B. Smith 6—3, 6—3, by side line shots.

Throughtout his match Bundy worked hard, with telling effect. Anderson's drives never passed Bundy, who showed improved form over that of a year ago, when he played William J. Clothier to a standstill in the National championship.

An outcome that afforded joy to the old-timers was the victory of ex-National champion Henry W. Slocum, who defeated the former Harvard crack, Clarence C. Pell, 6—4, 4—6, 6—2. Slocum tricked Pell out of the shots right along. He feinted for backhand slashes, only to gently send the ball sailing in the opposite direction.

Bob Huntington made his appearance, but was defeated by Arthur S. Dabney, Jr., of Harvard, 4—6, 6—2, 6—1. The veteran Huntington could only maintain his pace in the first set. Then he caused Dabney to appear as a novice he passed him so easily. When Huntington was compelled to let down, Dabney forged to the front, losing only three games in the deciding sets. Another veteran, Tailer Howard, defeated James G. K. Lawrence, 5—7, 6—4, 6—3. Another match of interest was the defeat of the Yale expert, F. M. Watrous, by Richard H. Palmer, 6—4, 6—3.

In the handicap doubles portion of the tournament three pairs gained semi-finals brackets to-day. The three-set match in this portion of the tournament was that in which Pell and Gallatin defeated Seymour Johnson and Alonzo Potter, minus 30, 6—2, 2—6, 6—3. Lobbing, coupled with fine and steady smashing, finally allowed Pell and Gallatin to win this match. The summary:

Men's Handicap Doubles.—First Round—N. C. Reynal and L. Laroque (minus 15) defeated J. D. Sawyer and Seth B. French, (scratch,) 6—3, 6—4; Seymour Johnson and Alonzo Potter (minus 30) defeated B. Hoffman and S. D. Babcock (plus 15) by default; F. L. Pell and A. Gallatin (minus half 15) defeated George Atterbury and Goodhue Livingston (scratch) by default; Harry Sproul and William De F. SULLIVAN DEFEATS WELLS.

Irish Fighter Earns Good Victory at Olympic A. C.

Paddy Sullivan, champion of Ireland, and Matt Wells, champion of England in the lightweight division, who met last night in the feature event at the Olympic A. C., furnished one of the fastest bouts seen at this club this season. At the conclusion of the contest the Irishman had earned a good victory over his English rival. Both men were of the rugged type, and mixed matters fast and often, but the strong punch of Sullivan worried Wells and had him cautious throughout the bout.

Wells scored with a left jab to the face frequently, and occasionally with hard rights to the stomach, but the Irishman's blows were much harder and when he landed the punches had telling effect, which was evidenced in the first round, when Wells doubled up from a wicked right hand smash on the jaw.

Wells held his opponent safe for the first five rounds, and brought first blood in the second round from Sullivan's left eye. Wells, however, showed blood in the third round and continued to bleed from the nose until the last round.

Sullivan scored the hardest blows in the last four rounds, and was the stronger of the two, but in the final both men dragged along at a slow pace.

STANLEY KETCHEL HURT.

Slight Injury to Foot Causes Postponement of Bout with Bill Lang.

The ten-round bout scheduled at the Fairmont Athletic Club on Friday night between Stanley Ketchel, the middleweight champion, and Bill Lang, the Australian heavyweight, has been postponed until Tuesday night, Aug. 16.

The postponement was necessitated on account of an injury to Ketchel while training. A scratch on one of his feet just above the instep developed into a slight case of blood poisoning, which needed the attention of a physician. Lang, who is training at Bond's, in Stratford, Conn., was informed of Ketchel's injury and readily consented to a postponement.

Ketchel's injury, while not serious, will force him to go easy for a while with his strenuous training stunts.

JOHNSON LIKES AUSTRALIA.

Champion Says He Will Not Defend Title in This Country.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 8.—Jack Johnson is contemplating a trip to Australia. The colored champion says the fighting game is dead in this country, and he is not likely to be defend his title in the United States.

Australia, the place where Johnson first sprang into the championship limelight, will probably be the scene of his next encounter with any one who seeks heavyweight honors.

The champion announced to-day that in all probability he would head for the Antipodes next Summer, following his theatrical engagements in Europe. Jack has received flattering offers from Hugh McIntosh, the promoter, and it is probable that he will go to London.

NEW RECORD FOR UHLAN.

Trotting Gelding Covers Mile at Cleveland in 2:01.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 8.—The opening of the second annual meeting at North Randall Track and the third week of Grand Circuit racing to-day was signalized by the breaking of a world's record. Uhlan, driven by his owner, C. K. G. Billings, trotted a mile to wagon in 2:01 flat, thereby setting a new mark for trotting geldings.

It was apparent that the son of Bingen and Blonde was out to make history when the first quarter was passed and the board showed his time to be 0:30¼. When the half and three-quarter poles were passed and the black had not faltered for an instant the big crowd stood up and begged him to beat his old mark of 2:02¾. He responded nobly, and clipped one and three-fourth seconds off the record.

Favorites had an easy time of it in the four events on the programme. With the exception of the 2:04 pace the races were won in straight heats, with the choice of the field leading handily. The summaries:

Canadian Swimming Championships.

A. Murray Hannah, President of the Canadian Swimming Association, has extended to Secretary-Treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union James E. Sullivan an invitation to have the leading American swimmers compete in the Canadian championships at Ottawa Saturday. The Canadian Amateur Swimming Association is the controlling body of all amateur swimmers in Canada, and its President is more than desirous of having competition between the cracks of the United States and the cracks of Canada. It is promised if the Americans will enter a team that in return the Canadian Association will enter a strong team in the A. A. U. swimming championships during the Winter. The entries for the Canadian championships close to-morrow with A. Murray Hannah, 151 St. James Street, Montreal, Canada.

Good Card at Sharkey A. C.

An excellent programme has been arranged for the weekly stag of the Sharkey Club to-morrow night. In the wind-up "Battling" Jack Nelson, the Brooklyn fighter, and Jeff Doherty, the New England champion, will meet for ten rounds. They met several weeks ago, when Doherty beat Nelson. It was a good mill, and now Nelson wants satisfaction. Both are in good shape, and a hard fight is looked for. Besides the main bout there will be five more contests between good boys.

LONDON, Aug. 8.—A catch-as-catch-can wrestling match for $1,000 a side was contested at a London music hall to-day between the American wrestler, Dr. B. F. Roller, and Gama, the champion of India. Gama won the first fall in 1 minute and 40 seconds, and the second in 9 minutes and 9 seconds, winning the match.

MR. ROOSEVELT AND A TARIFF COMMISSION.

In the current number of The Outlook Mr. ROOSEVELT has an article on "A Remedy for Some Forms of Selfish Legislation." The most important feature of it is an incidental plea for a tariff commission.

Most of the article is devoted to other matters, to the evils of special pensions and river and harbor appropriations. Mr. ROOSEVELT is not mealy-mouthed on these points, or on the weakness and cowardice of Congressmen individually and as a body. His comments in this direction verge on the contemptuous, and have the cockiness of the outsider. Had he reached the White House through an apprenticeship in Congress he might be less confident and sweeping. This, however, is a minor matter. Mr. ROOSEVELT's eccentricities of manner are well known in Congress and out of it, and a little more or less of politeness from him does not count. As we have said, the most interesting point in his article is his present view as to a tariff commission. We quote it in full:

> Such a tariff commission could get at the facts of labor cost here and abroad by expert inquiry, and not by the acceptance of interested testimony; such a commission could consider dispassionately the probable effect upon the entire social and economic body of all changes in any given branch of the tariff, and its recommendations would represent the exercise of careful judgment from a disinterested standpoint. Such a commission could work in harmony with the Commissioner of Labor, so as to insure that the laborers for whom the tariff is passed get the full benefit of it; for the major part of the benefit of a protective tariff should unquestionably go to the wage-workers.
> Even under such conditions of tariff-making errors might be committed, but they would be merely those errors of disinterested judgment incidental to every kind of public or, for the matter of that, private effort, and the work would not be hampered from the beginning by the need of gratifying private selfishness.
> It is only in this way that tariff legislation, river and harbor legislation, and pension legislation can be treated from the standpoint of principle and not from the very low standpoint of privilege and preference.

Mr. ROOSEVELT proceeds, very innocently, to remark that "the obstacle hitherto to the adoption of such a method of treatment has come from the queer dislike felt by so many Congressional leaders to a course of action which they (quite unjustifiably) feel would in some way be a limitation of their powers." This remark is an engaging example of the preposterous levity with which the ex-President can, when it suits his purpose, ignore the most obvious facts. He has been many years in Washington and several years in the White House, and he has the "nerve" calmly to tell Mr. ALDRICH and Mr. PAYNE, Mr. CANNON and Mr. DALZELL that any fear they may have that a competent tariff commission would be "a limitation on their powers" is "quite unjustifiable." He might as well assure the dealers whose false weights and measures are being destroyed by the Mayor's raiders that their concern as to the effect on their profits is "quite unjustifiable." "You do take my house when you do take the prop that doth sustain my house," said the experienced Shylock. If the power of making rates under the tariff, which is the power to fix the price of political favors, is to be reduced by the intervention of tariff experts, the whole vast "bargain counter" will be put in the way of abolition. If the tariff is no longer to be "treated from the very low standpoint of privilege and preference," what is to become of the men who have carried on the traffic in preference and privilege?

It is but just to Mr. ROOSEVELT to assume that he is not really as innocent in this matter as for the moment he appears to be. We are at an interesting point in the discussion of the tariff. The insurgents of his party have declared vigorously for a tariff commission as the only hopeful way of securing retreat from the unfortunate situation in which the party has been involved by the action of the Congress and of President TAFT. Mr. ROOSEVELT takes this occasion and this means to assure them that he is in sympathy with them. He is not very bold or definite about it, but just now his peculiar rôle as a pacificator makes definiteness and boldness inconvenient. He has given a mild indorsement to the commission idea, and he has conspicuously omitted any reference to Mr. TAFT's Board of Experts. That, for the present, will answer.

THE FRENCH AVIATORS.

The conditions imposed upon the contestants in the aeroplane race over a circuit of 486 miles, with six stages, arranged by The Paris Matin, are the hardest any of the airmen have yet had to comply with. The flight must begin at a fixed hour from each of the cities at which a stop is made. This is the first time in the history of flight with heavier-than-air machines that the time of starting has been fixed without regard for the weather. Yet six of the eight aviators who fulfilled this exacting condition in foggy weather successfully completed the first stage of the flight to Troyes, and all eight were getting ready yesterday for the second stage to-day.

The Matin's race promises to be successful, and is certainly the most remarkable thus far in the history of aviation. All France is interested, and, for that matter, so is all the rest of the civilized world. Steering by compass through the haze-filled air is a new and startling feat that stirs the imagination. The Matin's prize to the winner—the airman who flies over the whole circuit in the shortest time—is $20,000. Other prizes amounting to $32,400 will be given by the various cities in the circuit.

A MIRACULOUS ESCAPE.

The escape, without serious injury, of every passenger and the crew of the eighteen-hour "flier" of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Canton on Sunday must be accounted as in a sense miraculous. The train was speeding at the rate of seventy-five miles an hour when the accident to the engine lever caused six Pullman cars to leave the track before the air brakes became effective. There was not, to be sure, the risk which the Twentieth Century Limited encountered in its head-on collision a month ago, with nineteen fatalities. Doubtless, too, the prompt action of the engineer and the stiff framework of the cars reduced the risk considerably, so that most of the passengers were delivered with hardly a scratch and with little shock.

The spectacular character of train wrecks makes railway travel seem more dangerous than it is. The actuaries of the life and accident insurance companies figure that most persons are safer in railway coaches than afoot in the streets. The last annual report of the Bureau of Railway News and Statistics shows that of 368 companies reporting to the bureau, 347, carrying 570,617,563 passengers, had not one fatality to a passenger during the year, and ten of the remaining twenty-one had but one each. On a length of 159,657 miles of road, equaling the aggregate mileage of all Europe, excepting Russia, there was complete immunity. And the injuries to passengers on British railroads are 100 per cent. higher than on the American roads.

CHEERFUL CROP PROSPECTS.

The utility of the unpleasant process through which the produce and security markets have been passing was made apparent yesterday. A loss of 200,000,000 bushels of corn since July and of 70,000,000 bushels of Spring wheat, making comparison with last year, was not adapted in and of itself to stimulate buoyancy. But so much worse than this had been predicted by the pessimists that the augury is cheerful rather than otherwise, and at the worst prices are on hard pan.

Despite the large loss of corn there has been only one larger crop, and that at less remunerative prices. This year's crop, therefore, is a record breaker in value if not in quantity. The loss of Spring wheat is moderate compared with expectation, and is made up partially by the appearance of unexpected abundance of Winter wheat. There are 23,000,000 more bushels than indicated in July, and a larger increase compared with a year ago. The combined wheat crops will not be a bumper in quantity, but they will come pretty close to a record in quality. We are getting something better than estimates at this stage of the crop, and the samples promise unusual excellence in edible and merchantable qualities.

In brief, we had our crop scare so early that we are now experiencing the benefit of crops made on rising rather than falling conditions. It is a pleasure to think of the perils we have passed, and another pleasure to think of the abundance almost in the bins. Critical days have improved the prospects since these figures were prepared, and each succeeding day lessens the prospects of general failure. Anything like a crop calamity is now only a remote possibility, and very shortly it will be an impossibility. It is a fair chance now that the worst which can happen already is in the prices for securities and commodities.

A GREAT MODERN INDUSTRY.

Of old Artemus Ward, advertising the exhibitions of his moral panorama, announced: "During the Summer vacation the hall has been swept and a new knob put on the door." This was a happy travesty of the preliminary theatrical announcements of those days. In every interval of rest the few flimsy playhouses, if the managers spoke truly, were entirely redecorated, new act drops were painted by famous artists which, when revealed, seemed to be very much like the act drops painted by equally famous artists for other seasons; huge fortunes were expended on new frescoes and gas fixtures, mirrors, and real velvet curtains. Time has changed all that. The theatres of this hour are solidly built and tastefully decorated, to begin with, and when it is necessary to repaint the walls or do a bit of extra carpentering on the stage the managers do not advertise the fact.

The early theatrical announcements of these days contain no such piffling. They fairly take one's breath away by their torrential quality. Plays, plays, plays; so many human beings are writing plays, so many expending their own and others' money in producing them, so many more are acting them, or making the pictures and machinery, the dresses and wigs, their performance requires, or telling the world about their merits, for hire and salary, that the theatrical business has become one of the great modern industries. The lists of new plays promised for performance this season hereabout that have been published within a week or so denote the results of the labors of a legion of play writers in Germany, France, Austria, Italy, and the United States, many of whom were unheard of a very few years ago. They will require the services of a vast army of actors. They comprehend all branches of the drama and its adjunct entertainments excepting, perhaps, tragedy, which is almost moribund, and pure comedy of the old-fashioned, uplifting quality. But comedy in these days is a term of wide significance. Probably it would be unwise to mourn the loss of tragedy and the decay of tragic acting, in view of the excellent performances of serious lyric drama we are to have at the opera and the close studies of the graver side of contemporary social life some of the living dramatists are able to give us.

To speculate on the probable fate of this or that play in the formidable list now set before us is not to be thought of. Some will doubtless blossom feebly and fade in a week. Others may never reach the metropolis after trial "on the road." Some may survive in the current repertory for four or five years and then die of old age. If there is an epochmaking work among them it will not lack recognition. But there are surely enough to meet all demands and supply all deficiencies. The American theatrical business in the year 1910 is a wonderful business, in which millions of money are invested, in which thousands of fertile minds are employed, in which patience and perseverance, and talent, too, for that matter, are tolerably sure of reward.

CHILDREN AS CHAUFFEURS.

Boys and girls under 18 years of age cannot lawfully run automobiles. This is the interpretation of the new law by the Attorney General, and has especial significance in application to young persons who have been accustomed to run their own machines, regarding their ownership as qualifying them in some way. And they have hitherto been somewhat fortified in this view by the practice of the lower courts in dealing more leniently with owners, or children of owners, than with hired chauffeurs.

Obviously it makes little difference to the person run over by an automobile whether or not the chauffeur is licensed or hired. The object of the law is to make accidents fewer, however they are caused. The juvenility which disqualifies a chauffeur for obtaining a license disqualifies a child from operating a car without adult control. The Attorney General decides that the law provides as well as intends this. In his words the phrase allowing a child to operate a car when accompanied by the owner contemplates an adult owner of qualified judgment and responsibility. Moreover,

> If a person under 18 years of age owns and operates a motor vehicle then he cannot be accompanied by the owner of the same vehicle; in other words he cannot be a companion to himself, or be accompanied by any person, so as to comply with the restrictions imposed by the statute.

It is a pity to mar the sport of the youngsters or to check the pride of their parents who enjoy seeing them running locomotives on the public highways. Nevertheless, there should be better appreciation of the fact that the motors are really locomotives, and that they are run under conditions more trying than those encountered by railway engineers. Locomotives run on special tracks, with block signals and with a minimum of pedestrian interference. The automobiles run among foot and wagon traffic, and often at most imprudent speeds. A child can do little harm with a pony and governess cart, but a child would not be trusted with a span or four-in-hand. Yet children are trusted with high-power cars. Children still may drive them, but it is not too much to ask that they should be accompanied by others than by companions who are not competent to judge whether or not their lives are being risked, as well as those others whose safety is imperiled without their having any of the sport or any other protection than the law which the Attorney General interprets thus reasonably, although contrary to the general practice in many suburbs.

ART AND LIFE.

The New Jersey youth who saw, in a moving picture show, the graphic representation of self-murder by escaping gas, and then went home and killed himself in the same manner, imitating all the scenic details of the pictures, illustrated newly the strong influence of art on life. For the moving picture show is surely art, differing only in degree from the masterwork of a great painter. Art is a representation of life, and the moving picture represents life, somewhat concentrated and artificially arranged, in an effective if somewhat wabbly way.

The New Jersey youth, by taking his own life under the immediate influence of art, has provided valuable testimony in support of the argument of a moral reformer against the admission of a portrait of a gentleman smoking a cigarette to a public art gallery. The argument was that the counterfeit presentment of a person important enough to have his portrait preserved in the act of smoking a cigarette might influence the young of future generations to smoke cigarettes. A new view of art is thus thrust upon the world. The artists of the reformed, denatured future must remember that art exerts an influence. Think of the hitherto esteemed masterworks that must be suppressed in a regenerated world!

If any incredulous scoffer cares to say of the youth influenced to self-destruction by moving pictures that any fool knows enough to shut the windows and turn on the gas without the assistance of art, he may take what gratification he can from his own wit. We tell the tale as it was told to us, and find the weighty moral close at hand.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Our Chilean National Guest.

We have received ample assurance of the incorrectness of our inference, based upon his quiet reception in this country, that Señor MONTT, the President of Chile, is not in every sense a guest of the Nation.

It seems that President MONTT's visit here is merely a pleasant incident of a trip to Europe, whither he is bound for the sake of his health; that the Chilean Legation at Washington some three weeks ago arranged with the State Department for his reception and entertainment in the United States, and the programme was drawn up altogether to suit the Chilean President's convenience and desires. He preferred not to travel incognito, but he wished to meet President TAFT and to see a few of our institutions. He was saluted upon his arrival in Boston Harbor and was there accorded every honor. He wished to lunch rather than to dine with the President, who sent the yacht Mayflower to meet him. His indisposition has obliged him to cancel some of his engagements. Mayor GAYNOR would doubtless have been glad of the opportunity to entertain the President of the powerful Southern republic, were Señor MONTT disposed, on his part, to endure the strain of the banqueting and formalities. In short, he is having a good time unostentatiously, and we are glad that he will continue on his journey with a good impression of American hospitality.

Counting Bacteria in Ice Cream.

The City of Chicago is getting excited over the reports of FREDERICK O. TONNEY, chief chemist and director of its laboratories, that bacteria are also fond of the ice cream vended to its inhabitants. Mr. TONNEY found 88,000,000 of the germs in a single cubic centimeter—about fifteen drops—of one prominent manufacturer's cream, and from this finding he points the moral that refrigeration carries with it no assurance of freedom from germs. Seven Chicago manufacturers were selling the frozen cream, or pudding, with a content of over 10,000,000 bacteria per centimeter; most of the others were above the one-million mark, which is regarded as the proper limit.

Doubtless search would reveal similar conditions in the ice cream plants of this city. But no patronizer of them need be alarmed. Even Mr. TONNEY says that the bacteria are rarely of the disease-breeding kind. The high counts can be taken as indicating that the cream during manufacture or afterward has been exposed to the ordinary kind of dirt in air, in utensils, or on workmen's hands. But the occasional danger from these sources is not always negligible, and no consumer cares to buy cream even harmlessly infected and besmirched.

This City's "Gang" Terror.

We heartily agree with The Evening Post that the law should be administered as though its penalties were deterrent to others as well as corrective of the offender. We do not agree with Judge FOSTER's curious view that it cannot be deterrent "except in such conspicuous cases as that of ALBERT WOLTER." In THE SUNDAY TIMES's discussion of the outbreak of the "gang" terror in New York was given the court records of certain "gang" leaders, revealing too plainly the soft-heartedness of Magistrates and of complainants who had suffered their criminal indignities. The doctrine "Boys will be boys" is so ingrained in the minds of some Magistrates that they fail to perceive the need of special measures of strictness and even of harshness to repress a spirit of lawlessness which infects the groups of future criminals that terrorize our streets. Father RAYWOOD is right in urging sternness. Of course, the social workers are right, too, in saying that the city fails to keep properly the records of offenders and to follow their course of probation. Finally, Park Commissioner STOVER speaks whereof he knows when he states that parents are overfond of shifting their responsibilities upon the city. But Prof. WILLIAM Z. RIPLEY both accounts for this tendency in an immigrant city and reveals the seriousness of the problem in his statement which appeared in The Atlantic Monthly of December, 1908:

> In the transitional period of acquiring English the dependence of the parents upon the children entirely reverses the customary relationship. Even young children, having learned to speak English in the public schools, are indispensable go-betweens for all intercourse with the public; and as a result they relegate the parents to a subordinate position before the world. Census enumerators and college settlement workers agree in citing instances where the old people are commanded to "shut up," not to interfere in official conversations, or, in the familiar admonition, "not to speak until spoken to." The decadence of family authority and coherence due to this cause is indubitable.

The children learn English, and at the same time lose their respect for the religion and the morals of their elders. They are, unfortunately, no longer above the law, and they should be brought sharply under it. The penalty of the workhouse or the jail for a gang leader would make him taste bitter medicine, while his absence from his little coterie of fellow-ruffians would be quite conspicuous enough to affect them in exemplary wise.

THE "GANG TERROR."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I incline to strong sympathy with the article in the Sunday Magazine Section of THE TIMES on "Gang Terror" in New York. The misplaced leniency of the Magistrates has been most injuriously sustained and promoted, and the practical efficiency of the police hampered by the Mayor's attitude, emphasized by his recent night visit to a Magistrate's court.

The question is asked in THE TIMES's article referred to: "Who is responsible for the revival of bands of young outlaws in this town?" My answer is that the individual who has done the most indirectly to encourage them and to impede the police is the Hon. William J. Gaynor of Brooklyn Borough in his capacity as Mayor of New York. In support of this contention I will ask to call only two sets of witnesses—the police and the gangs themselves.

This thing of tying the hands of our city guards is supreme folly. Let the rare cases of actual police brutality be adequately punished, of course, but don't pass the word down the line that any gang of thugs who are spoiling for a fight may have the privilege of "beating the face off a bull," as they chastely phrase it, with no fear of punishment, but with an actual chance of seeing the officer reprimanded for fighting back! What this city, and the country in general, needs badly is a little less sympathetic attention to criminals and more attention to preserving the rights of the plain, decent citizens. There is not one chance in a million that a man who goes quietly about his business will ever collide with a New York policeman's club. And there are some thousands of hoodlums in town to whom a club would convey more uplift toward good citizenship in ten seconds than "Golden Rule" theorists could instill in a month.

WORK OF DIET KITCHENS.

Reduction of Infant Mortality—Need of Funds.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Every charity which includes among its beneficiaries the babies of this city finds it difficult and almost impossible, at this dreaded season of Summer heat, to procure the necessary funds for their relief, and for the instruction of tenement house mothers—an incalculable factor for good in the prevention of sickness.

This is the case with the New York Diet Kitchen Association, which furnishes pure milk to the sick poor on the presentation of requisitions signed by doctors, nurses, and other charitable agents. More than this, at the instance of the Board of Health mothers are supplied with milk in order that they may be able to nurse their infants, prevention being better than cure.

Seven hundred and sixty-nine children under two years of age have been cared for during the past month by this society. There is no doubt that the reduction in infant mortality may be traced in large measure to the work of the New York Diet Kitchen Association. It must not be forgotten that tuberculous patients and those suffering from any illness receive help at the kitchens. The cost of supporting a kitchen for one year is about $3,000. The managers have been told by those in authority that if they could have eighty milk stations the death rate in New York City would be diminished by one-half. I desire to make a most earnest appeal to the generosity of the public for money with which to continue and still further increase our efforts to save human life. In the absence of the Treasurer, donations may be sent to

The Laying Out of New York.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Occasionally our forefathers are unfavorably criticised for having laid out the streets of New York the wrong way. Well, let us imagine them laid out "the other way," thirty-six or so avenues running north and south, each a more or less busy and noisy artery with its trolley, elevated, subway, and wagon traffic; the long blocks (about seven to the mile) running north and south and the short ones (about 200 feet long) east and west. As the depth of the avenue lots would be 100 feet, the entire length of these short side-street blocks would be occupied by the properties facing on the avenues. There would be no room anywhere for a single house to front on any side street. Where would we find streets with any kind of privacy at a time when every private thoroughfare running north and south is being invaded more or less by New York's increasing business? With long rows of high and deep flats on shallow blocks it would mean a lot of noise in front and a minimum of fresh air and light in the rear of the city's habitations. These conditions now obtain in many attractive localities, but are somewhat atoned for by the quiet and privacy of the side streets.

After all, perhaps our forefathers builded better than they (or we) knew.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The prohibition proposition is not as stated by Mr. George G. Brown: "The use of alcoholic beverages is subject to abuse; therefore the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages should be prohibited." The prohibition proposition does not touch the abuse of alcoholic beverages, nor the question of the individual's use of same in any manner. The Prohibition Party (to quote one of the best articles on the subject I ever read) "does not deal primarily, if at all, with man's habits, but with his vote. It does not stand for the foolishness of talking up schemes for dealing with the phenomena of drunkenness. It stands flat-footed and squarely for the destruction of the traffic that makes drunkenness possible with its hellish brood of crimes. It believes that history and experience and observation all demonstrate the fact that the logic, the philosophy, the common sense of the whole liquor problem is summed up in one sentence: Remove the cause and the effects will cease."

The "W. J. L." Monument.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Being a modest person, as suggested by "M. F. B." in Sunday's TIMES, I am yet quite willing to have a statue erected to me, but only upon the condition that "M. F. B." is not the designer of it. As big and strong as New York is, it couldn't possibly stand another memento of greatness as painful as is the Grant Tomb.

MAYOR GAYNOR SAILS TO-DAY

Gives Parting Instructions to City Officials—Will Be Gone a Month.

Mayor Gaynor, who will sail to-day for Europe for a vacation of a month, conferred yesterday with a majority of his Commissioners, giving them final instructions, &c. His most important visitors were President Mitchel of the Aldermen, who will be Acting Mayor during his absence, and Acting Police Commissioner Bugher.

The Mayor would not discuss his conversations with any of the department heads. He had no comment to make on the police situation, and when asked about the Coney Island exposé made by THE NEW YORK TIMES replied:

"I was down at Coney a month or so ago and didn't see anything out of the way."

The Mayor said the Croker investigation will be held up until he returns to the city.

His last official act was to address a letter to Controller Wilson of Chicago, who had written asking information concerning the proposed budget exhibit. In it he said in part:

> It is gratifying to hear of budget progress in Chicago. You have helped us and other American cities by your classification of appropriation titles which shows at a glance whether for supplies or salaries, etc.
>
> We want taxpayers to realize that our city budget is not a book of 350 pages, but a carefully worked out plan for spending their money and doing their work, therefore this exhibit and our resort to photographs, charts, samples, lantern shows and other means of "popularizing" the facts about city needs and city expenses.

The Mayor will go alone, and will spend the greater part of the time abroad in England, Scotland, and Wales.

THE POSTAL DEFICIT.

Would Wipe It Out by Different System of Bookkeeping.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In yesterday's TIMES an item appeared telling of the fact that Postmaster General Hitchcock expects to see the entire postal deficit wiped out next year, the amount of the deficit for this year being only $6,000,000.

Is there really a Post Office deficit? In asking this question I am not alluding to the oft-made, and I believe true, charges that the railroads are paid an excessive amount for the work they perform for the Post Office, nor for the other charges, which I think are not true, that the newspapers and magazines pay the Post Office not enough. What I am referring to is the work done by the Post Office for the various Governmental departments, including Congressional and other franking privileges. It seems to me that the amount of work so done by the Post Office should be charged against those several departments, and not against the Post Office. If that were done, I venture to think that a pretty big slice of the so-called Post Office deficit would disappear.

It is merely a matter of bookkeeping which could be carried out at very little cost, and to much profit. All that is necessary to do would be to require all official mail of the several departments except the Post Office Department to be stamped with the proper amount of stamps. The same should be done with mail matter going under franking privileges. Of course, they would not use the same stamps which the paying customers use. Special stamps should be issued to the various departments, the amounts to be charged up against them. It would matter little whether they paid the Post Office Department for the stamps, or whether it would be merely a matter of book entries.

I do not know, I suppose nobody knows, what a tremendous amount of free work the Post Office is doing for other branches of the Government, these departments appearing thereby as being carried on rather cheaply, while the Post Office is charged with a deficit. Imagine all the departments of a big department store throwing their expenses for mailing and expressing on to the shoulders of one of their number. That one department would make a fine showing for profits. No private business would think for one moment of doing such an absurd thing.

UPHOLDS THE POLICE.

Thinks Mayor Gaynor May Go So Far as to Discredit Them.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your editorial article, "Haroun Al Mayor" doubtless the conclusion as to the Mayor's aim is well justified. But I fear that Mayor Gaynor, wise as he is in his generation, will have to readjust his spectacles before he can help us New Yorkers to a look in at Utopia on the police situation. Nothing, in my opinion, can be gained by publicly discrediting the police and so placing them in contempt with the people. Considering the heterogeneous character of our population, and the imperfect average conception of liberty as distinguished from license, it is of especial importance that the authority of the police force should be upheld and its dignity strengthened and preserved. That New York is gang-ridden, that the turbulent masses are allowed too much freedom of their own devising, is painfully evident in the daily chronicles.

Too much emphasis has already been laid on the "misuse" of the policeman's club. The instances of real misuse have, I firmly believe, been few and far between, and while such offenses should be dealt with severely on the facts disclosed, there has, in my opinion, been nothing to justify a general outcry of "police brutality." Here is where the Mayor should exercise careful judgment in his concern for the people's welfare.

Gang rule will never do in this first of American cities. Mischievous violence should be put down, with violence if necessary. The movement of certain political interests some time back, to deprive the policeman of his club, was preposterous, no matter on what ground it was advanced. Mayor Gaynor is an accessible executive, and rightly so, but in the continuance of that policy he should always bear in mind that the evildoer has more grievances to relate against the police than has the orderly, law-abiding citizen.

Reformers of Smokers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I want to say a word of appreciation for your editorial article on "Smoking and Meddling." Whatever one's personal views on the subject of women smoking, to single out one woman whose every move for some years has been criticised, usually wrongfully, is something much more than "tactless." It will do more harm than good to the cause of these would-be reformers.

I am tremendously in sympathy with big-minded reformers, but I believe that such must have, first of all, clean minds and a broad viewpoint. Fortunately, as we know, the lady attacked has a keen sense of humor, and is perfectly well able to do as she has done in the past—manage her own affairs.

The exasperating phase of the whole affair, to me, is that it is impossible to penetrate the hide of these Pecksniffian "reformers," to say nothing of their evil minds.

Ice by Weight.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The "ice-by-weight" question is one of considerable interest. If the dealer is bound to deliver to us what we pay for it will be a nice question to adjust.

How would it do for the icemen to contract to supply families for so much money per week? I would rather pay five cents for a "chunk" than to wait until the driver cuts off seven pounds three and a half ounces, which would be about right. We all want sixteen ounces to the pound, but this one article—ice—is rather elusive. A piece may weigh four pounds on the street and melt two ounces while being "toted" up seven flights of stairs. What are we going to do about it?

STIRRED BY SLIGHT OF SERVICE BOARD

THIRD COMPLAINT HEEDED

Station's Single Stairways Too Narrow for the Traffic—Board Awaits Action on Subway Extension.

The University Settlement, at Rivington and Eldridge Streets, has been urging on the attention of the Public Service Commission as a much-needed public improvement the removal of the Rivington Street station on the Second Avenue elevated to Delancey Street. It was learned at the office of the Public Service Commission yesterday that this question has been postponed pending a settlement of the larger controversy between the commission and the Interborough in reference to the extension of the Subway and the third tracking of the elevated roads.

Rodman Gilman, head worker of the Settlement, however, complains of the cavalier treatment he received at the hands of the commission. He first wrote to them on March 29, giving facts and figures in support of his contention that the removal of the station was necessary, and he asserts that he did not receive even an acknowledgment of this letter. He sent another on May 4 with like absence of results, and it was not until after a third communication, dated May 27, that any satisfaction was obtained from the commission. Travis Whitney, the Secretary, did, after that date, see two representatives of the Settlement.

Jacob A. Katz, President of the East Side Business Men's League, said yesterday:

"The conditions are really intolerable. Allen Street, along which the Second Avenue line runs, now is so narrow that the station at Rivington Street is almost touching the sides of the houses. We want to get rid of it to let in the light and the air. Then, in Rivington Street, are a number of public and semi-public buildings, such as the University Settlement, the Public Library, and a large synagogue, and it ought to be cleared of the obstruction caused by the station stairways.

"Only a block away is Delancey Street, 150 feet wide, right on the line of the Subway loop and Williamsburg Bridge, and there would not only be room for a really commodious station there, but it would also be on the line of the stream of traffic."

In his letter to the Public Service Commission on March 29, Mr. Gilman declared the facilities afforded by the Rivington Street Station to be "absolutely insufficient" and its condition to be "unsanitary and highly dangerous in case of the slightest disturbance." He explained this by pointing out that the single staircase to be found on each side of Allen Street is only from 31 to 36 inches wide, that is 31 inches at the top of the staircase and 36 inches on the stairway proper. The result is, Mr. Gilman said, that two persons could not pass without one of them stopping and bending back over the rail to allow the other to go by.

Mr. Gilman gives figures to show that the Rivington Street station exceeds in passengers Canal and Grand Streets on the Second Avenue, and Canal Street on the Third Avenue line, and is only exceeded in that district by Grand Street on the Third Avenue. Moreover, he proves by figures that the traffic from Rivington Street is gaining more rapidly than from any of the other stations.

Mr. Gilman also pointed out to the Public Service Commission that their predecessors, the State Board of Railroad Commissioners, had in June, 1907, decided that further facilities were necessary at Rivington Street, but that the Interborough had been unable to get permission from the property owners to put in additional stairways.

After Mr. Gilman had sent his third letter to the commission, on May 22, Mr. Whitney did see James F. Lavery, one of the residents of the Settlement.

The Rivington Street matter was brought before the commission in the Spring of 1908, when Jacob A. Katz, David Blaustein, Charles B. Stover, and other well-known east siders appeared before Commissioner Eustis at a public hearing to urge the change. It was, however, refused by the commission without any formal statement of its reasons. It was stated then that the cost of the shifting of the stations would be $60,000.

It was declared yesterday at the offices of the Public Service Commission that there must be some mistake about Mr. Gilman's not receiving even an acknowledgment of his letters, as it is the rule of the commission that every letter should be acknowledged.

EAST SIDE TO CELEBRATE.

Plan Week of Rejoicing Over the Improvement of Delancey Street.

A week's celebration is being planned by the east side for the beginning of October to mark the formal opening of the improved Delancey Street. The street, 150 feet wide, will extend from the Williamsburg Bridge to Marion Street. The widening of the old street has been finished for some time. The bids for paving and electric lighting west of the Bowery were opened yesterday.

The east side is proud of the new street. Plots in the centre of the street are for ornamental purposes, and as soon as they have been fenced alternate plots will be planted with shrubs, grass, and flowers. Seats will be placed in others. The street will be a highway for Williamsburg workers who walk back and forth between their homes and Manhattan.

The property owners along the street have built substantial stores and have allowed few saloons on corners. They are proud of the Public Bank, at Ludlow Street, and declare that the boulevard will be the finest thoroughfare the east side ever will have.

So early in October a week is to be set apart for rejoicing under the auspices of the East Side Business Men's League, the East Side Civic League, and other organizations. Mayor Gaynor will be asked formally to open the street, and Borough President McAneny and Park Commissioner Stover will be invited to speak on other days. An effort is to be made to interest the children, as in their hands rests largely responsibility for the keeping of the boulevard in proper order.

JEROME TO DEFEND SKENE.

Confers with Other Counsel for Former State Engineer.

ALBANY, Aug. 8.—William T. Jerome, former District Attorney of New York, has been engaged to assist in the defense of Frederick Skene, former State Engineer and Surveyor, who was indicted last week by a special Grand Jury in connection with alleged irregularities in the award of good roads contracts during his administration in 1907-8. Mr. Jerome is here to consult with Mr. Skene and his counsel, Jacob L. Ten Eyck.

Supreme Court Justice Coman, who was designated by the Governor to preside over the extraordinary session of the Supreme Court and a special Grand Jury which is considering the Skene charges, will hear motions on Wednesday preliminary to the trial of the indictments against Skene and several former State officials and contractors.

Among the popular devices of the theatre for creating laughter, none, perhaps, has been in greater favor for a longer period than that which involves a naturally timid man in an enterprise requiring bravery, or at least a show of nerve, and it is this expedient again which is resorted to in Mr. Winchell Smith's so-called farcical romance, "Love Among the Lions," founded upon Mr. F. Anstey's story of the same name and acted at the Garrick Theatre last evening.

The result, as has been so often the case before, is an agreeable little piece of theatrical fiction which, if it is neither as deep as a well nor as broad as a barn door, will serve very well to while away an evening in the absence of more important things. Something more entertaining might have resulted, however, had there not been either the effort to retain too much of the original story or too great reliance upon the strength of the idea.

This idea, involving the resolution on the part of an emotional young woman to be married in a cage of lions or not be married at all, is funny enough as it goes. Nor need there be any quarrel upon the subject of its plausibility. Obviously, one is not supposed to take it seriously, and obviously no one will do so. The main point should be to reduce the absurdity of the situation to the minimum, a result which might best be obtained by leaving the auditor less time to think about it. If, then, Mr. Smith's two first acts had been rolled into one, and instead of a second act which repeats the preparation already somewhat tardily accomplished in the first, the characters had been brought more promptly to the crucial situation, the fun would have been keener and more enduring.

The final act involving the two principal characters in one of these misunderstandings which so often occur to prove that true love never does run smooth in farce is by far the most direct of the lot. And likewise it is the most amusing. Here the audience as well as the people on the stage are temporarily allowed to do a little guessing, which is rather a good thing nowadays, as the necessity for obviousness, which was once a rule in the theatre, has gone the way with some other respected traditions.

The means by which Mr. Theophile Sauders, a gentleman who is pursuing the peaceful occupation of tea taster, is precipitated into a position which involves his appearance in a cage of savage lions, not to mention a bloodthirsty man-eating tiger, and is ultimately saved from that experience through his own timidity, need not be detailed at length. Suffice to say that he gets the girl he is after without any decided show of courage on his part, while the lion-tamer's assistant, a faithful and trusting heart, who is in danger of being jilted, finds a way to make her fickle lover marry her. So it all comes right in the end.

Barring the unfortunate expansion of the play to limits which serve to emphasize the tenuousness of the idea, Mr. Smith has done his work with characteristic skill, and there are several scenes which provide opportunities for that kind of acting which is genuinely comic because it impinges closely on the serious.

All things considered, however, the occasion was chiefly interesting as a means by which Mr. A. E. Matthews, a most delightful comedian, is introduced to our public. He has had rôles in London which have provided him with better and fuller opportunities, but here there is at least a chance for the display of his neatness and deftness of method. Both play and player were somewhat too slowly paced last night, especially in the two first acts, but Mr. Matthews conveyed very delicately and charmingly the natural timidity of the hero, his subsequent nervous show of a courage which he does not feel, and the recurring delight at the suggestion of obstacles which he hopes may prevent the carrying out of the romantic ideas of his fiancée.

So delicately was all this nuanced, indeed, that the ultimate result was a sort of sympathy for the young man at the point of his greatest dejection. The scene in the lion tamer's quarters where he makes an attempt to shave himself two minutes before the time for going into the cage of beasts was absurdly funny as he acted it, and always it was natural. Also, it had the human undercurrent. If at the final moment there was not quite the responsive throb of sympathy, the fault was rather with the situation than the playing. Au audience's mental attitude is not to be absolutely overcome without a degree more of preparation than appeared possible here.

A stranger to most of those present at the outset Mr. Matthews undoubtedly faced a houseful of friends before the final curtain fell. His presence on our stage is a decided acquisition.

The cast, indeed, is exceptionally good as to important parts, Miss Jane Oaker making her reappearance in a line somewhat removed from the tearful heroines she has generally acted, and playing with a most amusing ingenuousness.

Her scene of "nerves" in the final act was capitally done. Then again, Miss May Blayney, who has not been seen here for several seasons, and who in the meantime has made a great success in London in "The Little Damozel," appears in a sketchy little part, but makes it very telling by the charm of her treatment of it. Ernest Stallard and J. E. Miltern do characters excellently, while minor rôles are nicely handled by Mr. Sterling, Mr. Handysides, Mr. Simpson, and Amy Sumers.

DAZIE'S ANNUAL MISHAP.

This Time She Almost Drowns—Dr. Schenck In Limelight Again.

When Mlle. Dazie, an actress, appeared at Rockaway Beach last year in "The Love of an Artist," a playlet in which she is stabbed by the artist, a great furor was created by a report that she accidentally had been stabbed with a real knife instead of with the paper "property" knife. Dr. W. Schenck undertook to cure her wound, however, and Mlle. Dazie was able to appear on schedule the next day.

Mlle. Dazie is back at Rockaway Beach now. Therefore she took her motor boat to sail from Sheepshead Bay to the Beach yesterday afternoon for the matinée. Also she ran on a sandbar and was thrown overboard. Also she sank three times and was near to drowning when a rescuer appeared. It was not Dr. Schenck. It was Edward J. Curry, a former volunteer lifesaver, who was cruising about with Joseph Corrigan, both of the Beach, in a motor boat.

They took her ashore. Mlle. Dazie was senseless. Curry realized immediately that it would never do to send for the ambulance from St. Joseph's Hospital. For one thing the hospital was too far away. So he sent for a private physician and Dr. Schenck appeared. He soon had Mlle. Dazie in shape to appear at the matinée just as he did once before.

Every one who heard about the accident agreed that it would have been an awful thing if Dr. Schenck hadn't been within reach.

RUSSIAN DANCERS FOR 'ECHO'

Trio, Engaged by Frohman, to Appear In Dillingham's Musical Comedy.

The trio of Imperial Russian dancers under contract to Charles Frohman are to appear as a special feature of Charles Dillingham's musical comedy production of "The Echo." These dancers were engaged by Mr. Frohman after he saw them at the National Opera in Paris, although he had no particular play in mind for them at that time. The Russians will make their first American appearance on Wednesday of next week, when "The Echo" begins its New York engagement.

Mlle. Lopokova, who is only sixteen years old, comes from the Imperial Opera House, St. Petersburg. She has danced before the Czar and has been decorated by the Czarina. M. Volinine, who dances with Mlle. Lopokova, was premier dancer at the Imperial Opera House in Moscow, and was selected from all the male dancers in Russia to be the principal member of the ballet at the Grand Opera House, Paris, last Summer. M. Feodor Lopokova is a brother of the young woman dancer, and will appear in Russian character dances.

BARRYMORE BACK ON STAGE.

Says He Will Wed Miss Harris Soon—"Fortune Hunter" Resumes Run.

John Barrymore in "The Fortune Hunter" returned to the Gaiety Theatre last night for a four weeks' engagement before beginning a tour of the principal cities outside of New York. With the exception of a few minor rôles, the cast of the play is the same as when the Summer vacation began last month. The rest seems to have endowed the actors with freshened energy, and the performance last night moved smoothly and brightly to a satisfactory conclusion. Miss Mary Ryan continues in the rôle she created in the original production.

In his dressing room, between the acts, Mr. Barrymore said that his marriage to Miss Katherine Corri Harris would not take place for several days, but that it would be not long delayed.

Rehearsals of the "Seven Days" company that is to open in Pittsburg on Aug. 29 began yesterday at the Astor Theatre. Pittsburg is the home of Mary Roberts Reinhart, one of the authors of the play, and for that reason the engagement of the play in that city will be for two weeks instead of the usual one.

RAJAH OF BENGAL HERE ON WORLD TOUR

Displeased That His Schedule-Makers Allowed Him Only Two Days for Stay in This City.

HEARD IT WAS A HOT PLACE

The Rajah Knows English Well, Disagrees with Kipling, and Calls Japanese Americans of the Orient.

Maharaja Mourbhanj, one of the most picturesque potentates of India, who rules half a million subjects in the Province of Bengal, the jungle land which Rudyard Kipling made familiar, arrived here yesterday. He came overland from Vancouver unaccompanied, and is stopping at the Waldorf-Astoria.

This is the first time that the Rajah has been away from his native land. He is making a trip around the world in the hope that the climatic changes will rid his system of the malaria which continued residence in the jungle fastened on him.

His itinerary was mapped out for him, and he has been allowed only two days to see New York. The Rajah said he was told by those who planned his stay here that New York was very hot and unhealthy in Summer, and that the city offered no inducements to a visitor.

This provision now displeases his Highness, for after one day here he is convinced that New York is a healthy place, and from the fleeting glimpse caught of the city from the railway station he came to the conclusion that it certainly offered more novelty and entertainment than Vancouver, where he also spent two days, according to schedule.

The Rajah is a young man comparatively, having reached his thirty-eighth year without being devoured by the Bengal tigers, which he has so often hunted and killed in the jungle from the back of his favorite elephant. He speaks English fluently, with a Piccadilly accent. His knowledge of the language was gained through an English tutor.

He is not as rich as most of the Indian rulers who have visited this country, like the Gaekwar of Baroda, for instance, who has gold cannon in his front yard. The Rajah admitted this himself.

"I am not burdened with riches," he said smilingly, "in fact, am too poor to have a standing army. I have about 300 policemen. If I were here long enough I might get some ideas from the New York police. There is a lot of difference, though, in standing guard along Fifth Avenue and in the jungles.

"The population of Mourbhanj is above half a million, 90 per cent. of which is made up of aboriginal tribes, who were conquered about 5,000 years ago. Ours is essentially a jungle country, where elephants and tigers abound. The Indian bear is one of the most ferocious animals with which we have to contend, and it does a great deal of damage to the crops, and frequently attacks the natives. About 200 natives are mauled annually by the bears and many are killed outright."

When reference was made to Kipling the Rajah threw up his hands. "I do not agree with Mr. Kipling at all," he said. "I have read all of his stories which deal with India, especially the frontier life, which I know so well, and I have no hesitancy in saying that he does not show India in the proper light."

The Rajah seemed entertained when he was told that "Gunga Din" had become a popular poetical character here. He told how much England was doing for India. "India to-day," he said, "is the result of British rule for the last 150 years. Although a ruler myself, I am glad that England rules us all. Before they came India was in a chaotic state, and the many rulers were continually quarreling among themselves.

"The English Government has done away almost entirely with caste, which gives the lower classes a chance to make something of themselves. I do not as a rule talk politics, but I believe in crediting the English Government with the good it has done."

Of all the countries he had visited the Rajah said he was most enthusiastic over Japan. Here he again disagreed with Kipling, who said that the East would never harmonize with the West. "Japan is forging ahead in all industries," he said, "and using the most modern appliances and machinery. I should call them the 'Americans of the Orient.'"

The Rajah then told something about his own province. The products were principally agricultural, he said, although the tilled ground was small in comparison with the great jungles which hemmed them in. A wealth of rich ore, he said, was yet to be mined. A narrow-gauge railroad, thirty-three miles in length, connected the capital, Paripada, with a smaller town. This is the only railroad in his section of India.

Malaria was prevalent always, and a great deal of opium was used. Drink was becoming the national vice. The Rajah is a Brahman, although the majority of his subjects are Animistics, a religion which deifies the forces of nature.

ROSS IN "THE SIMPLE LIFE."

New Comedy of Burglars' Efforts to Rob a Bank Already Looted.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 8.—"The Simple Life," a new comedy, with Charles J. Ross as the star, opened at the Savoy Theatre to-night. Mr. Ross is good in what he has, but he has little. Eddie Garvey and Robert Dailey, who appear as Red and Larry, burglars, and William Cameron as Satin O'Kane, the watchman in a bank, add to the mirth. The story revolves about the efforts of the burglars to rob Doem's Bank. They fail because Doem has already relieved them of the trouble.

There is considerable incidental music in the play and some of it made a bigger hit than the play itself.

"The Jew" to be Shown During Holidays.

Charles Frohman announced yesterday the completion of arrangements with Augustus Thomas by which his new play, "The Jew," will be produced in New York during the holidays. It was announced also that John Drew will arrive in New York next Saturday to begin rehearsals of his new comedy, "Smith," by W. Somerset Maugham, for production at the Empire Theatre on Sept. 5, and that Doris Keane has been engaged to play one of the principal parts with the G. P. Huntley-Hattie Williams combination in "Decorating Clementine."

The last week of the special Summer season at the Columbia Theatre began yesterday afternoon with the Behman show still the attraction. J. B. STUDLEY, ONCE FAMOUS ACTOR, DEAD

Aged Tragedian, Who Lived for Last 20 Years in Memories of Past, Victim of Cancer.

SHUNNED MODERN PLAYERS

Clung to Old Rialto and Playbill Restaurant, Where He Ordered His Meals in Blank Verse.

From a little undertaker's shop in Third Avenue the body of John B. Studley, famous tragedian of a past generation, will be carried to-day over to the Fresh Pond Crematory, on Long Island. To-morrow Charley Britting's Playbill Restaurant, otherwise known as the Mausoleum of Amusement Antiquities and Professionals' Hall of Fame, at 126 Greenwich Avenue, facing Jackson Square, in the heart of Greenwich Village, will have another relic added to its remarkable collection. It will be Mr. Studley's ashes, and they will have the position of honor between the polished skull of Joseph Jefferson's dog Schneider and a rusty sword once owned by John Wilkes Booth.

For John B. Studley for twenty years lived at the Playbill Restaurant, ate his frugal meals every day from the same mahogany table in the antique-littered room, where scores of old-time playbills—on almost every one of which appeared his own name in large black type, linked with bygone celebrities of the American stage—looked down from the grimy walls, and from a little back room upstairs he was carried two weeks ago, with the death pallor upon him, to undergo an operation for cancer at Bellevue Hospital. He died there on Sunday, after refusing to go either to the Actors' Home, at West Brighton, S. I., or the Elks' Home, both of which would have taken care of him.

John B., as his friends always called him in later years, stuck close to the locality with which his fame was associated. Fifty years ago he was one of the famous actors of America, and shared honors with Edwin Booth, John McCullough, Edwin Forrest, Mary Anderson, Mme. Von Stanwitz, Charlotte Cushman, and many more. For many years he was Mary Anderson's leading man and usually took the part of the villain.

One of Last of Old School.

He was one of the last of the old school of actors, and although he lived to be eighty years old, he dwelt always in the past and associated only with memories that are dead and gone. The type of heavy villain which he acted so well in "Pizarro" and "The Duke's Motto," as well as the hero parts in "Jack Cade" and "The Hunchback," have passed away except with barn stormers; but to Studley they meant the highest type of dramatic art.

The older he grew the more convinced he became that the present-day stage was something to be thoroughly shunned. He refused to make the acquaintance of modern players, although many sought him out and surreptitiously tried to make his closing years happier. It was through his desire to avoid meeting modern stage people that he steadfastly refused to go to the Actors' Home. He lived principally upon the benevolence of the Elks, and it is this association which will bury him.

Visited with Old Stage Cronies.

His happiest times were spent in the queer little restaurant and hotel kept by his antique-loving friend Brittings talking over old times with a few of his stage cronies of a bygone generation, who would come over from West Brighton on a Sunday and talk of the long ago, when the old Bowery Theatre, then the American on lower Third Avenue, was in the district of wealth and fashion, long before Chinatown grew up; when the Olympic Theatre on Broadway between Houston and Bleecker Streets was a first-class house, and when Harrigan & Hart's, further north on Broadway; Laura Keene's, at 624 Broadway; the Worrell Sisters' New York Theatre, at 728 Broadway; the Fourteenth Street Theatre, also controlled for a time by Laura Keene, and the Park Theatre, at Broadway and Twenty-second Street, were the main amusement centres of the day.

Or on pleasant days, dressed in the costume he wore when he was stared at for being something else than eccentric, an old slouch hat, heavy stage villain boots, and the old-time cape overcoat, he loved to wander along Fourteenth Street and up and down Broadway and the Bowery, but always below Fourteenth Street and always disdaining to turn his eyes to the north, where the up-to-date managers' offices flourish, along with the theatres and actors he detested.

Down in his stuffy cellar beneath his playbill plastered restaurant Mr. Britting has bundles of old programmes which bear the name of his old actor friend. He brought them out yesterday and displayed them proudly. They showed that some of the plays in which the old actor appeared were "Jack of the Woods," "Queen of the Air," "The Idiot Witness," "Nobody's Child," "The Black Crook," "Divorce," "Love's Sacrifice," "Leah, the Forsaken," and "Mazeppa."

Memories of the past cling about the old restaurant as thickly as the litter on the tables and in the corners. Most anybody who was anybody in the old Fourteenth Street Rialto days hobnobbed with John B. Studley when he was in his prime and ate and drank with him over the little mahogany tables. There was George Christy, founder of Christy's Minstrels; "Uncle" Ben Cotton, a famous end man and one of the first to play serious negro characters; Emmett Fostelle, the original of the present-day Dutch comedians; William Henry Rice, "the burlesque prima donna"; "Daddy" Rice, creator of Jim Crow, in whose company Joseph Jefferson made his first hit; Tony Pastor, Charley Backus, Buffalo Bill, Dave Wambold, Billy Birch, Lew Simmons, who was then appearing in "The Red Right Hand," and many others. Evidence of their one-time popularity in the shape of playbills, photographs, and lithographs, cluster the walls, and even invade the kitchen.

Mr. Britting, almost as famous in his own way as his dead friend, gladly talked of the latter yesterday:

Talked as He Did On Stage.

"That was the table John B. always sat at," volunteered Mr. Britting in a choked voice, pointing with a long fork at one of four small tables almost entirely covered with bundles of old theatrical papers, antiques, and photographs. "He wore an old-fashioned high collar and flowing stock and it was always a marvel where he dug up the hats he wore. He had a voice like a bull, and he always talked like he did on the stage. He used to order his supper in blank verse, and the other customers would drop their knives and forks and stare at him, and that would make him angry.

"He was so easily offended that I hated almost to speak to him. Once I introduced a dear friend of mine to him. John B. paid no attention to him whatever, and finally the young man mentioned that he had seen him play 'Eileen Oge' at the Grand Opera House. John B. turned on him at that, and I thought he was going to kill him then and there. He bellowed out that the young man was a fool, that he had never played an Irish part in his life, and, terribly mortified, I led the young man away. Another time I introduced one of my customers to him, and he got so angry that he left, and went to live around the corner. He soon came back, however, and took his old place at the table.

"He got to be quite queer in his last days. He'd get a bundle of old Clippers and read them through just as if they were modern magazines. It was the way he had done for fifty years.

"The last time he appeared on the stage was at a benefit at Red Bank, N. J. He tried hard to bear up after he began to fail, but I finally induced him to go to the hospital. He came out for a while and said he felt so good he thought he would live to be 100. To-morrow I'm going to lock up the shop and follow the body from the undertaking shop at 717 Third Avenue over to the crematory."

SARANAC LAKE CARNIVAL.

To be Held Aug. 26 and to be an Annual Event.

Special to The New York Times.

WAWBEEK, N. Y., Aug. 8.—A log-rolling contest is to be one of the novel features of a big water carnival in which society people from New York and Philadelphia now in camp along the shores of the Upper Saranac Lake will participate on Aug. 26.

At a meeting this afternoon at Camp Gricoq, the camp of John G. Agar of New York, it was voted to make the carnival, which is to be the biggest of the kind ever undertaken in the Adirondacks, an annual event.

The programme is not completed, but an aquatic tug-of-war will be one of its features, and there will be sailing and motorboat races.

AN ANALOGY

Rome conquered the known world, but was herself conquered when she sent hirelings into the field.

In other words, Rome made the mistake of employing too many sub-contractors in her military operations.

And some owners make the mistake of having too many sub-contractors on their building operations.

This defeats Economy, Quality and Speed—and depletes the income on the investment.

THE CROP REPORT SHOWING

Loss in Corn Condition, but Promise Is Still for Big Yield—Cotton Market Excited—More Gold for Import.

During the greater part of yesterday's stock market session prices and trading were controlled by the fact that the Government's report on crop conditions as of Aug. 1 was to be published in the course of the final hour. Transactions were small, but as was also the case in the majority of the sessions last week, the dullness was accompanied by strong prices. Advances running from 1 to 2 points were scored in a number of the more active shares. Upon the publication of the crop figures prices declined sharply, but the selling movement ran its course quickly, and recoveries ensued which brought stocks in general back to Saturday's final quotations. Some of the selling was plainly due to an error made in the reporting of the condition of corn. The first figures to appear through one of the news agencies made the condition figure nearly equal to that of July 1, and it was the correction of this mistake and the real showing of a loss of 6 points in the percentage which led to the closing out of trading lines secured upon the strength of the higher figure.

As a result of the loss of some 6 points in condition in the month of July the estimated yield of corn is reduced by about 217,000,000 bushels, but the trivial nature of this loss is readily understood when it is added that the prospect even on the reduced percentage is for a crop of nearly 2,900,000,000 bushels, which is 125,000,000 bushels over last year's harvest and within 27,000,000 bushels of the record crop, that of 1906. In the detailed report issued by the Government Kansas and Nebraska are shown to have suffered the heaviest losses in condition during July, owing, of course, to the long-continued drought. Since these figures were made up the drought has been broken, and it is fair to assume that the yields of these States will be even greater than those credited to them by the report. Both Winter and Spring wheat crops promise better than they did a month ago, according to yesterday's report, and the outlook is now for a total wheat harvest of 657,688,000 bushels, smaller by 80,000,000 bushels than last year's crop, but on a level with the yields of five years in the last decade. The crop situation as a whole may therefore be summed up in the statement that yields well up to the average are now assured in all the directions save that of cotton, and it was the continued absence of rain in Texas and other Southwestern cotton States which caused the further rise in prices on the Cotton Exchange yesterday. In addition to the crop report there was in the day's news budget another item of much interest to financial markets, namely, the report of the Copper Producers' Association for July, disclosing an increase of only 2,254,000 pounds in stocks where an accumulation of at least four times as much had been generally expected. Another feature of the report was the decrease of nearly 9,000,000 pounds in production for the month, so that on the whole the showing was the best made since that for February.

In continuation of the gold movement local bankers secured about one-half of the $3,000,000 arriving in London from South Africa yesterday, according to the cables, the balance of the consignment going to the Continent and India. Foreign exchange was again easy. Money rates here were unchanged, although the strong showing of the banks in Saturday's statement worked to increase offerings. From the Sub-Treasury the banks are again gaining heavily on routine transactions, having secured $1,087,000 since Friday last.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, AUG. 8.—The copper producers' report, showing a gain of but slightly over 2,000,000 pounds for the past month, was received very favorably, and both traders and commission houses were good buyers in the Boston market. Lake advanced to 40¼ and North Butte to 28⅝, both being record prices for the present movement. United States Smelting sold as high as 39, while the balance of the list was all from a fraction to a couple of points higher.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Monday.

The real activity of the day on the Consolidated Stock Exchange was all in the final thirty minutes, following the publication of the Government crop report, when there was a general raid on the market which for the time carried quotations off rapidly. There was a quick rebound, however, in the closing dealings, and the day ended with the short interest in retreat. Sales of all stocks totaled 76,140 shares, with the list embracing thirty-nine different securities.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—Though trading was light on the local exchange, transactions were fairly well scattered through the list and showed gains in the early prices wherever any alteration occurred, Pneumatic Tool, American Shipbuilding common, and American Can preferred led with advances of one-half point each, while Can common and Sears-Roebuck common were up smaller fractions. Match, Illinois Brick, Subway and National Carbon were unchanged. In the later trading Illinois Brick and American Can common made fractional concessions, while American Can preferred, Subway and Shipbuilding common added fractions.

Favorable Statistics of Copper Production and Consumption Send Prices Up.

Many Issues Make Advances of Large Fractions and Some Gain 1 Point, but Close Below Top.

The highly favorable showing of the figures made public early in the day by the Copper Producers' Association had immediate effect on the course of prices in the mining list on the Curb. Almost without exception the active coppers made substantial gains on a fair volume of trading. The close, however, was in most instances below the highest levels of the day. Chino Copper sold up from 11⅞ to 12⅝, closing at 12⅜, after sales of 4,000. Giroux sold up from 6½ to 6¾ and closed at 6⅝, transactions totaling 2,500. Greene-Cananea closed ⅝ above the opening, after transactions of 2,000. Miami advanced from 21 to 22, closing after sales of 3,500 at 21⅞. Ray Consolidated closed ¼ above the opening after light trading. Kerr Lake was the only one of the established silver issues to show activity, and declined at one time 5-16 from the opening level, closing at 6¾, ¼ down, after transactions of 4,075.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 8.—After having been bid up sharply across 78 in the last hour to-day, Lehigh Valley was promptly knocked down again when weakness developed in the final dealings in Wall Street. This was only natural, as about three-fourths of the orders on both sides of the market in "Valley" emanated from houses with New York connections, and was unaccompanied by any special news. Throughout the day shorts had been trying to cover in this stock, and had found the supply decidedly scarce. This helped to establish the higher level. Over 16,000 shares changed hands to-day.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

More Gold for New York.

Cable advices from London told yesterday of the purchase there for export to New York of $1,750,000 in gold bars, being about half of the total amount of new gold which arrived yesterday from South Africa. Up to the close of business the New York bankers who took gold in London had not been identified. Yesterday's arival of gold was partly for New York account and partly for the Continent. Exchange rates were practically stationary yesterday, demand sterling ending the day at $4.8565, showing no change from Saturday's figure. The fact that only part of the gold which reached London yesterday was taken for New York was in keeping with the disposition which our bankers have shown not to compete too actively for this gold, but rather to share the weekly arivals with other intending purchasers, so as to avoid putting any strain on the market abroad which might lead to some effort to shut off the movement of gold to the United States.

Asking More Than They Give.

In connection with the demand recently made upon our bankers that they guarantee all cotton bills of lading which they negotiate abroad after Oct. 31, interest attaches to the position which foreign bankers have taken in connection with similar commercial transactions originating on the other side. Bankers abroad have in the past refused, in connection with shipments of goods made to this side, to give the very sort of guarantee which they are now attempting to exact from our bankers in respect to cotton bills of lading. Some of our bankers who have handled a very large amount of cotton bills regard the demand which European bankers have made as unreasonable in itself and inconsistent with the attitude of these very same bankers in respect to transactions based on shipments of goods to the United States, and they are prepared to give up business in cotton bills rather than to carry it on under the conditions which the bankers abroad are trying to impose.

Break on Crop Report.

The market's dullness in the first hour yesterday morning was explained as in anticipation of the Copper Producers' report, due before noon. That came without any real effect on prices and with little accession of activity, and the balance of the day, up to the middle of the last hour, was spent waiting for the Government report on crop conditions. From 11 to 2 transactions totaled only 106,000 shares. In the last hour 153,000 transactions came out on the tape, and two-thirds of this total were made after the crop report news was received over the wires. The effect of the decline of 6 points reported in the condition of corn was immediate, and stocks, particularly the railroad shares, sold off sharply. The curious mistake was made by one of the news tickers in reporting the corn figures from Washington at 84 instead of 79. For a moment these figures, which represent the condition of corn at this time last year, were accepted, and many went into the market and bought. One trader had taken a thousand shares of Steel before he learned the truth. Steel went down 1¼ from the days high, and left him stranded with his stock. The breaks in the railroad stocks ran from 1 to 2 points and over. The Soo lines dropped 3½; Reading was off 2⅜, but recovered a point; St. Paul sold off 1¼, and Amalgamated sold down to 63 from its previous level of 65. Other shares which made noticeable declines were Atchison, Union and Southern Pacific, and Great Northern.

Copper Curtailment.

The Copper Producers' Association figures, showing an increase in stocks of only some 2,250,000 pounds and a decline of 9,000,000 pounds, in round numbers, in production, were taken in some quarters as a measure of the curtailment of production during the month of July. As a matter of fact, the production figures being based on refinery output, are a measure of what falling off in output at the mines took place six or eight weeks back. It takes about a month or six weeks, on the average, for the actual output of the mines to get through the smelters, and a couple of weeks more to get to the refineries. The producers' association reports only the production of "marketable copper." Most of the talk of concerted curtailment has been heard within the last month. Whatever basis this talk may have may be measured with more certainty when the September, and even the October, figures of the association are available. Meanwhile, that there was a very considerable curtailment in effect as far back as May is evidenced by the current figures, which indicate a decline of about 7 per cent. in the rate of production prevailing up to the time of the previous report.

Steel Rail Cuts.

Despite the denials made by President Corey of the United States Steel Corporation that any cut in the standard price of $28 a ton for steel rails had been made either by the Illinois Steel Company or any other of the corporation's subsidiaries, the report persists. The news bureau which put out the rumor last week reiterated it yesterday, with the statement that the rails sold at $26.50 per ton were eighty-five-pound rails and had been delivered. It was suggested in the trade yesterday, which is as incredulous as the Street, that the rails said to have been sold at $1.50 down may have been standard in weight but below standard in quality.

CROP CONDITIONS SHOW FALLING OFF

Condition of Corn, Spring Wheat, Oats, and Tobacco Below Ten-Year Average.

HAY 739,000 ACRES SHORT

Statisticians Say Corn Crop Will Probably Exceed That of Last Year, and Oat Crop Be as Big.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The average condition of the corn crop on Aug. 1, as estimated by the Crop Reporting Board of the Department of Agriculture and made public with the general crop monthly crop report at 2:30 P. M. to-day, was 79.3, as compared with 85.4 last month, 84.4 a year ago, and 82.1, the average on Aug. 1 for the last ten years.

Comparisons of condition for important corn States follow:

State.	1910.	10-Yr. Av.	State.	1910.	10-Yr. Av.
Illinois	84	84	Alabama	91	82
Iowa	80	84	Mississippi	91	76
Texas	78	73	No. Carolina	85	86
Kansas	60	76	Arkansas	89	79
Missouri	82	80	Louisiana	94	81
Nebraska	65	82	So. Carolina	86	82
Oklahoma	57	78	South Dakota	86	86
Indiana	87	85	Virginia	89	88
Georgia	87	87	Michigan	76	82
Ohio	86	85	Minnesota	82	83
Tennessee	87	82	Pennsylvania	88	85
Kentucky	84	85	Wisconsin	70	83

In spite of the lower condition of the corn crop, the increased acreage devoted to that cereal probably will increase the crop of the present year about 80,000,000 bushels over the crop of last year according to the view of expert statisticians in this city.

The average condition of Spring wheat on Aug. 1 was 61.0 as compared with 61.6 last month, 91.6 last year, and 81.9 the ten-year average on that date.

Comparisons for important Spring wheat States follow:

State.	1910.	10-Yr. Av.	State.	1910.	10-Yr. Av.
North Dakota	34	79	South Dakota	70	83
Minnesota	77	83	Washington	62	85

Winter Wheat Situation.

Preliminary returns indicate a Winter wheat yield of about 15.8 bushels per acre, or a total of about 458,294,000 bushels, as compared with 15.8 and 446,366,000 bushels, respectively, as finally estimated last year. The average quality of the crop is 92.6 against 90.3 last year.

Details for important Winter wheat States follow:

State.	Yield.	Production.	Quality.
Indiana	15.6	40,981,000	91
Illinois	15.0	32,085,000	92
Nebraska	16.8	33,230,000	95
Ohio	16.2	31,493,000	91
Missouri	13.8	25,130,000	91
Pennsylvania	17.8	27,697,000	94
Oklahoma	16.0	24,896,000	96
Texas	15.0	18,780,000	95

Virginia	12.8	10,048,000	93
Maryland	17.4	13,816,000	95
Kentucky	12.8	9,537,000	88
Washington	20.5	13,858,000	90

The statisticians also declare that while the drought in the Northwest will make the wheat crop smaller than last year there will be a liberal supply for export. They stated that the Winter wheat that was not abandoned would give a greater yield than was expected.

The average condition of the oat crop on Aug. 1 was 81.5 as compared with 82.2 last month, 85.5 a year ago, 76.8 in 1908, and 82.6 the ten-year average on that date. The statisticians stated, however, that the oat crop would probably be as big as last year, when it was unusually large.

Comparisons for important oat States follow:

Illinois	90	79	North Dakota	27	80
Iowa	93	84	Michigan	80	88

The Tobacco Crop Report.

The average condition of tobacco on Aug. 1 was 78.5, as compared with 85.3 last month, 83.4 a year ago, 85.8 in 1908, and 82.6 the ten-year average on that date.

The condition in important tobacco States was: Kentucky, 77; North Carolina, 74; Virginia, 85; Ohio, 80; Pennsylvania, 86; Tennessee, 86; Wisconsin, 60; South Carolina, 73; Connecticut, 85, and Florida, 82.

The condition of other minor crops on Aug. 1, as reported by the Crop Reporting Board, is as follows:

Crop.	1910.	10-Yr. Av.	Crop.	1910.	10-Yr. Av.
Barley	70.0	85.5	Flax	51.7	88.4
Buckwheat	87.9	91.1	Rice	87.6	89.2
White potatoes	75.8	86.0	Hay	83.0	87.2
			Apples	47.8	55.4

The preliminary estimate of the area of rye harvested is 1.7 per cent. less than last year. The preliminary estimate of yield per acre is 16.3 against a ten-year average of 16.0 bushels. The indicated total production is 32,088,000 bushels against 32,239,000 finally estimated in 1909. The quality of the crop is 92.7 against 92.9 last year.

The proportion of last year's oat crop in farmer's hands on Aug. 1 was about 6.3 per cent., or 63,249,000 bushels, as compared with 3.3 per cent., or 26,323,000 bushels in 1909 and 5.8 per cent., or 50,394,000 bushels, the average proportion on hand for the past ten years on Aug. 1.

Although the condition of corn, as reported by the Government observers, was a disappointment to those who have been watching the crop news and the prospective yield worked out on this basis by the Produce Exchange statistician was 2,897,708,000 bushels, or 216,758,000 bushels less than the promise of a month ago, there was comfort in the showing of the Winter wheat crop, which indicated a harvest of 458,294,000 bushels, or 22,694,000 bushels better than the promise of July 1. In fact, the Winter wheat crop is now shown to be 25,378,000 larger than last year's, and, in fact, the largest on record except that of 1906, which was 492,462,326 bushels.

Spring wheat, too, showed an improvement over the indications of a month ago, and the crop from present indications is figured at 199,394,000, against 189,523,000 estimated from the July 1 report. Notwithstanding this improvement in Spring wheat, it is still 70,954,000 bushels less than the indication at this time last year, and had the effect of pulling down the prospective wheat crop to 657,688,000 bushels, which, although 32,506,000 bushels better than the promise of last month, is still 45,598,000 bushels behind the promise at this time last year, and compares with last year's total wheat harvest of 737,189,000 bushels.

ARGENTINA CORN BETTER.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Argentina's corn crop for the 1909-10 season will amount to 4,500,000 tons, as estimated by the Argentina Department of Agriculture, says United States Consul General R. M. Bartleman of Buenos Ayres in a report to the State Department.

While this is somewhat less than the preceding season's crop it will, it is claimed, be an improvement in quality, due to more careful selection of seed and to the increased attention paid by the Government to improved processes of cultivation.

COPPER OUTPUT CUT.

July's Record Some 9,000,000 Pounds Under That for June.

The monthly report of the Copper Producers' Association, issued yesterday, was awaited with considerable interest in Wall Street in the belief that it would show the effects of the curtailment of production which has been the subject of conferences among the big copper interests here and abroad.

Although the curtailment of production at the mines which may result from the recognition by the large producing interests that the supply has been increasing faster than the present demand, will not be indicated in the producers' figures for a month or more to come, yesterday's statistics showed a reduction in production from the refineries in July which was much greater than the trade had generally expected. The producers' figures of production of "marketable copper" are based on the output of the refineries and smelters, which are usually about six weeks or more behind the mines.

The actual production of copper ready for market during July was 118,370,003 pounds, against 127,219,188 pounds in the previous month, which was the month of the greatest production this year. July's production is still above that of January, which was 116,547,287 pounds.

Despite the falling off in production during July the output was still ahead of consumption, as indicated by the fact that total deliveries, both for consumption here and for export, were only 116,115,342 pounds, or 2,254,661 pounds less than the month's output. The July deliveries were more than 3,000,000 pounds less than those of June, but otherwise were the largest of any month this year except January. Of the total, 56,708,175 pounds were for domestic delivery and 59,407,167 pounds for export. In the previous month domestic deliveries were 53,363,196 pounds and export deliveries 65,895,948 pounds.

NEW UNION COPPER BOARD.

Walter George Newman Also Out as Company's President.

At a meeting of the Union Copper Company's stockholders at Portland, Me., yesterday an entirely new Board of Directors was elected representing new interests in the property, according to dispatches received in Wall Street. Walter George Newman, who has been President of the company since before its reorganization out of the Union Copper Company, relered.

The Union Copper Mining Company was the subject of a mild Curb sensation five years ago, when it soared away up and dropped as suddenly. President Newman and the company have been identical through long association in the eyes of the Curb, where for the last few years the stock had had little more than a nominal market. The properties are in North Carolina, in one of the earliest discovered mineral zones in the United States. They have never, so far, proved equal to President Newman's rosy predictions.

The new Board of Directors elected yesterday is composed of Joseph Swift of Wilmington, Del.; Charles A. Heckscher, Erastus Cravath, Louis M. Ogden, Alexander Konts, Woodruff Looming, and Samuel H. Lever of New York.

THE COMMODITIES MARKETS.

The wheat market was weak, with prices influenced by lower cables, large world's exports, favorable weather, increasing stocks, and expectation of a favorable crop report. The cables showed quite pronounced heaviness abroad, and world's exports to Saturday night were 10,064,000 bushels, against 7,808,000 bushels last year. The Western receipts again were heavy, amounting to 2,364,000 bushels, about 1,000,000 bushels more than a year ago, while there was a decrease in the interior shipments. The visible supply of wheat showed an increase of 2,423,000 bushels. The weather conditions were favorable in the American and Canadian Northwest. Prices sold down steadily during the morning and well into the afternoon, but toward the close rallied on evening up for the Government report. The Government report came out after the close, and showed a gain in the actual Winter wheat crop of 22,634,000 bushels over the promise of last month, with total crop of 458,294,000 bushels, the second largest on record. The loss in the condition of Spring wheat was slight, and the crop was figured at 199,000,000 up to 210,000,000 bushels, according to the method of estimating used. After the report was out the curb was weak, as the report showed a surplus of about 60,000,000 bushels over the maximum home distribution for any one year plus the carry over from last year. Cash wheat quoted: No. 2 red Winter, $1.06⅝, nominal, to arrive, cost, insurance, and freight; No. 2 red spot, nominal, new, $1.07⅝ free on board, afloat, for export; No. 1 Northern Spring, $1.26, nominal; No. 2 hard Winter, new, $1.07¼, and No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.15.

The corn market was fairly active and somewhat lower during the morning, owing to further rains in the corn belt and generally favorable weather conditions. Prices were also affected by the weakness in wheat. There was a decrease in the visible supply of 62,000 bushels for the week, and late there seemed to be considerable evening up, fearing an unfavorable Government report. The report showed a condition of 79.3, which was less than expected, pointing to a crop of 3,023,000,000 bushels, a loss of 228,000,000 bushels in the promise of the month. The new method was 2,897,000,000 bushels, a loss of 217,000,000 bushels in the month's promise. Cash corn quoted: No. 2, 72c nominal, elevator, to arrive, cost, insurance, and freight, domestic basis, and steamer nominal, elevator, export basis. Total sales were 88,000 bushels via Philadelphia last week for export.

The oats market was moderately active and prices a little easier during the morning, but later showed some steadiness, and the close was at a moderate net change for the day. The receipts continue very heavy—about double last year—but notwithstanding the heavy movement there was a decrease of 116,000 bushels in the visible. The Government report made the condition of oats 81.5, promising a crop of 1,031,000,000 bushels, against 1,038,000,000 bushels the previous month. The farm reserves of oats were 63,249,000 bushels. The reserves of old oats were considered heavy. The crop, if confirmed by later thrashing returns, will be a record one. Cash oats quoted: Natural white, 46@48c, and white, clipped, 48@50c.

Provisions were fairly active and strong early on disappointing movement of hogs at the West and fairly steady live hog market. Later, however, the advance was lost in the absence of any activity of cash demand.

COTTON.

The weather news in the new crop deliveries and the shorts in August furnished the basis for a strong advance in the market, which carried nearly the entire list to new high levels. The August deliveries sold above 16c., and there was extreme nervousness shown. The position of August is a very interesting one. The short interest has been estimated at considerably over 100,000 bales, and the bulls claim that there is very little possibility of enough cotton being obtained to fill the sales. One factor which may prevent cotton coming back from the other side is the technical position in the August-September market in Liverpool, and there are reports of a squeeze in that month. There were, however, reports of some further purchases of spot cotton in Liverpool to come back. Locally there were improved demands for spot cotton, and it was stated that the bulls were selling at a better basis than at any time so far. The price quoted was 15½c. The movement of new cotton is becoming quite large. This movement is mainly from Southern Texas, and receipts are attracted by the very high prices for near deliveries. Bulls claim, however, that there will be so much demand for cotton for spinning purposes that there will be very little available during August for delivery on that month.

The Texas weather news was the great feature in the new crop deliveries. There were no rains in that State over Sunday, with continued hot, dry weather, and the weather map did not show probability of a break in the weather. The market last week weakened near the close in the hope of rain, but operators who sold on this were glad to get back their cotton yesterday morning. The crop is reported to be steadily deteriorating there with every day of the hot, dry weather, and there were estimates that the crop might be not more than 3,500,000 bales maximum, and possibly 3,000,000 bales in Texas unless the rains come within a very short time. Conditions in other portions of the belt are reported to have improved during the past ten days, and the conditions are much more promising elsewhere. As there are 1,000,000 acres in Texas, the importance of the weather in that section is easily seen. Houston receipts yesterday were 1,633 bales of new cotton, and Galveston receipts yesterday were 157 bales.

New York spot cotton was quiet at 15 points advance. Middling uplands, 16.05; middling Gulf, 16.30.

COFFEE.

Coffee felt the influence of quite general profit taking and prices at the close were 8 to 10 points below the final of last week. Total sales were 57,500 bags. Havre was unchanged to ¼f higher; Hamburg was unchanged, and in Brazil Rio showed an advance of 25 reis, while Santos was 50 reis higher. Warehouse deliveries of Brazilian coffee at United States ports last week were 87,253 bags, against 63,777 the previous week, and 48,203 last year. The visible supply of Brazilian coffee in and afloat for the United States is 3,334,678 bags, compared with 3,645,716 last year, and 3,245,004 two years ago. The steamship Corrientes arrived at New York from Santos with 38,424 bags. Cost and freight offers from Brazil were again firm and higher. Spot coffee firm, 9c for Rio No. 7.

Broadway Shows Activity by Purchase in Downtown Section and Resale of Forsythe Building—Buys in 38th St. to Increase Holdings—Madison Avenue Leases.

A sale in the mid-section of Broadway—a district that has not figured prominently in property transfers for some time—contributed some activity to the real estate market yesterday. The five-story business structure at 595 Broadway, running through to 168 Mercer Street, south of Houston, on plot 25 by 200, was sold by the Sun Construction Company, Benjamin Nieberg, President, to a client, who, it is stated, contemplates extensive alterations.

The Sun Construction Company purchased the realty for $165,000 in February in a trade with Uhlfelder & Weinberg, the former giving the six-story elevator apartment house at 537 to 543 West 113th Street in exchange.

Assembling 38th Street Plot.

Mark Rafalsky & Co. have sold the four-story and basement dwelling on lot 23 by 98.9 at 34 West Thirty-eighth Street. The building is occupied by Herts Brothers as tenants. The buyer is Dr. Joseph E. Winters, who owns the property directly in the rear at 25 and 27 West Thirty-seventh Street, having a frontage of 47.6 feet. This is the second time Mark Rafalsky & Co. have sold this property within the last month.

Buyer in West 27th Street.

William Goldstone has purchased from Max Weber the four-story building at 219 West Twenty-seventh Street, on plot 19.6 by 98.9. The buyer owns the adjoining property, 221 West Twenty-seventh Street, and now controls a frontage of 41 feet.

Hudson Street Sale.

The Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company has sold for the Countess Cecilia d'Andigne and Mrs. Isabella C. May 159 Hudson Street, a four-story building, on lot 24.10 by 109.3 and irregular. The buyer will probably erect a loft building on the site. The property is opposite the New York Central Railroad's freight depot.

Forsythe Building Resold.

Joseph Burke has resold the property 865 Broadway, formerly known as the Forsythe Building, for Edward Kates to Mrs. Easter Blumenthal, a client of the Duross Company, for investment.

Buys Broadway Lot for Garage.

S. H. Raphael has sold for the Pendant Realty Company to a client a plot 25.2 by 126 at 4,326 Broadway, between 184th and 185th Streets. The purchasers will build a garage on the property.

E. A. Turner has also leased for Mrs. Sarah C. Goodhue the premises 193 Madison Avenue, in the restricted neighborhood of Thirty-fifth Street and Madison Avenue. The property adjoins the residence of Mrs. Goodhue. The lease is for a long term of years.

The H. M. Weil Company has leased for the Fay Realty Company 252 West Thirty-first Street, on plot 25 by 35, opposite the entrance to the Pennsylvania Railroad station, to James Devaney for a term of twenty-one years at an aggregate net rental of about $75,000. Mr. Devaney intends to tear down the present building immediately and erect a four-story structure to be used as a café and restaurant. The cost will be about $25,000.

S. H. Raphael has sold for Thomas F. Costello to Robert Shaw the two-family house 3,077 Hull Avenue, on plot 25 by 110, for occupancy.

Walker & Berger have sold for Thomas E. Malcolm the five-story twenty-family apartment house on the south side of 157th Street, 100 feet west of Elton Avenue, on plot 50 by 169. The buyer is Herman Menaker.

Jamaica Estates

THE inauguration of the Pennsylvania-Long Island Railroad System from Herald Square to Jamaica in 18 minutes has been officially fixed for September 8th. Shortly following that date the price of our property will be advanced. The time left for purchasing at present prices is therefore short, and each day lessens the opportunity for selection. We strong'y advise those who are already familiar with our property to quickly make their choice; and we urge those who would be interested in complete information about THE ONLY REAL RESIDENTIAL PARK IN NEW YORK CITY to communicate with us at once before any advance is made. Beautiful plots can now be purchased as low as $2,000, including permanent sewers and all City improvements, and convenient terms can be arranged. ADVERTISE FOUND ARTICLES.

THE LAW.

"A person who finds lost property under circumstances which give him knowledge or means of inquiring as to the true owner, and who appropriates such property to his own use, or to the use of another person who is not entitled thereto, without first having made every reasonable effort to find the owner and restore the property to him, is guilty of larceny."—New York State Penal Law.

REMEMBER—If you lose an article of value to-day advertise it in to-morrow's issue of The New York Times.
Promptness in advertising lost articles assists in securing their return—because—if a reader of The Times finds something today he looks in to-morrow's paper to find the address of the loser.

CALL RICH MEXICAN UNDESIRABLE ALIEN

Fall on Ship Shows Planter Payro to be Suffering from Epilepsy.

HAS TO FILE BOND TO GO

Came with Wife to See Her Sister Sail to Spain to Become a Nun, but They Were on Ellis Island.

A fall on the gangplank as he was coming ashore from the Ward liner Merida with his wife, led yesterday to the temporary detention of Manuel C. Payro, a large plantation owner of Mexico, on a medical certificate that he was unfit to land. With his wife he was taken to Ellis Island. He was allowed to continue his tour only after filing a $1,000 bond to leave the country within six months.

Payro's estate near Tabasco is valued at half a million dollars, and it was said by Ellis Island officials that he was associated in business with Thomas F. Ryan. He is 38 years of age and lived in this country from the time he was seventeen until his twenty-second year.

Mr. and Mrs. Payro boarded the Merida at Vera Cruz. They traveled in the first cabin and on arrival were inspected by the immigration officers and certified to land, but as Payro was preparing to come ashore he became ill and fell. He was taken into the saloon and the case brought to the attention of the Marine Hospital Corps physician assigned to inspect the passengers. After examining Mr. Payro the doctor declared him subject to epileptic fits and therefore an objectionable alien.

When brought before a Board of Special Inquiry Payro said he had been subject to fainting spells, but insisted that his sickness on the vessel had been due to some food he had eaten. This plea was not accepted, however, and Payro was ordered deported. He appealed to Washington, and on Monday word was received by the immigration officials here that as there was no chance of his becoming a public charge, he must be allowed to land if he would file a bond. This was done, and early yesterday morning the Mexican and his wife landed at the Battery.

There was another passenger landed from the immigration station yesterday who was overjoyed at setting foot in New York. She was Mrs. Maria Ciaravigno, who arrived here from Naples on the steamship Luisiana. She has been six months getting here.

When Mrs. Ciaravigno went to the pier in Naples to tak passage for New York she found two steamships there. Both were ready to sail, and whistles were sounding the last call. The woman hastily boarded one of them, and there was no time to examine her ticket.

When the vessel got well under way she found that instead of being bound for New York she was on a liner going to Buenos Ayres. There was no way of getting ashore and the unwilling passenger had to make the voyage to South America. There she went to the Italian Consul and he sent her back to Naples. Arriving there it took a week before she could start for this country. This time she was careful to take the proper ship. Mrs. Ciaravigno came to visit her daughter and son-in-law in Brooklyn.

MUST MAKE HIM A CITIZEN.

Government Sought to Bar West Indian Because of Daughter's Illness.

An effort by Federal authorities to exclude from citizenship a West Indian because his daughter was suffering from trachoma failed yesterday in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, before Justice Putnam.

The girl came here recently from the West Indies to live with her father, Hilton Selkridge, who is a gardener for Harry M. Halstead of 382 Ocean Avenue, Brooklyn. When the girl was detained at Ellis Island Selkridge sought to be naturalized, but objection was made by the Federal authorities on the ground that if he became a citizen his daughter would have to be admitted.

On behalf of Selkridge it was asserted that the girl was nearing a cure of the disease at the Eye and Ear Infirmary in Brooklyn, when she was taken from there by the Federal authorities to be deported. The court was told that if she was deported she might not be received at the port from which sh came, as there was no one there to care for her. Thus she might be carried back and forth on the high seas indefinitely.

Without considering the condition of the daughter the court ruled that Selkridge should be admitted to citizenship. Selkridge now will fight for her admission to the country.

MOSQUITOS CLOSE A CHURCH.

No Evening Service in One at South Orange Until the Pests Go.

The mosquitos have caused a change in the hours of service at the Hilton Methodist Church in South Orange, N. J. The pastor, the Rev. A. Boylan Fitzgerald, has never taken much to the idea of Summer vacations, and he has held services regularly, both morning and evening, during the heated months. The church members have agreed with the pastor's view, and the services have been well attended. The evening services were terribly trying on account of the pests, but the pastor and congregation ignored the annoyance until last Sunday, when the pastor was repeatedly interrupted in his sermon, and the congregation in their devotions by swarms of the pests.

Though screens for doors and windows have been provided, the infliction continued. The mosquito of 1910 defied all screens.

On Sunday it was announced from the pulpit that until the mosquito season ended there would be no night service.

BAR TRACTION BOND ISSUE.

Jersey Utilities Board Denies Burlington Company's Request.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 8.—The Public Utilities Commission, in a decision today, refused to approve an issue of $166,250 of bonds of the newly re-organized Burlington County Traction Company, on the ground that the road was sold on June 16 for only $120,000 under a foreclosure sale in the United States Circuit Court here. While saying that it was undoubtedly true that "Fair value of the property purchased exceeds $120,000," the board holds that the capital stock issued to purchasers cannot exceed that sum.

The road first was known as the Burlington County Railway Company. It operates a line from Mount Holly to Burlington. Judge John Horner was named receiver, and the sale of the property was ordered under foreclosure of a mortgage held by the Mount Holly Safe Deposit and Trust Company to secure $500,000 worth of bonds.

DOCTORS FAIL; NURSE CURES.

Six Recoveries from Infantile Paralysis Attributed to Her Treatment.

Special to The New York Times.

BURLINGTON, N. J., Aug. 8.—Physicians here pronounce as almost marvelous cures that have been effected in six cases, all pronounced hopeless, of infantile paralysis. Four of the children now can walk and the others have almost recovered.

Credit for the remarkable cures is given to Miss Lillian Balz, a trained nurse in charge of the Friendly Society work here. In each case the children's legs were twisted and useless and doctors offered hope of nothing but a life of helplessness. Miss Balz cured one and the other cases were then placed under her charge. External applications and massage, physicians say, replaced drugs in her treatment. The virtue of the treatment has been so thoroughly demonstrated that the matter will be brought before the State Medical Society.

MISS WARDLAW OUT OF JAIL.

Kept in House of Detention Under Care of Two Trained Nurses.

By an order from Chief Justice William S. Gummere of the New Jersey Supreme Court, Miss Virginia O. Wardlaw, one of the three sisters charged with the murder of Ocey W. M. Snead in East Orange, N. J., last November, was removed from the Essex County Jail, in Newark, yesterday, to the House of Detention, where she will be in the care of two trained nurses and under guard of three Constables from the Sheriff's office.

This action was due to the report of Drs. J. Henry Clark and Walter S. Washington to the Chief Justice concerning Miss Wardlaw's ill-health.

Chief Justice Gummere announced that the trial of the three Wardlaw sisters would be begun Sept. 21. The Justice stated that the illness of Prosecutor Wilbur A. Mott made this postponement necessary. Mr. Mott is at his Summer home in Nantucket, Mass.

IN NEW JERSEY.

In Jersey City, Chemist Herman J. Lohman has reported to Health Officer James J. Hagan of Jersey City that "snowballs" he analyzed for Hogan contained butric ether, a poison, and were colored with poisonous aniline dye. The "snowballs" were made of scraped ice. Hagan is getting evidence against candy stores that sell poisonous "snowballs" and "hokey pokey."

In Newark, following an investigation by secret service men, E. Allen Smith, Deputy Revenue Collector, has started a crusade against traffic in barrels bearing internal revenue stamps and brands which have not been destroyed. The Collector says one firm has 15,000 such barrels and if it is found guilty a fine of $3,000,000 may be imposed.

Fearing he would be whipped, Ernest Johnson, 8 years old, of 253 Prince Street, Newark, N. J., did not tell his father that his twelve-year-old brother James had been drowned on Saturday in the Morris Canal. After searching forty-eight hours the boy's body was found yesterday in Mullin's Morgue. The boy fell into the lock near the Plank Road bridge. A pair of overalls he wore had fallen to his knees, preventing him from swimming.

In Belleville a gas meter thief visited eighteen houses last night. The meters were pried open and emptied of their contents by a man who is known and for whom the police are searching. The man secured entrance by cellar windows and got away with $40.

In Orange the continuation of a quarrel over a card game begun July 31 resulted last night in the murder of Angelo Campochira, who was shot through the heart. The murderer was pointed out to Policeman Michael Giordano as Dominic Scalla, who was caught after a chase. Witnesses said Scalla fired the shot and that no one else used a pistol. Other shots were heard by bystanders, however, and two pistols were found by the police.

To the Hackensack police Daniel S. MacMullin, a coal merchant at Rochelle Park, yesterday reported that while driving with his wife a thief broke into a back window of his residence and took a satchel containing $700 and several articles of jewelry.

In Passaic, Nicholas Maat, 78 years old, of 210 Summer Street, died yesterday of ptomaine poisoning, caused by eating canned lobster three days ago. He had been a resident of Passaic more than fifty years.

Independence Township yesterday celebrated the one hundredth anniversary of the Vienna Methodist Church, the first edifice built in the village. The anniversary sermon was preached by the Rev. Dr. Henry A. Buttz, President of Drew Seminary, Madison. In the evening the Rev. Warren Hoagland of Nutley preached.

In Newton two young men were arrested yesterday charged with operating three-card monte games on the picnic grounds at Cranberry Lake. The police say they have obtained hundreds of dollars from excursionists since the season began.

DE MONTPENSIER SEES A DOUBLE SHOOTING

Duke About Town with His Party When a Man in Street Fight Falls Dead Before Him.

POLICEMAN DRAWS PISTOL

And Orders Armed Man Fleeing to Throw Up His Hands—"I'm Shot," He Answers, and Drops.

The Duc de Montpensier and three of his party went out from the Hotel Knickerbocker last night to see what the city had to offer. They had come out of a Seventh Avenue café and were walking uptown in company with Central Office Detectives Wilbur and Tait when right in front of them were the reports of pistol shots, and stumbling forward out of a group of men and boys which melted into the side streets, a man reeled and fell at their feet.

Just then policemen from the West Thirtieth Street Station ran to the corner of Seventh Avenue and Twenty-eighth Street and one of them found himself facing another man running toward him, pistol in hand.

"I can't. I'm shot," the man answered, weakly.

With this he, too, fell unconscious to the pavement, and the two injured men were rushed in an automobile to the station. Dr. Baker, coming on a hurry call from Bellevue Hospital, found the first man dead. There were three bullet wounds in his back, and as he lay there on the cement floor of the station house he was identified by his brother as Ike Cohen, a Russian, aged 25. Herman Cohen of 115 Norfolk Street said that his brother was in a "pool and billiard" room, but that he did not know his address.

Dr. Baker found that the other man was shot through the lung from the back and at such close range that his shirt was scorched. He had just strength enough left to give his name as Charles Ledwith, a truckman, who lives at 376 Seventh Avenue with his wife and two children. He was hurried to Bellevue Hospital. It is believed that he will die, but he is a prisoner on the charge of murder.

The shooting seemed to come from every quarter, and the detectives thought that twenty shots were fired in the short space of time. The Duke was sure it was fifty. Yet none of the crowd about the street corner had any testimony to offer as to how it all started or who shot first. A boy named Kelly found a pistol in the street, and it is thought to be the one that Cohen carried. A single cartridge was found in his pocket that fits the revolver. In Ledwith's pocket there were twenty cartridges that matched the revolver in his hand. Cohen's brother pointed to one of the several possible witnesses that the police had under detention as the cause of all the trouble, but the young man denied all knowledge of the fracas.

In the chatter of the crowd as it gathered around the police when first they made the arrests it was volunteered that the fight had started about a woman, but when pressed for particulars they could give none. Mrs. Ledwith could offer no explanation. She said that her husband had been drinking heavily during the past week, but she knew no more than that.

In Cohen's pocket a letter addressed to "Dear Jack" suggested that Jack would better come prepared, as the writer expected "to have trouble with a couple of kids in this company."

The Duke seemed deeply interested, but not particularly stirred by what he saw.

"I thought it was fireworks," he said, laughing. "I and my friends, we stood quite still, while Mr. Wilbur did everything."

"Is this the most exciting thing that has happened to you since you have been in America?" he was asked.

"Oh, pooh!" said the Duke, with a shrug.

An autopsy this morning will show whether Cohen's wound was made by a bullet from Ledwith's revolver. Three of its chambers had been discharged. The pistol found in the street was empty. This does not account for the great number of shots that were heard as Detective Wilbur and the Duke ran up Seventh Avenue. Some pistols must have been held by persons who faded into the night.

TO TEST PRIVATE BANK ACT.

Banker Morris Engel Declares the Law Is Unconstitutional.

The complaint of Morris Engel of the private banking firm of Engel & Eckert, 129 Elizabeth Street, to test the constitutionality of the private bankers' law passed by the last Legislature and effective on Sept. 1, was filed in the United States Circuit Court yesterday. The defendants named are Attorney General O'Malley, District Attorney Whitman, Acting District Attorney Frank Moss, Controller Clark Williams, and Commissioner of Police Baker.

The complainant asks for an injunction restraining the defendants from enforcing the new law, declaring that such enforcement is in violation of his rights and would be ruinous to his business.

The new law requires private bankers to obtain licenses from the State Controller and also to deposit $100,000 in cities of more than 1,000,000 population.

LIMBLESS, HE FOUGHT ARREST

Beggar Who Said He Lived in Station House Objected to Going There.

An armless and legless man was arraigned before Magistrate Murphy in the Night Court last evening, charged with begging and with resisting arrest. The prisoner said he was John Naughton of 325 East Twenty-second Street, which address happens to be the East Twenty-second Street Station.

Patrolman Hoffman told Magistrate Murphy that Naughton had fought desperately when he was arrested at Twenty-third Street and Third Avenue, as he testified to the trouble he had in getting Naughton to the station.

When he was sentenced to six months in the workhouse he bowed and said he wished it had been a year. Magistrate Murphy said he joined in the wish, but that his power was limited by the character of the offense.

MRS. ROSENQUEST RELEASED.

Prosecutor Lets Her Out of Hackensack Jail Without Bail.

Mrs. Jessie Rosenquest, wife of Gilbert W. Rosenquest, acting manager of the Fourteenth Street Theatre, Manhattan, who was arrested Sunday at the home of Contractor August Niehaus, at Ridgefield Park, was released from the Hackensack Jail yesterday afternoon by Prosecutor Wendel J. Wright without bail. Niehaus is named as co-respondent by Rosenquest in divorce proceedings against his wife.

Ever since the divorce was filed Mrs. Mitchell, a woman detective, has been watching Niehaus. She saw Mrs. Rosenquest and her sister, Mrs. Nash, enter the Niehaus residence late Saturday night and then she telephoned to Rosenquest to hurry over from New York. A raid followed, but Mrs. Rosenquest and Mrs. Nash, with their children, were found in the same bedroom.

Niehaus and Mrs. Rosenquest were, nevertheless, taken to the Hackensack Jail. Niehaus was released when Ernest Bruno gave $500 bail for him, but as Mrs. Rosenquest was a stranger no one would go bail for her. When released without it she hurried away in Niehaus's automobile to the Children's Home for her little daughter and son, they having been taken there when the mother was put behind the bars. She then went to Cliffside Park.

It was learned to-day that Niehaus is without financial resources, and his friends are wondering what effect a judgment would have on him in the suit of Rosenquest for $50,000 damages for alienation of his wife's affections. Mrs. Niehaus was granted a separation from her husband a year ago.

FIGHT FOR RAG MAN'S RICHES.

Woman in Russia Says She Is Wolf Chayman's Widow.

Supreme Court Justice Goff reserved decision yesterday on the application of Kahan & Gallagher, counsel for Rossi Chayman, for the appointment of an administrator of the estate of Wolf Chayman, an aged dealer in rags and bottles, who died at 55 Henry Street last January.

Chayman was supposed to be without relatives, but shortly after his death a woman who said she was Mrs. Gittel Chayman, the widow, appeared and claimed the body. She produced savings bank books showing deposits of more than $4,500, which she also claimed. Not long after this a man put in an appearance, declaring he was the nephew of Chayman. A temporary administrator of the estate was therefore named by the Surrogate.

In Russia, where she lived, Mrs. Sossis Chayman, as she designated herself, heard of the death of the rag man. She at once put herself in communication with lawyers here, declaring that she was the only bona fide widow of Wolf Chayman. Her story was plausible enough to induce Kahan & Gallagher to take up her case and the application yesterday for the appointment of another administrator was the result.

VENEZUELAN FUGITIVE HERE.

Ramon Tello Mendoza May Join Castro in the Canary Islands.

Ramon Tello Mendoza, former Minister of the Treasury of Venezuela and later Governor of Caracas under Castro, arrived here yesterday on the Red D liner Caracas as a political fugitive from his native land. It is said by his friends in this city, who met him at the pier, that he did not have time to pack his bag before leaving the capital of Venezuela two weeks ago, but had to go by night to La Guayra and board a fast-sailing sloop which conveyed him across to Willemstad, Curacoa. This method of leaving that country has become quite a fad among Castro's friends, they said.

Mr. Mendoza was a close friend and supporter of Castro, and for that reason was looked upon with distrust by President Vincente Gomez and his followers. In November rumors were current in Caracas that a plot was being organized to bring back Castro and overthrow the Gomez régime. Mr. Mendoza was accused of being one of its ringleaders. He was thrown into prison, but was afterward released.

Rumors of a fresh plot which resulted in the arrest and imprisonment of Gen. Zeda Vidal, President of the State of Bermudez, caused the hurried flight of Mendoza. He is on his way to Europe. Ex-President Castro is in the Canary Islands, and it is considered probable by Central Americans here that Mendoza may join him.

SHOOTS DOWN TWO MEN.

Assailant Flees to a Tenement Roof, Where Detectives Capture Him.

Detectives Celsin and Bidner had an exciting chase last night after a man whom they say they saw shoot two men in the street opposite 307 East Forty-fifth Street. The two injured men, Giuseppe Alango and Calogero Chante, of 316 East Forty-fifth Street, were removed to Flower Hospital. Alango had a bullet hole in his right cheek and will recover; the other man was shot in the back, the bullet penetrating the lung, and is in a serious condition.

The man who the detectives say did the shooting is Calogero Fabbrizo, a former cleaner at the Waldorf-Astoria, living at 318 East Forty-fifth Street. He was locked up at Police Headquarters charged with felonious assault.

According to the detectives they chased Fabbrizo through the hallway of 312 East Forty-fifth Street, over a fence, and through the hallway of 311 East Forty-sixth Street. He ran east and then turned into 327, where he ran to the roof. They found him crouching behind a chimney.

Fabbrizo was identified at the hospital by Alango, the police say, as the man who did the shooting.

SAY CHURCHMAN SWORE.

So East Orange Council Refused to Reappoint Him to Office.

Reports that he maligned Mr. and Mrs. John Augar of East Orange, N. J., caused Playground Commissioner Joseph P. Schiller to be turned down by the Council of that city when they voted last night on his renomination by Mayor Cardwell.

Schiller, who is a New York business man, had been asked to settle differences between the city and Mr. Apgar. The two got into an altercation and profanity resulted.

Mr. Schiller is a member of the Bible Class of Calvary Methodist Church, one of the richest in the city, and the pastor, the Rev. Frederick C. Baldinw, induced him to apologize, but when he publicly denied having called the names he stirred Apgar up again.

Fellow-members of the class, among them Burns D. Caldwell, Vice President of the Lackawanna Railroad, took a hand in trying to smooth things over, but all failed.

SOCIETY IN COURT TO SEE MRS. PEIRCE

But Her Trial for Assaulting a Policeman Goes Over Because Adele Ritchie Isn't There.

JURORS TRY TO DODGE DUTY

J. P. Morgan's Confidential Secretary One of Those to Get Off—Judge Thinks She'll Plead Guilty.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Aug. 8.—Society turned out in the North Pelham court to-night to listen to Mrs. Alice Crowninshield Peirce, known socially as Mrs. "Tom" Peirce, answer to the charges of driving without a light, resisting arrest, and assaulting an officer, and to hear Miss Adele Ritchie's plea to the charge of interfering with an officer in the performance of his duty.

Judge Peter Ceder presided. The social throng was doomed to disappointment, for Judge Samuel F. Swinburne of New Rochelle, counsel for the two women, moved for an adjournment until next Monday night. Judge Swinburne stated that Miss Ritchie, Mrs. Peirce's principal witness, found it impossible to be present. Mr. Peirce was in court, but took no part in the proceedings. Henry L. Rupert, counsel for the town of Pelham, consented to the delay, and the motion was granted.

The disappointed social representatives derived considerable amusement out of the many excuses which the jurors pleaded in order to be excused from acting further in the case. W. B. Randall claimed exemption because he had served five years in the National Guard. Charles Pond, former President of the village of Pelham Manor and confidential secretary of J. P. Morgan, was excused because he was an exempt fireman. Albert Tassler begged to be excused because his hearing is bad.

Judge Ceder announced that he could not excuse all the jurors. Judge Swinburne consented to a new jury being drawn at once. The following men were selected: E. F. Burnet, a prominent railroad man; Emil Ericson, an artist; James F. Secord, former Supervisor; Robert Patterson, A. H. Stone, and Mandeville Mullally.

While leaving the courtroom Mr. Rupert remarked to Judge Ceder that he believed the two women would change their pleas to guilty before next Monday.

"I believe they will, too," replied the Judge.

Among the spectators in court were ex-Judge Thomas M. Hill, A. C. White, President of Pelham Manor; Col. D. R. Syack, Mrs. John M. Byers, E. H. Kingsland, and Alfred Steinbach.

PAID BOARD IN COUNTERFEIT.

Youth Accused by Landlady, Who Battles with Him in Elevated Station.

Charged with passing counterfeit $20 notes, a man 24 years old who said he was Charles E. Seeman, an electrician, of 52 West Twenty-sixth Street, was arrested at Fourth Avenue and Seventeenth Street yesterday afternoon.

Seeman was arrested through the efforts of Mrs. Elizabeth McArdle of 188 Amity Street, Brooklyn, from whom he rented a room for $5 last Friday, giving her, it is alleged, a $20 bill purporting to have been issued by the State Bank of New Brunswick, N. J. She had but $14 in change at the time, and this she gave him.

Immediately after he left she discovered that the note was counterfeit. She went to Brooklyn Police Headquarters where she was told that hers was only one of a score of similar complaints.

Mrs. McArdle was in Manhattan yesterday when Seeman boarded the same train at Twenty-third Street. She recognized him. He got off at Eighteenth Street, and she followed. She grabbed him, and when he turned on her, she belabored him with her umbrella. He knocked her down, and several men on the platform whom she called upon for aid paid no attention to her.

Seeman escaped to the street, Mrs. McArdle after him. But she kept yelling "Stop, thief!" and as Seeman was turning the corner of Seventeenth Street Patrolman Luvcker arrested him. The police at the East Twenty-second Street Station say they found a twenty-dollar counterfeit note on him similar to the one he had passed on Mrs. McArdle.

CAR HORSES IN A HOLE.

Stay There, Too, Until the Wrecking Wagon Rescues Them on East Side.

If the city were not just now putting in high-pressure water mains along Stanton Street these things would not have happened there last night:

Dan Conlan, a veteran driver, was tooling two venerable and antiquated horses attached to an equally venerable and antiquated horse car away from the excavation when the honk of a "rubberneck" auto horn frightened the team out of their aged wits.

For the first time in a generation they reared. Then the nigh nag neighed and slipped into the excavation, dragging his partner with him.

What Conlan said has not been recorded, but in a moment 2,000 persons were surrounding the excavation. The horses were pawing for a footing in the loose sand. Conlan tied his lines to the brake handle and started to hunt for a telephone to summon the wrecking wagon.

When he returned he was greeted by many who offered sage advice as to how best to get a horse out of a hole. But Conlan yawned, lighted his pipe, and sat down inside of the car with the conductor to wait until the wrecking wagon rescued their motive power.

Father Too Strict, Says Pastor's Son.

TRENTON, Aug. 8.—Hollis J. Wyman, son of a Cherry Valley, Mass., clergyman, who sought to get him to leave the Starr Farm, near Princeton, saying he was hypnotized, said to-day he did not want to go home because his father denied him all of the sports boys delight in. The youth insisted that the Starrs were kind to him, and that his sickness was not the result of overwork.

TRAPPED IN FIREBUG PLOT.

Chicken Market Man Accused of Hiring Another to Fire His Building.

Acting Fire Marshal Thomas P. Brophy of Brooklyn caused the arrest last night of Jacob Lachinsky of 78 Varet Street, that borough, on the charge of attempted arson. It was alleged that Lachinsky entered into an agreement with George Clifford of 29 Dobbins Street by which Clifford was to set fire last night to Lachinsky's chicken market at 219 North Ninth Street for $35.

Lachinsky's arrest followed a report made to Mr. Brophy of a conversation which Lachinsky had with Clifford in a varnish factory, adjoining the market, yesterday afternoon, in which Lachinsky is alleged to have told Clifford that everything was ready for the fire. Lachinsky denied the charge, but was locked up in the Adams Street Station.

According to Mr. Brophy's complaint it was in April that Lachinsky made the proposal to Clifford. Clifford works in the varnish factory. On July 29 Lachinsky is said to have paid $15 as an advance on the agreed price, and the rest was to be paid yesterday afternoon. Mr. Brophy got in touch with Clifford and accompanied him to the District Attorney's office, where the plot was given to District Attorney Clarke. Clifford, it was said, was told to go on with the negotiations.

By a prearranged plan Mr. Brophy yesterday afternoon detailed John Kelly, a clerk in his office, to watch Clifford and Lachinsky. Kelly concealed himself in the varnish factory and awaited the arrival of Lachinsky. The question of the balance of the money to be paid Clifford came up, and all he could get from Lachinsky was $1.

"Well, what will we use to start the fire with?" Clifford was heard to say, according to Kelly.

"Better use benzine," came the reply. "That is the best."

Clifford started to put the chemical in cans, but Lachinsky is alleged to have told him he wanted it put in bottles. Two bottles were filled and taken to Lachinsky's place. These bottles were later found by Detectives O'Connor, Kennedy, and Clark, who arrested Lachinsky, in a pile of refuse back of the chicken market.

GET SAMRI ELLIS'S BROTHER.

Detectives Pose as Customers of Fortune Teller Cook.

Central Office Detectives Donnolly and Dungate arrested yesterday Edmund Cook, whom they charge with violating the statute which describes as a disorderly person one who pretends to tell fortunes. Cook is said to be a brother of Samri Ellis, arrested some weeks ago in connection with the strange death of his servant, Paul Hamberger, and who is now under bail on a swindling charge. The police were really looking for Ellis, but they found the pursuit of Cook most diverting. They made him professional visits in quest of evidence.

Cook, they say, practiced palmistry under the name of C. Charcote at 148 West Forty-sixth Street. Donnolly considered the arrest of Cook his most important business for the time being. Would his business undertaking be successful? Unqualifiedly yes. Would his father pull through his present illness? He might, with care on the son's part. The son chuckled inwardly, for Mr. Donnolly, Sr., is a three-hundred-pound picture of health.

Dungate says he had much more fun than that at the palmist's. Charcote threw a fit for him, he says, for which he was to pay $25. Would Dungate get back his place as chauffeur? Charcote went into a trance, smelled gasoline, and decided that he would.

Dungate was to return with the $25 fee for the trance. Instead of $25 the detectives brought around a warrant issued by Magistrate Breen in the West Side Court.

CAUGHT IN BOILING WATER.

Two Bakers Badly Scalded as a Boiler Explodes—Tenants in a Panic.

A water boiler in a brick shed in the rear of Simon Newman's bakery, at the southeast corner of Clinton and Broome Streets, exploded yesterday morning. An eight-inch concrete wall was blown to bits and 400 gallons of boiling water poured into the basement, where several bakers were at work on the ovens and preparing dough.

Max Kalenberg of 206 Seventh Street and Nathan Jaken of 51 Rutgers Street saw the rush of steam before the water entered the basement, and getting down on their hands and knees began to crawl toward a door. Suddenly an avalanche of water burst in on them and Kalenberg was swept off his feet. He screamed with pain.

Julius Halpern of 174 Broome Street, one of the bakers who was in front of the basement, ran to the doorway from the outside and dragged Kalenberg to the street. He was badly scalded, and the ambulance surgeon who took him to Gouverneur Hospital said it would need heroic treatment to save his life.

Jaken managed to get out of the basement with the assistance of firemen, who had arrived, and although his legs and arms were scalded he insisted on going home without his injuries being dressed.

The water put out the fires in the bakeshop and ruined a great quantity of flour and dough. Newman's loss is $2,500.

Thirty families living in the five stories over the bakery fled to the street, fearing that a bomb had been set off. Every window in the rear of the house was broken.

WARNS TICKET SPECULATORS.

In Fining One $10 Magistrate Says He'll Send the Next to Workhouse.

If Magistrate Murphy is faithful to the promise he made last night when he fined Lou Newman, a ticket speculator, $10, some ticket speculator is due for a stay in the workhouse.

"Within the next couple of days, if any of your fraternity come before me, I feel I'll have to make an example of him and send him to the workhouse," said the Magistrate.

"I myself have been victimized by you gentlemen, and I know that it is about as much as one dares do to pass you by at the entrance of any theatre along Broadway and go to the box office to buy a ticket."

Newman was arrested by Policeman Hudson of the West Forty-seventh Street Station at the entrance of the New York Theatre. Policeman Hudson told the Magistrate that Newman persisted in following people into the lobby of the theatre and sticking his tickets and diagram under their very noses. He had warned him, but after the third time that Hudson spoke to Newman the latter turned on the policeman and exclaimed sneeringly, "Oh, go tell it to Gaynor."
